WATTS COOKING? Weekly

Topics: Market weakness; FLNC; EXC/CEG; VST

Weekly developments that we found to be of interest.

WATTS on Your Mind

This past week, investors continue to express concerns over the direction that the broader market — particularly the tech sector — is taking. A protracted weakness increases the appeal of defensive utilities. Within the utility sub-sector, there does not currently seem to be a clearcut answer on whether one should consider value utilities (think FE or ETR) or quality utilities like CMS or XEL. We also participated in a number of teach-ins over the past few weeks. It could be an indicator that there is a more cautious view on the market developing, although it could more related to just the usual personnel changes.

We received a number of inquiries regarding FLNC, which has seen its stock price decline to $20.13 on Friday, down from its peak of nearly $40 a couple of months ago. The interest centers on the impact supply chain challenges may have on the company over time. Recent transactions (QuantumScape, ReNew) suggest improving business momentum, but the financial markets are not cooperating. We maintain our Outperform and see the current stock price level as an interesting entry point.

Other stocks that gathered interest were EXC and its spin-off Constellation. EXC and Constellation started trading "when issued" under the tickers EXCVV and CEGVV on the NASDAQ. On Friday, EXCVV closed at ~$42 per share and CEGVV closed at $45. It is our understanding that there will a share of Constellation for every three shares of EXC, suggesting that the value of Constellation to EXC shareholders would be $15. This implies $57 for EXC versus the closing price of $57.44. Most investors that we've talked with remain constructive on EXC.

WATTS on Our Mind

This past Thursday, a payment dispute between VST and one of its gas suppliers Energy Transfer (Ticker: ET) caught us by surprise. VST underperformed the XLU by 454 bps week-to-date. According to VST's complaint filed at the Texas Railroad Commission, ET threatened to discontinue gas service if VST did not pay a $21.6M charge related to oversupplying gas on ET's pipeline during Winter Storm Uri last year. Within a day, ET responded by agreeing to continue providing services through the end of March after the complaint gathered widespread attention from the media. Our view: Given how quickly events unfolded, we're inclined to believe that the stakes of commercial disputes occurring behind the scenes remain high and market participants are willing to go to great lengths to gain a lead. Naturally we expect more volatility for the stock through this winter season. The saga is not over as ET expects to file a response no sooner than 3/21.

Required disclosures

Conflicts disclosures

This product constitutes a compendium report (covers six or more subject companies). As such, RBC Capital Markets chooses to provide specific disclosures for the subject companies by reference. To access conflict of interest and other disclosures for the subject companies, clients should refer to https://www.rbccm.com/GLDisclosure/PublicWeb/DisclosureLookup.aspx?entityId=1. These disclosures are also available by sending a written request to RBC Capital Markets Research Publishing, P.O. Box 50, 200 Bay Street, Royal Bank Plaza, 29th Floor, South Tower, Toronto, Ontario M5J 2W7 or an email to rbcinsight@rbccm.com.

The analyst(s) responsible for preparing this research report received compensation that is based upon various factors, including total revenues of the member companies of RBC Capital Markets and its affiliates, a portion of which are or have been generated by investment banking activities of the member companies of RBC Capital Markets and its affiliates.

Distribution of ratings

For the purpose of ratings distributions, regulatory rules require member firms to assign ratings to one of three rating categories - Buy, Hold/Neutral, or Sell - regardless of a firm's own rating categories. Although RBC Capital Markets' ratings of Outperform (O), Sector Perform (SP), and Underperform (U) most closely correspond to Buy, Hold/Neutral and Sell, respectively, the meanings are not the same because our ratings are determined on a relative basis.

Distribution of ratings

Conflicts policy

RBC Capital Markets Policy for Managing Conflicts of Interest in Relation to Investment Research is available from us on request. To access our current policy, clients should refer to https://www.rbccm.com/global/file-414164.pdf
or send a request to RBC Capital Markets Research Publishing, P.O. Box 50, 200 Bay Street, Royal Bank Plaza, 29th Floor, South Tower, Toronto, Ontario M5J 2W7. We reserve the right to amend or supplement this policy at any time.
With regard to the MAR investment recommendation requirements in relation to relevant securities, a member company of Royal Bank of Canada, together with its affiliates, may have a net long or short financial interest in excess of 0.5% of the total issued share capital of the entities mentioned in the investment recommendation. Information relating to this is available upon request from your RBC investment advisor or institutional salesperson.

Dissemination of research and short-term trade ideas

RBC Capital Markets endeavors to make all reasonable efforts to provide research content simultaneously to all eligible clients, having regard to local time zones in overseas jurisdictions. RBC Capital Markets provides eligible clients with access to Equity Research Reports and to SPARC on the Firm's proprietary INSIGHT website, via email and via third-party vendors. SPARC contains market color and commentary regarding subject companies on which the Firm currently provides equity research coverage. Research Analysts may, from time to time, include short-term trade ideas in Research Reports and / or in SPARC. A short-term trade idea offers a short-term view on how a security may trade, based on market and trading events, and the resulting trading opportunity that may be available. A short-term trade idea may differ from the price targets and recommendations in our published Research Reports reflecting the Research Analyst's views of the longer-term (one year) prospects of the subject company, as a result of the differing time horizons, methodologies and/or other factors. Thus, it is possible that a subject company's common equity that is considered a long-term 'Sector Perform' or even an 'Underperform' might present a short-term buying opportunity as a result of temporary selling pressure in the market; conversely, a subject company's common equity rated a long-term 'Outperform' could be considered susceptible to a short-term downward price correction. Short-term trade ideas are not ratings, nor are they part of any ratings system, and the firm generally does not intend, nor undertakes any obligation, to maintain or update short-term trade ideas. Short-term trade ideas may not be suitable for all investors and have not been tailored to individual investor circumstances and objectives, and investors should make their own independent decisions regarding any securities or strategies discussed herein. Please contact your investment advisor or institutional salesperson for more information regarding RBC Capital Markets' research.

Provided for the exclusive use of Lindsay Cox at Exelon Corp on 06-May-2022 11:35 AM.

What's in the Spotlight? We look briefly at initial when-issued trading levels for Exelon (EXCVV) and Constellation (CEGVV). While volumes have been thin, initial levels show future Exelon trading around $42 and within 2% of our $43 pro forma value. Constellation started around $42, ending the week at $45, but this still leaves the when-issued value $14 below our $59 pro forma target, pointing to over 30% upside potential in CEG if these levels hold.

CPUC meets on Thursday. We discuss this Thursday's California PUC meeting. While there is nothing of particular significance for investors on the agenda, we expect another testy public comment period focused on the net energy metering (NEM 3.0) rulemaking. As flagged in our last Spotlight, the CPUC is not planning to take up NEM on Thursday. Meanwhile, we still think the path forward likely involves a revised PD moving somewhat towards the solar industry position but still addressing cross-subsidization. Timing remains unclear, while we cannot recall many CPUC proceedings generating this volume and breadth of ex parte traffic.

PCG: End of the Alsup era. PG&E's federal probation wraps up on Tuesday with Judge Alsup signing off by issuing some characteristically scathing final written comments last week. Investors will no doubt appreciate no longer having to contend with periodic Alsup probation headlines. That said, we believe the judge did much to push PG&E – and the CPUC – to move further and faster on safety than might have been the case without his input.

Earnings preview, EXC learnings. We published our 4Q preview Friday and caught up with clients. While EXC is top of mind for many, EXC and CEG not planning to hold 4Q calls was a surprise to most. Among other EXC learnings, one item we missed in the recent CEG slides was the CTV venture fund having exited four of its recent IPO holdings. Only Protrerra (PTRA) and XL Fleet (XL) remain from the SPAC listings, ChargePoint (CHPT) and Stem (STEM) having gone since the 3Q deck, along with C3.ai (AI) and Ouster (OUST) between 2Q and 3Q.

Utilities now 400bp ahead YTD … 600bp excluding NEE. Last week saw the S&P Utilities top of the sector list, losing only 0.8% against the 5.7% market slump. This 490bp outperformance in what was a holiday-shortened trading week was the best relative week for the sector since April of 2020. The group is now down 3.8% YTD and ahead of the S&P 500 by almost 400bp. Utility index heavyweight NEE performed in line for the week (-0.7%) but remains down 11.5% on the year and accounts for ~200bp or almost half the sector's decline. Stripping out NEE, the average utility has now outperformed around 600bp YTD. So far, at least, this bears out our thesis that utilities can hold up relatively well in the face of Fed tightening fears, provided there is the right macro backdrop such as a flattening yield curve and growth stock de-rating.

Good week for nuclear-heavy hybrids, less so for IPPs. Within stocks, EXC (+0.9%) was the standout from our list and perhaps buoyed by talk of carving out clean energy provisions of Build Back Better (BBB). PEG (+0.3%) also had a decent week and is the other name with most direct leverage to a federal nuclear PTC. PCG (-6.0%) had a rough four days, giving back most of its prior week gain, with no obvious catalyst we saw apart from the Alsup final comments yet the stock remains top of our list over six months (+29%). Power merchants NRG (-4.2%) and VST (-3.9%) traded off with commodities and risk-off tone. Noise midweek saw Energy Transfer threaten to cut gas supplies to VST in a relatively small-dollar Uri-related commercial dispute. This created some headline worries, but parties quickly agreed to keep gas flowing pending resolution of VST's complaint with the Texas Railroad Commission (RRC).

EXC: When-issued trading update

Constellation separation on track for February 1. Exelon is on track to complete the separation of its Constellation merchant power and retail business on February 1 with the two entities expected to begin trading on a fully standalone basis from February 2. In the meantime, trading began last week on a When-Issued basis with Exelon When-Issued (EXCVV on NASDAQ) closing at $41.99 on Friday and not too far away from our $43 pro forma value target. Constellation When-Issued (CEGVV) appears to have been the more actively traded of the two so far and closed at $45.00 on Friday having traded up from initial indications in the $42 range on the first day. This compares with our pro forma Constellation target of $59 per CEG share. As a reminder, current Exelon holders are set to receive one new CEG share for every three EXC shares owned so our pro forma CEG valuation is therefore equivalent to ~$19 per existing share of Exelon in our current target combined target price.

When-Issued values suggest upside to our target mostly at CEG. Exelon (EXC) closed at $56.77 on Friday, which represents a discount of $0.22 or 0.4% to the combined When-Issued pricing. Upside to our current EXC combined price target of $63 is currently 11% but based on the When-Issued pricing there is only modest (2.4%) upside to our pro forma EXC value but a much more substantial 31% implied upside on the CEG When-Issued. Liquidity in the When-Issued is limited to date and may remain that way, so we would not read too much into these initial values quite yet. In the meantime, it is certainly interesting to get an early indicator of how the two pieces might end being valued relative to our valuations for each. Clients looking for our updated Exelon and pro forma valuation can find this on page 3 of our January 13 note.

California: CPUC not taking up NEM this week

NEM not on CPUC agenda this week but heated public comments still likely. As we flagged in our Spotlight last week the California Public Utilities Commission will not take up the Proposed Decision in its net energy metering (NEM 3.0) docket at this week's voting meeting. The PD was not included in the original draft agenda issued and we understand that the commission has also confirmed to journalists that NEM will not be included in this week's meeting. We continue to think it likely that a revised or alternate PD will likely emerge in the coming weeks and that this may well seek to move the new policy somewhat toward the solar industry position, while still seeking to address the cross-subsidization or cost shift issue identified by the utilities and consumer interests, notably including TURN. Politically this would seem to be the most likely play for the Newsom Administration, which will have the unenviable task of trying to balance the need for longer-term utility bill affordability, particularly for lower-income customers who tend not to install residential solar, while at the same time not being seen to pull the rug out from under the solar developers. We imagine the public comment period at the beginning of Thursday's meeting may once again be dominated by heated discussion of the NEM issue. In the meantime, from what we have seen there is little else of particular significance for investors currently posted on the agenda.

PCG: Reflections on the Alsup era

Federal probation period ends this week. PG&E's federal probation under the supervision of Judge Alsup is due to end on Tuesday and we offer a few closing thoughts. Last week Alsup issued a notice with his "final comments" which to some extent had been previewed at what ultimately turned out to be the final hearing held on January 3. The judge's final comments predictably generated some unflattering headlines, declaring the probation a "failure" and describing the company as going on a "crime spree" during probation and emerging as a "continuing menace" to California. Some of this made for tough reading, one choice of words we found particularly jarring was the suggestion that PG&E has "set" at least 31 wildfires while on probation. In general, the judge seemed reluctant to acknowledge the significant progress made since the wildfire crisis erupted in 2017 and which the US Attorney had referenced in their comments on January 3. At the end of the day, however, the fact that the US Attorney declined to accept Alsup's invitation to seek a probation extension effectively brings the probation era to an end.

Welcome news for investors, although we view Alsup as having helped. From our perspective, the probation and Judge Alsup's approach to it have generated much angst over the past many months and no longer having this to contend with will be very welcome news for investors. That said, we also feel we must acknowledge that Judge Alsup undoubtedly made significant contributions, not least in holding PG&E accountable to the benefit of all stakeholders. He played a key role at times in pushing for the adoption of aggressive risk mitigation protocols such as Public Safety Power Shut-Off programs and strike tree mitigation. While some of these measures might have been adopted anyway, after following Alsup's hearings closely for a long time, it seems clear to us that he pushed the company – and the CPUC – to go further and move faster than either would likely have done without the judge's persistent encouragement.

Constellation: Takeaways from the Virtual Roadshow

Stock Rating	Industry View	Price Target
Overweight	Attractive	$74.00

We had the opportunity to spend time with Constellation's management this week during (virtual) meetings with investors. The conversations reinforced our view that the market is significantly mis-pricing EXC's stock. Here we discuss key areas of focus during the meetings.

Our recent conversations with Constellation's management reinforced our view that the market is significantly mis-pricing EXC's stock. There is little controversy around the value of the Utilities at ~$47-50/shr (we value the utility at $50/share, using a 10% premium to peers which we believe is warranted given above average growth, a wires-only business model, and high capex recovery visibility), which leaves $7-10/shr of equity value associated to ExGen (or Constellation post-spin). This implies an EV/EBITDA multiple of 4.5-5.5x on '23 estimates for ExGen, a 30% discount relative to the pure-play merchant power stocks (NRG and VST), which trade at ~7x. As we published recently (see note here), we believe there are multiple factors that support a premium multiple for ExGen relative to peers, including: 1) a much cleaner generation fleet, 2) the low risk associated to state/federal payments that warrant a lower discount rate when valuing these cash flows, 3) footprint diversification, 4) an investment-grade rating, and 5) growth opportunities via acquisitions of merchant nuclear plants and hydrogen production. Our revised estimates imply an EV/EBITDA multiple for ExGen of ~11x and a 30% price upside to our $74 Price Target although we note that we quantify double digit upside in the stock even if ExGen were to trade at a 7x multiple (see Exhibit 1 for a sensitivity analysis). It's worth noting that we receive zero pushback from investors on the thesis that ExGen deserves a premium relative to peers.

and impacts from, federal clean energy legislation, growth endeavors, the company's tax position, and inflationary pressure.

1. Capital allocation. In-line with previous commentary, management reiterated their focus on improving the company's balance sheet during the first half of the year (there is ~$1b in notes maturing in 1H'22 although the company guides to $1.8-2.2b in debt reduction in '22-'23). Second area of focus is asset consolidation / M&A of merchant nuclear plants, although the timing could get extended as asset owners await for color around federal clean energy legislation. Absent accretive investment opportunities, CEG would in our view focus on returning $1.8-2.2b to shareholders in '22-'23 in the form of a special dividend and/or buybacks. Regarding M&A, they could use cash on hand, increase their leverage, and/or pursue a joint ownership structure depending on the size of the deal, but our impression was that equity issuances as a source of funds are unlikely. In addition to M&A, production of green hydrogen is a key area of focus although we see this as a 2023+ opportunity if the subsidy of $3/kg is passed.

2. Likelihood of passage of federal clean energy legislation and implications for the company. While odds of passage of the Build Back Better legislation as currently drafted are slim in our view, CEG's management believes, and we agree, that there is a significant probability that a clean energy bill could pass either prior to the State of the Union address on March 1st, in the summer, or as a tax extenders package later in the year that would include the nuclear production tax credit (PTC). We would note the supportive statements from Senator Manchin regarding the importance of nuclear power, plus the importance of addressing/mitigating the risk of climate change to the Democratic agenda as key factors driving optimism. Given that the nuclear tax credit is reduced if power prices are over $25/MWh, the increase in the forward curve that we have seen over the past months reduces the overall cost of the subsidy from a federal government budget standpoint (see Exhibit 2). We don't include passage of clean energy legislation in our valuation of EXC but would note that we see the stock as a key beneficiary if it were to pass as it would boost cash flows, lower the risk associated with the merchant business as generation would be naturally hedged, and have positive implications on the company's credit rating metrics.

3. Pressure from rising uranium costs and supply chain bottlenecks. A key question from investors has been the impact that rising uranium costs have on margins. Bottom-line: uranium costs represent <20% of the total fuel cost associated to producing nuclear electricity, and given the company's procurement and amortization schedule of uranium, recent spikes in prices will be spread over the second half of this decade. The company's fuel procurement strategy is to secure the fuel 3 years out, meaning the fuel being used today was purchased at least 3 years ago, while from a margin standpoint, they amortize fuel costs over a 6-year period (50% in Y1 and Y2, 40% in Y3, and Y4, and 10% in Y5 and Y6). This means that the high prices seeing for uranium today will impact margins 3-9 years out. More importantly, uranium represents a small portion of the total fuel cost ($1 of ~$6/MWh), which should drive a manageable impact once current prices hit the company's margins. A near term dynamic to track is supply chain bottlenecks and inflationary pressure, which management considered in setting their O&M guidance of $4.4b in '21 and '22. Given the highly contracted/hedged nature of 2022 cash flows, we believe any upside or downside to guided numbers could be most likely driven by O&M.

4. Tax position. Constellation will receive $700m in tax assets from EXC that the business generated over the past years. This would drive a 6% cash tax rate for 2022 relative to the 14% currently used in the plan and 25% effective tax rate (ETR) estimate. Over time, the company expects the cash tax rate to equal the ETR as they are not generating credits with their little growth capex of $25m in '22 and '23.

5. Other potential changes to their energy portfolio. Renewables today don't meet their threshold of double digit returns and so it is unlikely that we would see them expanding into this market. That said, they could look into selling some of their gas assets given the economics of the plants (which have seen low capacity factors given dispatch dynamics in the various markets where they operate) and their focus on positioning the company as an ESG play.

Morgan Stanley is acting as financial advisor to the Special Transaction Committee of the Board of Directors of Exelon Corp. ("Exelon") in connection with its plan to separate into two independent publicly-traded companies as announced on February 24, 2021. The transaction is subject to final approval by Exelon's Board of Directors, a Form 10 registration statement being declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission, regulatory approvals and satisfaction of other conditions. The transaction is subject to approval by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and New York Public Service Commission. There can be no assurance that any separation transaction will ultimately occur. Please refer to the notes at the end of this report.

Risk Reward – Exelon Corp (EXC.O)

PRICE TARGET $74.00

We value the regulated utilities' 2023 earnings by applying the large-cap regulated group P/E multiple at a 10% premium to account for above average earnings growth of 6-8% through 2025. Separately, using a DCF approach, we value ExGen at ~$24 (bear/bull range of $3/$37).

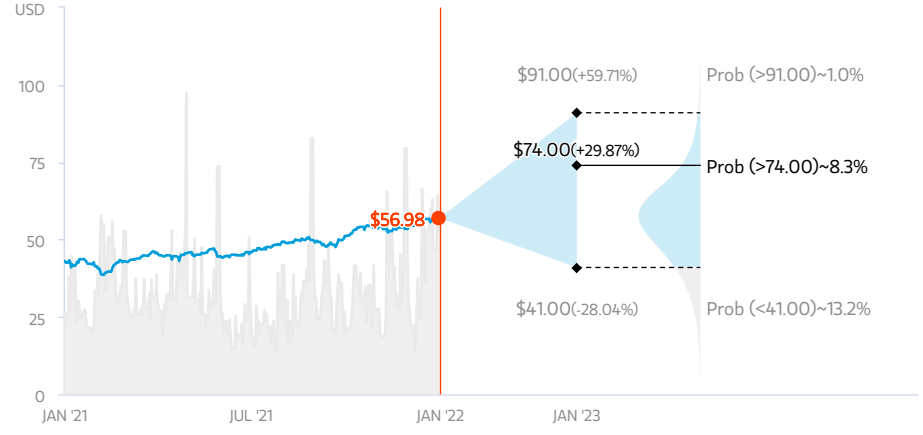
RISK REWARD CHART AND OPTIONS IMPLIED PROBABILITIES (12M)



Key: Historical Stock Performance ● Current Stock Price ◆ Price Target

Source: Refinitiv, Morgan Stanley Research, Morgan Stanley Institutional Equities Division. The probabilities of our Bull, Base, and Bear case scenarios playing out were estimated with implied volatility data from the options market as of 20 Jan, 2022. All figures are approximate risk-neutral probabilities of the stock reaching beyond the scenario price in either three-months' or one-years' time. View explanation of Options Probabilities methodology here

OVERWEIGHT THESIS

EXC offers above avg. utility earnings growth of 6-8% through 2025 and owns a large, highly contracted, unregulated merchant fleet that the market currently prices at little value. This compares to our valuation of Exgen of ~$24/shr ex-ZECs (bear/bull of $3/$37). We believe the market underappreciates ExGen's unlevered FCF generation of ~$1.6b/yr., margin stability from nuclear state subsidies, and the re-rating that could result from potential carbon legislation in the US.

Risk Reward Themes

Contrarian:	Positive
Special Situation:	Positive

BULL CASE $91.00

21.4x Utility EPS, $37/share ExGen

Differences from our Base Case include: 1) Earnings at the regulated utilities that grow at 10%, and 2) Higher terminal year assumptions for power market prices used in ExGen's DCF and the passage of a $15/MWh federal nuke PTC.

BASE CASE $74.00

20.5x Utility 2023 EPS, $24/share ExGen

We value the regulated utilities' 2023 earnings by applying the large-cap regulated group P/E multiple at a 10% premium to account for above average earnings growth of 6-8% through 2025. Separately, using a DCF approach, we value ExGen's nuclear subsidies (ZECs) at $3-4, and ExGen's uncontracted cash flows at ~$20.

BEAR CASE $41.00

18.6x Utility EPS, $3/share ExGen

Differences from our Base Case include: 1) Lower earnings at the regulated utilities driven by a 9.5% ROE and a 45% equity ratio, 2) An in-line P/E multiple to the peer group, and 3) No earnings associated with ExGen's assets (the unsecured cash flows). ExGen's valuation of ~$3/shr reflects the nuclear subsidies (ZECs) that are currently secured.

STOCK RATINGS

Morgan Stanley uses a relative rating system using terms such as Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated or Underweight (see definitions below). Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold and sell. Investors should carefully read the definitions of all ratings used in Morgan Stanley Research. In addition, since Morgan Stanley Research contains more complete information concerning the analyst's views, investors should carefully read Morgan Stanley Research, in its entirety, and not infer the contents from the rating alone. In any case, ratings (or research) should not be used or relied upon as investment advice. An investor's decision to buy or sell a stock should depend on individual circumstances (such as the investor's existing holdings) and other considerations.

Global Stock Ratings Distribution

(as of December 31, 2021)
The Stock Ratings described below apply to Morgan Stanley's Fundamental Equity Research and do not apply to Debt Research produced by the Firm.
For disclosure purposes only (in accordance with FINRA requirements), we include the category headings of Buy, Hold, and Sell alongside our ratings of Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight. Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold, and sell but represent recommended relative weightings (see definitions below). To satisfy regulatory requirements, we correspond Overweight, our most positive stock rating, with a buy recommendation; we correspond Equal-weight and Not-Rated to hold and Underweight to sell recommendations, respectively.

The Future of Net Energy Metering — A Fireside Chat with Industry Expert: Join us for a discussion on the future of net energy metering with Matt McDonnell, Managing Director of US Consulting at Strategen on Monday, January 24th at 4:05 pm ET. Please contact us or your KBCM sales rep for details. Our recent research on the CPUC PD and its potential implications are included here and here.

Industry News and News on Companies Under Our Coverage

ED, EXC — West Virginia vs. EPA: In the Supreme Court case currently being debated, a set of power companies filed a friend of the court brief supporting the EPA's authority to broadly regulate electricity operations. Among the utilities filing the brief were ED and EXC. The utilities filing the brief favor an emissions reduction approach that allows for trading, as a market-driven approach is the most cost-efficient way to reduce emissions. The Supreme Court will hear oral arguments in the case on February 28. As a background, WV vs. EPA is a Supreme Court case involving the scope of the powers granted to the EPA through the Clean Air Act. In 2015, the Obama EPA established the Clean Power Plan to create guidelines for GHG emission reduction from existing power plants. The plan was never implemented, but in 2019 the Trump EPA implemented the Affordable Clean Energy Rule, significantly narrowing the scope of EPA's mandate and repealing and replacing the CPP. Several groups challenged the legality of ACE in federal court and the DC Circuit overturned the ACE rule and sent it back to the EPA for further proceedings. The issue in front of the Supreme Court is whether the U.S. Constitution allows Congress to delegate broad authority to EPA related to GHG emissions and whether the EPA can issue broad rules to recast the nation's electricity grid and decarbonize various sectors of the economy. The Biden EPA is expected to issue a proposed carbon rule this summer—likely around the time that the Supreme Court hands its ruling on the case. In our view, the market has evolved considerably since the CPP was first introduced and, to a large extent, industry and state driven decarbonization mandates have assumed more significance, thus rendering emissions reduction targets handed down by the EPA as less significant.

DTE — DTE prepares to file an electric GRC: The Company filed a rate case summary with the MI PSC as it prepares to make a formal GRC filing. In the summary, DTE is seeking a $388M revenue increase on 10.25% ROE. We are currently modeling a $160M rate increase in our model. The rate filing is DTE's first since the prior case was settled in mid-2020 at a 9.9% ROE. Notably, this is the first instance that we have seen in the last five years when DTE has filed for a requested ROE lower than 10.5% and that too in a rising rate environment. Recent MI rate cases have been settled at 9.9%. The rate filing is driven by DTE's distribution and generation investments, and it is also seeking approval of certain accounting requests, including accounting treatment of costs to expand its EV program; regulatory accounting treatment for costs associated with TOU rates; a COVID-19 compliance expense regulatory asset; and a customer outage credit regulatory asset.

KeyBanc Capital Markets Inc. | Member FINRA/SIPC

POR — POR reached a third settlement in the OR GRC: OR PUC staff, interveners, and POR reached a third partial settlement in the ongoing GRC. The settlement addresses a series of items regarding revenue requirement. Not included in this settlement are the wildfire and vegetation mitigation mechanisms; wildfire emergency, ice storm, and Boardman deferrals; and the Faraday rider. These issues will continue to be litigated. A final order is due by April 25. As a reminder POR's second partial settlement addressed the rate increase and recommended that the Commission approve a $30.7M electric rate increase—below POR's $59M original request. POR will seek to recover the storm cost deferrals through a separate filing. Additionally, the first partial settlement addressed the cost of capital and recommended that the Commission approve a 9.5% ROE and 50% equity layer—in line with POR's request. POR initially filed a GRC in June for the recovery of base business investments in upgrading the grid and increased vegetation management. Other proposals include an accelerated depreciation schedule and separate revenue requirement for Colstrip, and removing the 2% cap on decoupling.

EXC — DPL files a gas rate case with the DE PSC: EXC is seeking a $19.5M rate increase based on a 10.3% ROE and 50.63% equity. The increase includes $5.8M for the distribution system improvement charge, or DSIC, making the net increase requested $13.7M. EXC is seeking rates to be effective Augusft 14, based off a 2021 test year. The previous gas rate case concluded in 2021 authorized a rate increase of $6.7M increase based on a 9.6% ROE and 50.37% equity layer.

EXC — Parties reach a settlement in principle in MD electric rate: Terms of the settlement have not been made public yet. PSC staff and OPC recently proposed rate increases of $5.6M and $4.3M, respectively. The delta compared to EXC's ask of $27M appears to be a lower recommended ROE and lower allowed depreciation expense. Staff and OPC recommended reductions of $14M and $12M, respectively, to the $18.3M depreciation expense requested by EXC. EXC is asking for a 10.1% ROE; the PSC and OPC proposed ROEs of 9.5% and 9.0%, respectively. A final PSC decision must be rendered by March 30, 2022. The filing is requesting rate increases to reflect planned spending and reliability investments that will be placed in service through March 2022 and the recovery of COVID-related regulatory assets, following which EXC plans to file a multi-year rate plan for the period 2023-2025.

AEP — APCo issues RFPs for up to 1,000 MW of renewable resources: APCo is seeking 1,000MW of wind and solar with the option of battery storage to meet the Virginia Clean Economy Act requirement of 100% carbon-free generation by 2050. APCo is seeking to acquire completed projects with the condition that all projects be greater than 50MW and must begin commercial operations before the end of 2025. While the wind project RFPs are location agnostic, the solar projects must be located in VA and all projects must be interconnected to the PJM. This is the largest RFP APCo has issued to date, and more are likely to be issued later this year.

WEC — ATC's planned Cardinal-Hickory Creek transmission line receives ruling from WI court: The 100-mile, 345-kV Cardinal-Hickory Creek transmission line received an adverse ruling from a WI judge that a proposed river crossing in the line's path is incompatible with a national wildlife refuge. The U.S. District Court issued a preliminary injunction for the project that is currently under construction. The ruling comes after the Fish and Wildlife Service revoked its prior determination that the project was compatible after developers proposed to exchange a parcel of land in the refuge instead of seeking an amended right of way. The project is being developed jointly by WEC's subsidiary ATC, ITC Midwest, and Dairyland Power Cooperative, and is expected to be completed by the end of 2023. When complete, the transmission line will be entered into MISO and help supply wind resources to the region.

U.S. Power & Utilities: Tuesdays with Moody's

Topics: State regulation; PNW; PCG; SO; FE; AEP; EXC; PEG; CWEN

During an investor call with Moody's, the rating agency reiterated its stable outlook for the power and utility sector. The team noted they were overall impressed with the regulatory environment over the past year, especially as it pertains to the February storms. In 2022, Moody's expects the FFO/debt for the industry to remain around 14-15% with key issues including capex for resiliency and the carbon transition and the Build Back Better (BBB) bill. We highlight key topics of discussion:

States of interest. Moody's is watching whether negative regulatory outcomes in AZ may be specific to APS or potentially extend to other utilities in the state. At this point it seems the challenging signals from the Commission may be isolated to APS, and Moody's notes that next steps in the APS rate case and SCR recovery will be key to determining the outlook of the soured regulatory environment and overall business risk. The outlook for NY is cautiously optimistic, with the opportunity for an improved relationship between the governor's administration and the utilities industry. In CT, Moody's pointed to the CL&P (ES, not covered) settlement could indicate progress in terms of the regulatory relationship.

Qualitative metrics most important in CA. Moody's noted the rating and outlook are mostly based on non-financial metrics, such as wildfire mitigation and relationship with stakeholders. The rating agency does not set the expectation for zero wildfires moving forward, but did note it was looking for improvements over three wildfire seasons for PCG since the company's emergence in 2020, with 2022 being the third season.

Upcoming Vogtle completion strengthens credit metrics. Moody's notes that although the budget for Unit 3 and 4 continues to increase, SO has taken action to mitigate the impacts of cost overruns on their financial metrics through new equity and the sale of non-core assets. While we see construction delays for both Units 3 and 4, Moody's believes bringing Unit 3 online will be the key milestone as it will allow for the reallocation of resources to Unit 4. The strong support from regulators and co-owners helps act as an offset to Vogtle challenges, but we are watching for potential shifts in this support with the 2022 gubernatorial election and two open commission seats. Once in-service, Moody's highlights that SO should see a significant jump in cash flows, bolstering financial metrics.

Moody's views Ohio outlook to be overall stable, despite credit metrics of utilities in the state being on the weaker side relative to industry peers. HB6 investigations turned out to be mostly limited to FE and Moody's views the company's resolution with regulators in late 2021 to be constructive. That said, re-rating for FE will likely take time as FFO/Debt may not reach management's mid-teens target until 2024, according to Moody's calculations. Moody's remains watchful of regulatory developments of Ohio's electric security plan. Turning to AEP, Moody's notes balance sheet pressure from storm recovery as the primary reason for a negative outlook in 2022.

Generation derisking mainly a benefit. At EXC, Moody's sees 14-15% FFO/Debt target announced at last week's analyst day to be achievable. Existing regulatory risk at ComEd, while manageable, is an area of focus. Moody's believes an expected $1.75 billion cash payment from EXC puts Constellation in a good spot. Potential new nuclear acquisitions could create new risks but it is too early to tell. At PEG, Moody's sees lower business risk profile as a result of fossil generation divestment, but cautions a higher spending program.

CWEN thermal sale affords financial flexibility. Although CWEN is still determining the use of proceeds, the sale provides the ability to increase renewable assets. Year-end financial metrics for 2021 may appear weak due to drop-downs and additional ownership percentage of other renewable facilities. However, once the sale closes, the proceeds should help to balance out financing moving forward.

RBC Capital Markets endeavors to make all reasonable efforts to provide research content simultaneously to all eligible clients, having regard to local time zones in overseas jurisdictions. RBC Capital Markets provides eligible clients with access to Equity Research Reports and to SPARC on the Firm's proprietary INSIGHT website, via email and via third-party vendors. SPARC contains market color and commentary regarding subject companies on which the Firm currently provides equity research coverage. Research Analysts may, from time to time, include short-term trade ideas in Research Reports and / or in SPARC. A short-term trade idea offers a short-term view on how a security may trade, based on market and trading events, and the resulting trading opportunity that may be available. A short-term trade idea may differ from the price targets and recommendations in our published Research Reports reflecting the Research Analyst's views of the longer-term (one year) prospects of the subject company, as a result of the differing time horizons, methodologies and/or other factors. Thus, it is possible that a subject company's common equity that is considered a long-term 'Sector Perform' or even an 'Underperform' might present a short-term buying opportunity as a result of temporary selling pressure in the market; conversely, a subject company's common equity rated a long-term 'Outperform' could be considered susceptible to a short-term downward price correction. Short-term trade ideas are not ratings, nor are they part of any ratings system, and the firm generally does not intend, nor undertakes any obligation, to maintain or update short-term trade ideas. Short-term trade ideas may not be suitable for all investors and have not been tailored to individual investor circumstances and objectives, and investors should make their own independent decisions regarding any securities or strategies discussed herein. Please contact your investment advisor or institutional salesperson for more information regarding RBC Capital Markets' research.

PPL/M&A/Solar – PPL reportedly puts Safari Energy up for sale

ERCOT – PUCT approves market design blueprint; Commissioners raise issues with timelines

FE/PPL/EXC/AWK – Pennsylvania PUC reaffirms healthy ROEs of 9.45%/10.2%/9.8% for electric/gas/water DSIC filers

CMS – Individual files appeal of MPSC approval of CMS electric rate case

PPL/M&A/Solar – PPL reportedly puts Safari Energy up for sale

- PPL has begun a process to sell its C&I solar subsidiary Safari Energy, only a few years after acquiring the company in 2018, according to SparkSpread
- The company specializes in smaller scale projects and has developed across roughly half the country
- Original acquisition announcement HERE – terms not disclosed

Guggenheim takeaway: Interesting data point as we had once seen Safari as a potential avenue for at least a modest amount of WPD proceeds allocation, although we feel that renewables investments were deprioritized in favor of regulated and quasi-regulated (SOO HVDC) in the more recent earnings calls and management conversations. The sale process would add another developer to slightly over a dozen up for sale at the moment.

ERCOT – PUCT approves market design blueprint; Commissioners raise issues with timelines

- "The Commission approves the attached blueprint for the design of the wholesale electric market filed in this project on December 6,2021. The blueprint is a compilation of directives and concepts designed to reform the Electric Reliability Council of Texas's (ERCOT) wholesale electricity market presented in two phases." - PUCT
- "I have a lot of concerns with the long projected timelines that were put in the report… I know that they're trying to set expectations, but we have expectations that these products be put in the market as soon as possible. Two years is too long. It is unacceptable." - Commissioner Lori Cobos via Platts
- "ERCOT must first develop the items related to the backstop reliability service and deliver that to the Commission as soon as practicable." - PUCT
- More HERE

Guggenheim takeaway: Interesting data points on the Commissioners' frustration with the process, as ISO revamps like this are typically very complicated and the ISO is already worked thin on several fronts. We continue to monitor the Phase II process for the longer-term reforms.

FE/PPL/EXC/AWK – Pennsylvania PUC reaffirms healthy ROEs of 9.45%/10.2%/9.8% for electric/gas/water DSIC filers

- The PA PUC ordered that the ROE for Pennsylvania's DSIC mechanism remain at 9.45% for electric utilities, 10.2% for gas utilities and 9.80% for water utilities.
- "The 10.20% ROE approved for the gas distribution companies is quite a bit above the average of recent ROE determinations in this sector. RRA calculates that for gas rate cases decided in the first nine months of 2021, the average approved ROE was 9.54% and the rolling 12-month average was 9.51%. RRA's preliminary analysis indicates a 9.55% average nationwide gas ROE for cases decided during calendar 2021." – RRA

Provided for the exclusive use of Lindsay Cox at Exelon Corp on 06-May-2022 11:35 AM.

- For interesting national and historical data insights, see this RRA article
- Docket: M-2021-3030045

Guggenheim takeaway: ROEs for each sector have remained above the national average for each respective utility type, and we expect this to continue, as actually earning at those levels is difficult due to DSIC limitations on filing frequency, spending eligibility, and annual spending caps.

CMS – Individual files appeal of MPSC approval of CMS electric rate case

- Phil Forner, an impacted individual, has filed for reconsideration with the Michigan supreme court, appealing prior court decisions and MPSC's interpretation of public utility codes in approval of CMS Electric rate cases.
- The arguments center around improper determinations of utility cost of service and the disputes to court's prior opinions surrounding hearings and due process.
- Docket: U-20963

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. An interesting legal argument being brought forward that questions the court and MPSC process, but we don't see any likely recourse for CMS at this time.

- We provide a summary of takeaways from Exelon/Constellation Analyst Days beginning on page 2 of this report.
- Over the past week, Utilities widened 2bp versus a 3bp widening in the JULI index and a 3bp widening in the JULI Non-Financial Index. Utility GenCos widened 1bp, OpCos widened 2bp and HoldCos widened 2bp. Secured OpCos widened 2bp and unsecured OpCos widened 2bp. YTD, Utilities tightened -2bp versus a -1bp tightening in the JULI index and a -1bp tightening in the JULI Non-Financial Index. Utilities are currently trading -6bp tight to the JULI index at 120bp and OpCos are trading 6bp inside of HoldCos at 118bp.
- Issuance ramped up this week. Southern Cal Edison came to market with $700mn 30 year notes and $500mn 10 year notes, while Keyspan Gas East issued $400 million 30 year notes. Additionally, Florida Power & Light Co issued $1.5bn 10yr FMBs and $1bn 2yr Senior Unsecureds. We estimate YTD issuance of $5.9 billion, compared to our FY22 forecast of $80 billion.
- Rating actions. This week, S&P affirmed Exelon Generation (now Constellation Energy) at BBB-, with a positive outlook. This rating affirmation reflects improving financial metrics post-spinoff, as well as expected increased cash flow post the Illinois Energy Law.
- The last natural gas active contract traded at $4.33/mcf. Natural gas rallied by 13.5% over the last week. The EIA reported a -179 Bcf net build last week, which was bullish compared to Bloomberg consensus estimates of -178 Bcf. The build brought working gas storage volumes to 3,016 Bcf.
- Week over week, the UTY index gained by 0.06% compared to the S&P Utilities Index which gained by 0.06% and the S&P, which fell by -0.14%. Outperformers: PCG (+7.7%), CQP (+6.7%), and SPWR (+5.7%). Underperformers: RNW (-7.5%), CWT (-7.3%), and TA (-4%).

Exelon/Constellation Analyst Day

Exelon (RemainCo) and Constellation (SpinCo, formerly Exelon Generation) concluded their first individual Analyst Days this week, as the spinoff is on track to close by Feb 1st, 2022. Exelon emphasized its strength of being a pure T&D utility post-spinoff and announced a new $29bn utility capital plan for 2022-25. At the same time, Constellation focused on its leading position in clean energy, providing a lot of details on the advantages of nuclear power and progress on regulatory support for these assets. Notably, Constellation also highlighted its commitment to maintain IG ratings.

- Exelon is now a pure play regulated T&D utility with supportive regulatory mechanisms. Exelon's fully regulated rate base is 65% electric distribution, 21% electric transmission and 14% gas delivery/others, operating in seven different regulatory jurisdictions. In addition, the company's regulatory environments are generally constructive, with nearly 100% of rate base growth in the next 4 years expected to be recovered through alternative recovery channels. Also, TTM ROE as of 3Q 2021 stands at 9.3%, with is within range of recent rate case proceedings in the mid- to low- 9% range. Moody's and S&P now have Exelon at BBB/Baa2, and the company's FFO/debt level of 13-14% is above the downgrade thresholds of 12% at both agencies. We generally like the trajectory of Exelon going forward, with a steady rate base CAGR of 6-8% through 2025 and reasonable financial cushion that is supportive of the company's current ratings. However, EXC bonds are fairly priced in our view and we see modest spread pickup relative to other mid-BBB names such as PEG or fully regulated peers such as DUK.

- Exelon's new $29bn utility capital plan for 2022-25 reflects strong growth outlook. EXC's $29bn T&D capital investment plan translates to an expected rate base growth of 8.1% and fully regulated EPS growth of 6-8% from 2021-2025. This new plan is ~$1.3bn higher than the previously announced 2021-24 plan, with the incremental capital to be deployed 51% in distribution, 34% in gas infrastructure and 19% in transmission. The projects would span from grid hardening, emissions reductions, energy efficiency to transportation electrification. Notably, the largest project would only account for ~1.1% of total projected expense of the 4yr plan, avoiding concentration risk. To fund the capital plan, Exelon will issue ~$14bn in debt both at the OpCo and Holdco and ~$1bn in equity at the HoldCo.

Kevin L Kwan

- Constellation is the largest producer of carbon-free electricity with strong regulatory support, underscored by the recent passage of the Illinois Climate and Equitable Jobs Act (CEJA). Constellation remains the largest nuclear generator in the country, and nearly two-thirds of its nuclear capacity is supported by state carbon-free programs, including the IL CMC and ZEC, NY ZEC and NJ ZEC. While management noted the stalling of the BBB bill, they expect the positive momentum for nuclear power to continue. Specifically, the passage of CEJA in September 2021, which sets carbon mitigation credits (CMC), stands to increase cash flow for Constellation, starting in June 2022.

- Committed to IG ratings. Management has maintained its commitment to maintain IG ratings, which we think is manageable given the variety of ZECs and other supporting mechanisms for Constellation's nuclear fleet. In addition, the company is actively de-risking the generation business through hedging and contracted revenue. Constellation is projecting generation hedge levels of 93%, 75% and 52% for 2022-2024. Management is also focused on improving Constellation's standalone credit metrics as the company plans to use $1.75bn cash payment[1] from Exelon to pay down existing debt. Meanwhile, 2022E FFO/Debt is at 45%, well above S&P's downgrade threshold of ~27%, and CFO Pre-WC/Debt is at 35% vs. Moody's downgrade threshold of ~23%. We think Constellation should have little trouble maintaining IG ratings over the next several years, considering the amount of state and federal support for the company's nuclear fleet. Our long-term concern is focused on the period beyond 2030, when the majority of the company's state support mechanisms expire, and whether nuclear power will be a longer-term part of the generation fleet if renewables and storage prove to be a reliable resource in the next decade.

[1] Per the separation agreement

- ESG leader with new GHG emission goal. Existing fleet to support clean hydrogen production. On the ESG front, Constellation has successfully reduced emissions footprint by 80% since 2005. Management's new GHG goal is for its generation supply to be 95% carbon-free by 2030 and 100% carbon-free by 2040. The company also highlighted its ability to use its existing nuclear fleet for hydrogen production, which gives the fleet more runway. The Nine Mile Point plant, which was selected to install an electrolyzer utilizing a DOE grant, is set to complete construction this year and to start operating by December.

- Constellation's 2022 common dividend is estimated at $180mn, or ~$55c/share, with a 10% CAGR. The company also identified ~$2bn in FCF that could potentially be returned to shareholders through share buybacks and special dividends from 2022-2023. 2022 guidance for adjusted EBITDA is at $2.35 - $2.75bn, which was just shy of our expectations in the $3bn range, but we note the recent move in power forwards in recent months. During Q&A, Constellation also noted its intention to pursue opportunistic acquisitions of other nuclear plants for improvements in capacity factors and other synergies, so additional consolidation within the sector is still a possibility.

The U.S. Energy Information Administration (EIA) forecasts more residential energy consumption in the winter of 2020-21 as compared to a year ago, primarily due to more people working and attending school from home this season. Energy consumption was higher in February due to colder temperatures, with HDDs up by 5.5% y/y in the first quarter of 2021. Forecasts are uncertain as the COVID-19 vaccine rollout continues to evolve, but gradual recovery should drive increased energy consumption more in line with 2019 levels.

Important Disclosures

Company-Specific Disclosures: Important disclosures, including price charts and credit opinion history tables, are available for compendium reports and all J.P. Morgan–covered companies, and certain non-covered companies, by visiting https://www.jpmm.com/research/disclosures, calling 1-800-477-0406, or e-mailing research.disclosure.inquiries@jpmorgan.com with your request.

A history of J.P. Morgan investment recommendations disseminated during the preceding 12 months can be accessed on the Research & Commentary page of http://www.jpmorganmarkets.com where you can also search by analyst name, sector or financial instrument.

Explanation of Credit Research Valuation Methodology, Ratings and Risk to Ratings:
J.P. Morgan uses a bond-level rating system that incorporates valuations (relative value) and our fundamental view on the security. Our fundamental credit view of an issuer is based on the company's underlying credit trends, overall creditworthiness and our opinion on whether the issuer will be able to service its debt obligations when they become due and payable. We analyze, among other things, the company's cash flow capacity and trends and standard credit ratios, such as gross and net leverage, interest coverage and liquidity ratios. We also analyze profitability, capitalization and asset quality, among other variables, when assessing financials. Analysts also rate the issuer, based on the rating of the benchmark or representative security. Unless we specify a different recommendation for the company's individual securities, an issuer recommendation applies to all of the bonds at the same level of the issuer's capital structure. We may also rate certain loans and preferred securities, as applicable. This report also sets out within it the material underlying assumptions used.

We use the following ratings for bonds (issues), issuers, loans, and preferred securities: Overweight (over the next three months, the recommended risk position is expected to outperform the relevant index, sector, or benchmark); Neutral (over the next three months, the recommended risk position is expected to perform in line with the relevant index, sector, or benchmark); and Underweight (over the next three months, the recommended risk position is expected to underperform the relevant index, sector, or benchmark). J.P. Morgan Emerging Markets Sovereign Research uses Marketweight, which is equivalent to Neutral. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating for this particular security or issuer because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. NC is Not Covered. An NC designation is not a rating or a recommendation.

For CDS, we use the following rating system: Long Risk (over the next three months, the credit return on the recommended position is expected to exceed the relevant index, sector or benchmark); Neutral (over the next three months, the credit return on the recommended position is expected to match the relevant index, sector or benchmark); and Short Risk (over the next three months, the credit return on the recommended position is expected to underperform the relevant index, sector or benchmark).

J.P. Morgan Credit Research Ratings Distribution, as of January 01, 2022

	Overweight	Neutral	Underweight
Global Credit Research Universe*	31%	53%	16%
IB clients	64%	63%	62%

*Please note that the percentages might not add to 100% because of rounding.
Percentage of subject companies within each of the "buy," "hold" and "sell" categories for which J.P. Morgan has provided investment banking services within the previous 12 months.
The Credit Research Rating Distribution is at the issuer level. Issuers with an NR or an NC designations are not included in the table above. This information is current as of the end of the most recent calendar quarter.

Analysts' Compensation: The research analysts responsible for the preparation of this report receive compensation based upon various factors, including the quality and accuracy of research, client feedback, competitive factors, and overall firm revenues.

Exelon Corporation

Lowering Exelon Estimates Following Analyst Days

Summary

We are reducing our 2022-24 estimates following analyst days held for both the utility (Exelon) and the merchant generation company (Constellation). Exelon utility earnings estimates go up modestly on higher capital spending announced at the company's analyst day. Offsetting this is lower anticipated earnings at Constellation based on lower hedge prices. Constellation had not updated its hedge guidance for 2022 and beyond over the past several years.

Key Points

-Constellation spin-off is anticipated at the end of this month.

-Constellation updated hedge guidance indicates lower hedge prices than what we had assumed in our forecast.

-Exelon Utility spending increased by $1.325 billion and rate base estimates by $1.7 billion in 2024.

-Exelon utilities forecast 6%-8% EPS growth consistent with previous guidance.

-Constellation expects to use $1.8-$2.2 billion of free cash this year for growth or return of capital.

Source: Company reports, MSUSA estimates

We are maintaining our 2021 EPS estimate of $2.82.

We are decreasing our 2022-24 EPS estimates by $0.12, $0.11 and $0.19 due to lower hedge prices at Constellation partly offset by increased earnings at Exelon utilities. Constellation initiated hedge disclosures for 2022-23 and indicated that its 2024 volumes were 52% hedged in 2024. Exelon utilities increased capital spending over the 2021-24 period by $1.325 billion and rate base by $1.7 billion. Assumed rate adjustments are the principal driver of the increase in our estimates for Exelon utilities.

Our estimates do not include possible improvement in authorized returns for Commonwealth Edison beginning in 2024 when the ICC is expected to establish new cost of capital metrics. We would anticipate return on equity to be the same or better than ROE under the current formula rate plan. We also do not include the possible benefit of incentive returns.

Corporate Separation

We expect that Exelon will complete the spin-off of its Constellation subsidiary on or before February 1, 2022. According to a January 6, 2022 8K, shareholders of Exelon will receive one share of Constellation for every 3 shares of Exelon on February 1, 2022. Exelon has completed all of the required regulatory approvals for the spin-off of Constellation. Closing of the transaction in the first quarter of 2022 is subject to final approval of Exelon's Board of Directors and a Form 10 registration statement being declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

Analyst Day

Exelon and Constellation held their analyst days earlier this month. Among our take-aways are the following:

Exelon:

-The company indicated that it would target 6%-8% EPS growth with an initial 60% dividend payout target.

-The company also announced higher capital spending and rate base as indicated in Exhibit 2 below:

Exhibit 2: Capex and Rate base Revisions

		2021	2022	2023	2024	Total
Capex	4Q20	6,550	6,725	6,725	6,725	26,725
	4Q21	6,600	6,900	7,100	7,450	28,050
Rate Base	4Q20	47,900	51,600	55,000	58,800
	4Q21	47,600	52,000	55,700	60,500
Capex	Difference	50	175	375	725	1,325
Rate Base	Difference	(300)	400	700	1,700

Source: Company reports, MSUSA estimates

We note that rate base growth exceeds the increase in capital spending levels. Also, the company did not provide a break-out of rate base projections by subsidiary.

-Exelon indicated that it will issue $1.0 billion of equity in the period 2022-25. The company expects to be above its downgrade threshold of 12% (both rating agencies) for the forecast period through 2025.

-Exelon will transfer $1.75 billion to Constellation at the time of separation.

Constellation

-The company provided 2022 adjusted EBITDA guidance of $2.35-$2.75 billion.

-Constellation plans to pay an initial dividend of $180 million which it plans to grow by 10% each year. The percentage increase in its dividend per share could be greater than 10% if the company pursues share repurchase.

-Constellation initiated 2022-23 hedge guidance and indicated it is 52% hedged in 2024. The company's updated hedge guidance excludes output from Braidwood, Byron and Dresden (which is now included under ZEC and capacity). We estimate the annual subsidy for these plants to be roughly $140 million versus the $1.5 billion plus contribution included in the ZEC and capacity payment bucket. Restating hedges to previous disclosures would indicate that Constellation is 68% hedged in 2022, 41% hedged in 2023 and 33% in 2024.

-Constellation will pay down debt using the $1.75 billion transfer from Exelon and expects to have between $1.8-$2.2 billion of free cash flow for the year. The company plans to use this cash for growth or return of capital to shareholders. We believe a likely use of this cash will be share repurchase.

-Despite the continued operation of all of its Chicago nuclear plants and the purchase of EDF's ownership interest in 3 nuclear plants, annual maintenance capex is expected to remain in the range of $650 million.

Valuation

Base Case

Using a sum of the parts analysis on 2024 results we derive a price target of $57.00 per share. Based on yesterday's closing price of $56.35, this represents price appreciation potential of 1.2% and total return potential of 3.9% including the company's current yield of 2.7%. Our price target is derived as follows:

We value the regulated electric distribution and transmission 2024 earnings of $2.42 using a P/E multiple of 17.8 times, a 5% premium to our electric group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $45.00.

We value the regulated gas distribution 2024 earnings of $0.48 using a P/E multiple of 15.5 times, a 5% premium to our gas group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $8.00.

We value ExGen 2024 generation and retail EBITDA less maintenance capex of $1.9 billlion at a 6.9 times multiple net of $5.4 billion of debt resulting in a price target of $7.00.

We add to this total $8.00 for a $15.00 PTC (currently proposed in Build Back Better) and for a $450 million assumed hedge deduction included in our 2024 adjusted EBITDA estimate.

Adjusting for unallocated debt, net of a 28% tax shield, reduces the price by $11.00.

Consistent with our methodology our price targets are dynamic changing with the group average P/E multiples and EV/EBITDA multiples recalculated on a daily basis.

Bull Case

Under our bull case scenario, generation EBITDA would increase by $515 million based on assumed market heat rate expansion of 1,000. Using a 6.9 times multiple on merchant generation results in a $4.00 positive revision to our price target.

Bear Case

Under our bear case scenario, generation EBITDA would decrease by $515 million based on assumed market heat rate contraction of 1,000. Using a 6.9 times multiple on merchant generation results in a $4.00 negative revision to our price target.

Company Models

In the pages that follow, we highlight our detailed consolidated financial model, including both historical and projections for income statement, cash flow and balance sheet for Exelon Corporation from 2018 to 2024. To derive the consolidated results, we modeled full financials for each operating subsidiary. Clients who would like the full models may obtain them through their MSUSA representative or by direct request to the authors.

Price Target Calculation and Key Risks

Price Target Calculations: Our $57 price target is derived as follows:

We value the regulated electric distribution and transmission 2024 earnings of $2.38 using a P/E multiple of 19.7 times, a 10.0% premium to our electric group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $47.00.

We value the regulated gas distribution 2024 earnings of $0.47 using a P/E multiple of 17.2 times, a 10.0% premium to our gas group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $8.00.

We value ExGen 2024 generation and retail EBITDA less maintenance capex of $1.7 billlion at a 6.9 times multiple net of $5.4 billion of debt resulting in a price target of $7.50.

We assume that federal legislation is adopted providing additional subsidies to nuclear plants, adding $5.00 to our price target.

Adjusting for unallocated debt, net of a 28% tax shield, reduces the price by $10.50.

Consistent with our methodology our price targets are dynamic changing with the group average P/E multiples and EV/EBITDA multiples recalculated on a daily basis.

Key Risks: 1) Equity overhang; 2) Not getting federal nuclear subsidies. Weak commodity outlook, general economic conditions, changes in state and/or Federal regulation, weather, ongoing business operational risk, broader macroeconomic conditions, and interest rate movements are among the key risks to our rating and expected stock performance.

Constellation leads with call for patience on capital allocation. At Tuesday's Analyst Day the new Constellation (formerly ExGen) team urged investors to be patient with respect to specific capital allocation decisions. Reasons include wanting to see where CEG ends up trading (fair enough) and getting a better sense of potential growth investment opportunities. We think there was likely also an element of wait and see regarding potential federal nuclear (and hydrogen) tax credits with management reluctant to make definitive capital decisions while such potential policy support questions are in play. This made for a somewhat anticlimactic tone on Tuesday, with Constellation CEO Dominguez indicating investors might expect more specifics in the latter part of the year. For sure, Tuesday left us feeling a little short-changed at the margin but we remain constructive on the shares at current levels and view CEG as a uniquely positioned clean power play and leading large-customer retail franchise.

Gross margin, EBITDA guides generally constructive. In terms of outlook, forecast margin for 2022 and 2023 as well as the 2022 adjusted EBITDA guide ($2.35B-$2.75B) were broadly in line with our model. Lower hedge percentages and a relatively flat forward curve for 2024 also point to EBITDA being closer to the $3B range for 2023 and 2024 on our numbers. CFO Eggers noted that the $2.6B midpoint of 2022 EBITDA guide includes $50M of pressure from lower winter curves since the 11/30 reference date. Forecast O&M was ~$50M favorable to our numbers, whereas base CapEx and nuclear fuel is seen $750M lower than our model for 2022 and 2023 combined. Having worked with the new numbers over the past couple of days, we note some reconciliation challenges and would urge CEG to consider a clear bridge between gross margin and adjusted EBITDA in reporting and guidance templates.

Lower than expected initial cash given collateral return. CEG showed the summary cash flow outlook for 2022-2023 combined. One notable feature was a lower than expected cash starting point which we understand to reflect a good portion of the cash on the ExGen balance sheet from September having being collateral related and therefore not available. Per the cash waterfall, CEG expects $4.6B-$5.0B of available cash for 2022-2023 after base CapEx and nuclear fuel spending. Some $1.8B-$2.2B of this cash is earmarked for debt reduction based on the net debt to adjusted EBITDA target of 2.0x. After dividends and one-time costs related to the separation ($0.4B each) this will leave $1.8B-$2.2B of cash to be allocated to growth investment (clearly management's preferred path we sensed) or return of capital.

Raising PT $2 to $63; shifting estimates to pro forma basis. Today we make an interim model update which shows our financial estimates for 2022 and beyond on a post-separation basis. While out of our headline estimates, Constellation remains included in our consolidated target and valuation. Pro forma for the separation we assign $43 of value to Exelon and $19 per Exelon share to Constellation ($59 per CEG share based on the 1:3 distribution ratio).

Shifting to pro forma estimates from 2022. We show our revised estimates in Figure 1 above. Starting from 2022, our published EPS and DPS are now pro forma for the CEG separation. For 2021, we show numbers and guidance on a consolidated pre-separation basis since we believe this is how Exelon will end up reporting and filing their 2021 10-K, as they were still a single entity as of year-end. For reference, we note that EXC management put out a post-separation adjusted 2021 guidance range of $2.06-$2.14 with their Monday disclosures. Using the $2.10 midpoint of this range, our 2024E of $2.55 amounts to a three year EPS CAGR of 6.7%. We also note that the stock price used to calculate the multiples and yields for 2022 and beyond in our Figure 1 is based on today's close for EXC ($56.49) less our estimated $19/sh CEG value.

Valuation raised on higher utility outlook. Our updated valuation is in Figure 2 below. Our utility net of parent (EXC RemainCo) value is $2 higher based on the updated rate base and investment numbers disclosed on Monday. We use an average 17x target multiple on our 2024E and see potential for the future Exelon ultimately to capture a premium given continued consistent execution post separation. Our value for CEG is based on an average of 6.0x EBITDA and 12.5% Free Cash Flow Yield. This cash flow yield target is a new feature of our sum-of-parts and is lower than the 15% target we are using for listed energy merchants, NRG and VST. Factors we see supporting a lower target cash flow yield include EXC's superior and industry leading emissions profile along with growing stakeholder support for maintaining the nuclear fleet. We have eliminated the half-turn EV multiple discount on ZEC and CMC revenues from our prior valuation in view of the improved policy support landscape. Our valuation continues to include ~$0.50 per EXC share (~$1.50 per new CEG share) of upside for a potential nuclear production tax credit (PTC). This is based on an updated net value of $425M ($990M before estimated ZEC and CMC netting) to which we apply an EV multiple of 6.0x and a probability factor of 20%. Raising this to 100% on enactment would add $2 per EXC share to our valuation and move our overall consolidated target up to $65 per EXC share. Were this to happen though, we likely would also consider a higher overall multiple for CEG overall given the substantially more contracted nature of the broader portfolio under a PTC scenario.

ME PUC recommends lifting the ROE penalty against AGR's CMP; AGR completes offshore lease restructuring; CNP completes sale of AR and OK LDCs; NM lawmakers are exploring the idea of municipalized utilities; WI PSC is exploring adding a PBR mechanism to rate making; PA Governor vetoes resolution opposing RGGI; CT initiates quadrennial Comprehensive Energy Assessment; Governor Newsom presents the 2022-23 CA budget with clean energy and climate provisions; and White House made a series of clean energy-related announcements including a lease sale in the NY Bight.

Upcoming Calendar Event

AY — We are hosting AY's senior management for a day of meetings on Friday, January 14. Please contact your sales representative or contact us to schedule a meeting. Our recent research on AY can be accessed here and here.

News on Companies Under Our Coverage

AGR — ME PUC recommends lifting the ROE penalty against CMP: This is in line with the timing expected by management. In September 2021, CMP had filed a petition with the ME PUC to remove the 100 bps penalty that has been in place since January 2020 when the utility had to take a $10M earnings disallowance and a 100 bps ROE reduction for 18 months for failing to hit service quality benchmarks. CMP is also asking for authorization to accrue the incremental revenue effective September 1 and until the distribution rates are adjusted to reflect the change in ROE. The action is expected to be retroactive to September 2021.

AGR — AGR completes offshore lease restructuring: With the completion of the restructuring, AGR has recalibrated its offshore wind ownership with its JV partner CIP that gives AGR 100% ownership in the 1.2 GW Commonwealth Wind and 804MW Park City Wind (804 MW to CT) projects. AGR will continue to share a 50% ownership in the 800MW Vineyard Wind project with CIP. Additionally, AGR is the 100% owner of the 2.5GW Kitty Hawk Offshore Wind project offshore NC. AGR's total wind portfolio has been awarded 2.4GW of wind projects upon the closing. In December, AGR announced that Commonwealth Wind was selected as part of MA's RFP. AGR had submitted a bid to construct a 1.2 GW facility.

CNP — CNP completes the sale of AR and OK LDCs: CNP completed the previously announced sale to Summit Utilities. In tandem with the ENBL sale, the proceeds will help CNP to fund growth in its core portfolio and eliminates the need for external equity. As we initially wrote here, CNP sold the AR and OK LDCs for a net price of $1.725B (net of $425M of incremental Uri-related gas costs) and is expected to realize net proceeds of $1.325B after a ~$400M tax leak. As part of the sale agreement, CNP also received cash for unrecovered winter storm gas costs in AR and OK.

XEL, PNM (NC) — NM lawmakers propose a petition to the PRC for creation of local utilities: NM PRC are expected to consider the petition that asks the PRC to evaluate the benefits of public power and community choice aggregation (where IOUs own T&D while the public owns generation) and the pros and cons involved with tribes and municipalities owning public utilities. While the NM PRC does not have the jurisdiction to establish publicly owned electric utilities, it believes the Commission could play a role in evaluating the proposal. Municipalization studies are not new but have rarely led to an outcome where the utilities have been municipalized (most recent examples include Boulder, Chicago, San Francisco, and San Diego, where status quo was chosen over municipalization). Most recently, New Orleans explored the idea of municipalization after expressing dissatisfaction with ETR's response after Hurricane Ida. According to a 2019 study, only nine out of 60 attempted municipalization efforts have been successful.

WEC — WI PSC exploring PBR to support clean energy transition: The Commission held a workshop with stakeholders to receive input regarding performance-based regulation. The state currently offers revenue sharing mechanisms to encourage energy efficiency. WEC is likely to file its next rate case in WI in mid-2022, though a PBR decision may or may not come by then.

EXC — PA governor vetoes resolution opposing the implementation of RGGI: As was expected, Governor Wolf (D) vetoed the state legislature's vote against his plan for the state to join the RGGI. The governor's plan was to join the RGGI on January 1, 2022.

RGGI is a cooperative cap and trade effort. The system targets a cap reduction of 30% from 2020-2030. Allowances are offered through quarterly, regional CO_2 allowance auctions that are sealed-bid, uniform price auctions open to all participants resulting in a single quarterly clearing price. Recall that the VA Governor-elect Youngkin (R) recently said that he would issue an executive order to pull VA's participation in the RGGI. Expect the debate in PA on RGGI to reemerge in the upcoming PA governor's elections. Additionally, the Republican-controlled Senate has refused to act on the governor's nominations to the PA PUC, where there are three vacancies on a five-member panel.

ES, AGR — CT initiates 2022 Comprehensive Energy Strategy Assessment: The CES will analyze CT's future energy needs and address issues including building decarbonization, resilience to extreme weather events, and fuel price spikes. The CES will recommend legislative and administrative actions to meet these objectives. DEEP is required to prepare the CES every four years. Through this process, DEEP is also seeking updates to the IRP to include emerging technologies to meet the state's climate goals and wholesale electric market reforms.

EIX, SRE — Governor Newsom presents the 2022-23 budget: The budget includes $2B for a Clean Energy Investment Plan that includes money for long duration storage, green hydrogen, offshore wind infrastructure, and pump storage. The budget also includes $2.7B over four years for wildfire and forest resilience.

The White House made a series of Clean Energy-related announcements:

- BOEM will hold a wind auction in February in the New York Bight, a WEA identified by the current administration as part of its aggressive agenda to have 30 GW of offshore wind by 2030. The auction will allow bids on six lease areas, each with the capacity to hold up to 7 GW of wind energy. We expect that AGR may potentially bid in this auction.
- DOE is launching a new initiative to accelerate transmission investments. The initiative is called the Building Better Grid and will take funds from the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law to further the administration's goal of 100% carbon pollution-free electricity by 2035. It is not clear how this initiative to modernize the grid will interact with FERC, which is also exploring transmission planning reforms through an ANOPR (RM21-17).
- Forming a five-agency collaboration to expedite reviews of onshore wind and solar projects: The Departments of Interior, Agriculture, Defense, and Energy, and the EPA, will improve coordination to prioritize reviews for renewable projects located on public lands as it aims to meet its goal of 25 GW by 2025 of renewable power onshore (wind, solar, and geothermal).

CA – CPUC discusses long-term gas system planning at workshop, finds agreement that situation is complex with long resolution timeframe

- CPUC held a rulemaking workshop to discuss the future of gas system planning and how to address decarbonization in CA.
- The lengthy discussion generally found consensus in the fact that there is no near-term solution to cease gas system use, but longer term the gas system is not aligned with CA decarbonization policy as it stands today.
- Docket: R2001007

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. Interesting discussions around the terminal value of gas distribution in CA. While environmental stakeholders have long pushed for elimination of gas use, the more balanced views are that there are still ways for the gas system to be useful. There is a general understanding with the CPUC that the gas system is useful. Prior decisions surrounding LDCs have focused on the need to keep the system reliable and even with declining gas use, critical failures around the country including CA proved that safety spending is critical. One of the ways we would envision extending the lifecycle of the gas systems is RNG and hydrogen to introduce carbon negative resources into the system, which is a clear path to net zero.

CA – Media reports CA Governor Newsom weighing in on proposed CPUC decision on NEM 3.0

- Media reported CA Governor Newsom is weighing in on the net energy metering decision at the CPUC, saying more work needs to be done.
- CPUC issued the decision in the Net Energy Metering tariff design late last year.
- The PD seeks to reallocate electric system costs equitably to distributed generation resources including rooftop solar.

Provided for the exclusive use of Lindsay Cox at Exelon Corp on 06-May-2022 11:35 AM.

- Docket #: R.20-08-020; PD here and PR here.

Guggenheim takeaway: We anticipated the governor's office to largely stay out of the CPUC process, and we see his comments as somewhat "off the cuff." It is still unclear how much political will there is for Newsom to get into the NEM debate. The argument around cost shift seems to be widely understood by every party, including major intervening parties and independent party representatives. While the decision is largely at odds with distributed generation developers and owners, we believe the decision will stand substantially unchanged as the commission seeks a more sustainable cost path for CA customers. Our prior meetings with ex-CPUC President acknowledged that the current NEM rules were lacking by design to incentivize a nascent industry, which all parties recognize is no longer the case with CA renewable and distributed technologies.

SR – Spire Missouri initiates rate case to recover from blow dealt by 4Q21 GRC's order

From the filing (with emphasis added):

- "The Commission's decisions… regarding inclusion of short-term debt in the Company's capital structure, and return on equity, have resulted in Spire achieving the lowest overall rate of return of any Missouri utility. The Commission had never before included short-term debt in the capital structure of a Missouri utility until Spire's last general rate case."
- "…the exclusion of overhead capitalization directly and substantially impairs Spire's earnings ability. This makes Missouri a less attractive venue for capital investment and unfairly penalizes investors. It also makes Spire a riskier investment, as indicated by negative credit outlooks issued in direct response to the Commission's decision in Spire's last general rate case."
- "Spire has not engaged in any ex parte discussion regarding any substantive issue pertaining to this filing with the office of the Commission (as defined in 20 CSR 4240-4.015(10)) within the ninety days immediately preceding the filing of this notice."
- For more, see the filing (HERE) in the newly created docket (GR-2022-0179).

Guggenheim takeaway: The outcome of this proceeding will be the primary driver of SR's EPS growth rate for the foreseeable future. We expect the utility to focus on challenging the inclusion of short-term debt in the regulatory capital structure, the below-average allowed ROE, and the capitalization and recovery of overhead costs. On its 4Q21 call in Nov 2021, the company cited reductions to its revenue requirement of $19m/$3m from the lower equity layer/delta of allowed ROE vs. a peer average, a combined hit of ~$0.34 per share. On a comparable basis, our estimates currently assume this GRC results in an uplift of approximately half the company-provided amounts due to improvements in the equity layer and ROE. We also assume full resolution of the capitalization and recovery of overhead costs issue, which the company said will be a ~$0.21-$0.34 per share drag in FY22 and is included in mgmt.'s FY22E guidance of $3.70-$4.00. These assumptions get us to roughly the midpoint of the current 5%-7% CAGR by FY24E, while a lack of resolution on these issues would make hitting the bottom of the range a challenge, in our view. We find it difficult to envision a completely constructive result at this juncture, given the last rate case's outcome, and continue to monitor for incremental datapoints as they become available.

IEA – IEA adds wind construction contract in IL

- IEA announced a $75M contract in support of construction of the Sapphire Sky Wind Project, a planned 250MW wind farm in McLean County, Illinois.
- The project includes EPC work and heavy civil work.
- The developer of the project is Invenergy (private).
- More from the press release here.

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. Data point on continued backlog adds for IEA, with Invenergy as a strong developer partner in past and future projects.

D/RGGI/VA – Outgoing AG issues opinion asserting Youngkin cannot withdraw from RGGI

- "In an important official opinion issued at the request of Delegates Charniele Herring and Rip Sullivan, Attorney General Mark R. Herring says that "the Governor may not repeal or eliminate, through an executive order or other action, the enacted statutes and regulations pertaining to the Commonwealth's participation in the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative and/or a market-based trading program like the Regional Greenhouse Gas

Provided for the exclusive use of Lindsay Cox at Exelon Corp on 06-May-2022 11:35 AM.

Initiative, or do away with the requirement that electricity producers hold carbon dioxide allowances that equal the amount of their carbon dioxide emissions." -release

- "As Attorney General Herring explains in his opinion, according to the separation of powers doctrine, "the Constitution of Virginia does not grant the Governor the power to suspend laws, in fact it requires the opposite that '[t]he Governor shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.'" He adds that the Constitution "provides '[t]hat all power of suspending laws, or the execution of laws, by any authority, without consent of the representatives of the people, is injurious to their rights, and ought not to be exercised.'" Attorney General Herring also cites one of his previous opinions, explaining that "'the Governor may not unilaterally direct, by any means, that a validly adopted regulation that has the force of law be suspended or ignored.'" - release
- More HERE.
- Dominion had earlier moved to adjust the associated rider HERE.

Guggenheim takeaway: No comment on the legal positions in the opinion, but not a surprise to us given the experience in PA and the sensitivities around RGGI for Youngkin. We do not see this as a utility issue – this is political.

RGGI/PA – Governor vetoes bill seeking to halt RGGI process

- The governor vetoed Senate Concurrent Regulatory Review Resolution 1.
- "I am vetoing, disapproving, and returning the Concurrent Resolution because Final Form Regulation 7-559 is a vital step for Pennsylvania to reduce carbon emissions and achieve our climate goals. Addressing the global climate crisis is one of the most important and critical challenges we face." – Wolf
- More HERE.

Guggenheim takeaway: Completely as expected.

ERCOT – ISO Staff docket update on Phase 1 process with PUCT

- "The timeline estimates for each market design element are calculated on a stand-alone basis; therefore, the timelines do not necessarily imply expected implementation dates. While ERCOT staff went through exercises to determine an approximate amount of time required to complete each task, ERCOT and its vendors cannot do all the work for each project simultaneously. Thus, each task needs a priority to signal which items are the most important when managing constraints and risks within the portfolio of projects." – Staff
- More HERE.

Guggenheim takeaway: An excellent overview of the Phase 1 changes and implementation, with a useful schedule of major proejcts on page 11 of the letter.

(1) Regulated utilities deliver power to end-use customers via regulated transmission & distribution (T&D) infrastructure; vertically integrated utilities with regulated or mostly contracted generation are also included.
(2) Local Gas Distribution Companies (LDCs), as well as diversified utilities with a business mix largely comprised of gas infrastructure and related activities (i.e., LDC franchises, interstate pipelines, and/or other gas midstream activities).
(3) Integrated utilities own and operate regulated T&D franchises, as well as un-regulated power generation with commodity exposure.
(4) IPPs operate merchant (i.e., un-regulated, non-utility) power plants that compete to sell power in wholesale markets or through retail marketing businesses.
(5) Mult-Industry Utilities operate some combination of regulated electric and/or gas utilities, in addtion to substantial non-power unregulated activities (i.e. midstream, renewable development, energy trading, etc.).

Exelon Corporation

(NYSE: EXC)

Exelon's analyst day - raising estimates and valuation of EXC ex CEG

Summary:
We're attracted to EXC's large $52B T&D only utility rate base growing at a premium 8.1% CAGR through highly fragmented capex with contemporaneous recovery. ComEd's 2020 deferred prosecution agreement (DPA) is likely to offset EXC's ESG edge, at least for now, though we acknowledge EXC's major ethics and compliance reforms since the DPA. We see AEE and PEG (after its nuke sale) as the closest public comps for EXC post the CEG spin-off (Feb 1), but it could take time for EXC to trade at a meaningful '24 P/E premium given the sharp (~13%) YoY growth in our '24 EPS estimate to be decided by IL regulators only in late '23. Therefore, for now, we value EXC at our '24 anchor P/E of 18x with no premium. Our $61 PT for EXC (EXC+CEG) remains unchanged, but we now value EXC (post CEG) at $49 (up from ~$48 previously). We reiterate our Buy rating.

Highlights

~8% EPS/DPS growth from large wires-only utilities: EXC's large $52B T&D only utility rate base (with only 14% related to gas LDCs) should grow at a premium 8.1% CAGR for 2022-2025 through highly fragmented capex, with the largest project accounting for just 1.1% of EXC's 5-year $13B capex. Through 2023, ~98% of EXC's regulated capex should be recoverable through formula rates, riders and multi-year rate cases. Starting in 2024, EXC's ComEd (IL ~36% of rate base) should transition to multi-year rate plans with likely sharply higher allowed ROEs. ComEd's current ROE is ~7.9% with IL gas LDCs (under forward test years) recently receiving 9.6-9.7% in allowed ROEs. Our 2024-2025 EPS estimates reflect a 9.2% allowed/realized ROE at ComEd representing a 130 bps from the current level, but a 400-500 bps discount to gas ROEs for decoupling and annual reconciliations of revenues under multi-year plans.

Tweaking estimates: Ahead of the spin-off of Constellation (CEG) on Feb 1, we removed its earnings from our EXC model. Our updated EXC-only '21/'22/'23/'24/'25 EPS estimates are $2.12/2.26/2.40/2.71/2.92 vs. $2.13/2.26/2.40/2.65/2.79. The higher '24/'25 estimates are driven by higher/updated capex/rate base projections as our previous estimates already reflected the ROE boost at ComEd starting in '24. Our estimates imply an 8.2%/7.5% EPS/DPS CAGR for 2022-2025 vs. 6.9%/5.7% on average for all 19 regulated electric/gas utilities under our coverage - please see inside for more details.

Valuation: For now, EXC's premium EPS/DPS growth prospects don't seem to translate into a premium P/E (~3% discount on our 2024 EPS), or at least that's our best estimate on the allocation of EXC's current share price between its regulated utilities (~$45) and CEG (~$10.50). ComEd's 2020 deferred prosecution agreement is likely to offset the ESG edge, at least for now, though we acknowledge EXC's/ComEd's major ethics and compliance reforms since then. We see AEE and PEG (after its nuke sale) as the closest public comps for EXC post the CEG spin off, but it could take time for EXC to trade at a meaningful '24 P/E premium, if only because of the sharp (~13%) YoY growth in our '24 EPS estimate to be decided by IL regulators in late '23. Therefore, for now, we value EXC at our '24 anchor P/E of 18x with no premium. Our PT for EXC (EXC+CEG) remains unchanged at $61, but we now value EXC (post the CEG spin) at $49 (up from ~$48 previously).

Company Description:
EXC operates six electric/gas T&D utilities in IL, PA, MD, NJ, DE, D.C. and VA) serving 9.1 million customer accounts. The spin off of Constellation (CEG) should be complete on Feb 1, '22.

EXC vs. other regulated electric/gas utilities: Premium EPS/DPS for now doesn't translate into a premium P/E

Exelon Corporation (EXC) Disclosures

I, Angie Storozynski, hereby certify: (1) that all of the views expressed in this report accurately reflect my personal views about any and all of the subject securities or issuers; and (2) that no part of my compensation was, is, or will be, directly or indirectly, related to the specific recommendations or views expressed in this report.

As with all employees of Seaport Global Securities LLC, a portion of our analysts' compensation is paid from the total collection of revenues from all areas of the firm including but not limited to Investment Banking and Sales and Trading departments. In no instance are research analysts' compensation directly derived from Investment Banking revenues.

Risks & Considerations for Exelon Corporation (EXC)

ComEd's ROE remains linked to 30yr T yield until 2023: EXC's distribution ROE in IL (for ComEd) changes daily and is based on the 30 year T yield plus 580 bps. A recently adopted energy bill should break this formulaic ROE calculation starting in 2024 which in turn should result in a sharply higher allowed ROE for ComEd. Yet, we won't know ComEd's new rate plan until late 2023.

Growing electric capex and customer bill affordability: The service territory of EXC's regulated electric utilities are large cities, and many of their customers are eligible for financial assistance for their electricity bills. While EXC's cities push for electrification of transportation and building heating, the bill affordability could limit EXC's rate base growth prospects.

Nuclear PTCs: Our base case assumption for EXC/Constellation excludes any potential benefit from federal nuclear PTCs which could be very meaningful, especiallly in 2022. We assume that the incremental money should be spent on nuclear M&A and organic growth as opposed to a special dividend or buybacks. We won't know for sure until the PTCs are awarded, however.

Risks & Considerations for Public Service Enterprise Group Inc. (PEG)

Lower allowed ROE for electric/gas distribution and transmission due to low market interest rates: Equity returns/ROE of regulated electric/gas/water utilities are indirectly linked to the 10-year Treasury yield. The average allowed ROE of a regulated utility in the US dropped just 25 bps since 2008 despite a 152 bps drop in the average 10-year T yield over this period. However, state utility regulators could sharply reduce allowed ROEs of regulated utilities going forward which currently average 9.75% average. The allowed ROE together with an equity ratio are the key drivers of regulated utility earnings. PSE&G has already agreed to lower its base transmission ROE to 9.9% from 11.2%, and our estimates already remove the current 50 bps RTO ROE adder for electric transmission starting early 2022. PS&EG's distribution ROE could fall along with the next distribution rate case in 2025 below the current 9.6%.

Forward power prices could fall from current elevated levels: The recent spike in natural gas prices has sharply elevated forward power prices across the US, especially for 2022 and (to a lesser extent) 2023. PEG is heavily hedged for 2022 and likely partly hedged for 2023. PEG could, however, see some incremental uplift to its power earnings from a federal nuclear PTC (tax benefit) if adopted by the federal government.

Sharply higher natural gas and power prices could limit upside to PSE&G's T&D capex: The recent spike in natural gas prices, if sustained, could lead to some electric/gas bill pressures for PSE&G's customers. Those in turn could limit upside to PSE&G's capex plans.

Constellation's analyst day - lowering estimates and valuation

Summary:
This long-awaited update focused on the clean emissions profile and longevity of Constellation's (CEG's) nukes, as well as its strong balance sheet. Yet, there was limited emphasis on CEG's strong FCF generation and capital deployment, or management's (hopefully) innovative approach to maximize shareholder value. It might be because CEG awaits a politically sensitive congressional action on nuclear tax credits (PTCs) and its pursuit of additional nuclear plants isn't ready for announcements. We heard some examples of organic growth on the retail side with new 24x7 clean energy products for C&I customers, but with no indication on potential EBITDA/FCF uplift. Below-market power hedges and higher operating costs weigh on 2022 EBITDA/FCF, but near-term net debt targets are better than we expected and 2023 (and beyond) EBITDA/FCF look attractive. Based on our updated estimates, CEG now trades largely in line with NRG and VST on '23 FCF yield (~17%), but offers a large nuclear PTC option. We trimmed our PT for CEG to $37.50 from $41 ($12.50 from $13.50 per EXC share) as we await more details on nuclear PTCs and M&A, and as we brace for shareholder rotation. We stick with our Buy rating and our $61 PT for EXC remains unchanged.

Highlights

Capital allocation: CEG wants to be a consolidator of the nuclear power industry, just after paying down ~$1.9B in debt in '22 ($1.02B in maturities and $0.9B in term loans) and funding ~$180MM in dividends. That should leave nothing for share buybacks in '22, but should reduce CEG's '22 net debt to ~2x '22 EBITDA. CEG could pay up to $2.8B for PEG's nukes in NJ/PA and remain close to the 2x leverage by YE'23, especially given likely cost/revenue synergies. For now, our model assumes $800MM in share buybacks in '23 followed by $1B annually in addition to ~$830MM for 2022-2025 dividends.

Reducing estimates for CEG: We sharply reduced our EBITDA expectations, especially for 2022-2023, on additional below-market power hedges and higher operating costs. Our new '22/'23/'24/'25 EBITDA projections are $2,519MM/2,767MM/2,875MM/2,987MM down from $3,145MM/3,114M/3,232MM/3,304MM, previously. Our new FCF expectations are largely unchanged for 2023-2025, with a hit to 2022 driven by lower EBITDA and deferred '21 capex. Our new '22/'23/'24 FCF expectations are $1,230MM/1,745MM/1,950MM/2,051MM down from $1,920MM/1,889MM/2,007MM/2,079MM. Management didn't provide updated info on "other earnings" (~$350MM in '21), but given sharply reduced investments at Constellation Technology Ventures, our projections now assume $100MM/year.

Valuation of CEG: We trimmed our PT for Constellation (CEG) to $12.50 from $13.50 per EXC's share ($37.50 per CEG share). Our PT remains based on 6.0x '24 EV/EBITDA without any recognition for CEG's likely nuclear PTC benefit or growth through acquisition of additional nuclear plants. The $1/share drop in the CEG valuation despite sharply lower '22/'23 EBITDA expectations is driven by lower net debt expectations. Assuming that EXC's regulated utilities less parent trade at an industry-average multiple (~17.5x in '24), CEG is currently valued at ~$10/EXC share (or $31.70/CEG share). Based on that price, CEG currently trades at ~5.6x '23 EV/EBITDA vs. 6.0x for VST and 7.3x for NRG, we estimate. CEG's EBITDA to FCF conversion is weaker than that for NRG and VST, however, and based on '23 FCF yields all three stocks trade ~17%.

Company Description:
EXC operates six electric/gas T&D utilities in the Mid-Atlantic and the Midwest (IL, PA, MD, NJ, DE, D.C. and VA) serving 9.1 million customer accounts. Separately, through Constellation, EXC operates ~32GW in merchant power plants (including 19GW of nuclear plants) and serves 210 TWhs of retail/wholesale load (70% C&I customers). The spin-off of Constellation (CEG) should be completed on Feb 1, 2022.

Exelon Corporation (EXC) Disclosures

I, Angie Storozynski, hereby certify: (1) that all of the views expressed in this report accurately reflect my personal views about any and all of the subject securities or issuers; and (2) that no part of my compensation was, is, or will be, directly or indirectly, related to the specific recommendations or views expressed in this report.

As with all employees of Seaport Global Securities LLC, a portion of our analysts' compensation is paid from the total collection of revenues from all areas of the firm including but not limited to Investment Banking and Sales and Trading departments. In no instance are research analysts' compensation directly derived from Investment Banking revenues.

Risks & Considerations for Exelon Corporation (EXC)

Spin-off of Constellation and future earnings power of the separate businesses: Our PT now assumes that EXC should spin-off its merchant power/competitive business (Constellation or ExGen) by Feb 1, 2022 now that the transaction received its last needed regulatory approval. We have very limited visibility into ExGen's/Constellation's earnings power given no disclosure on power/gas hedges and operating expenses beyond 2021, especially in light of ExGen's recent acquisition of EDF's stake in three nuclear plants in NY and MD.

Nuclear PTCs: Our base case assumption for EXC/Constellation exclude any potential benefit from federal nuclear PTCs which could be very meaningful, especiallly in 2022. We assume that the incremental money should be spent on maintenance and growth capex at Constellation's nukes and deleveraging of its balance sheet as opposed to a special dividend or buybacks. We won't know for sure until the PTCs are awarded, however.

Future dividends: We assume that post the spin-off, the dividend of Exelon and Constellation should exceed the current $1.53 dividend of EXC, but the dividend policy of Constellation remains unclear to us.

ComEd's ROE remains linked to 30yr T yield until 2023: EXC's distribution ROE in IL (for ComEd) changes daily and is based on the 30 year T yield plus 580 bps. A recently adopted energy bill should break this formulaic ROE calculation starting in 2024 which in turn should result in a sharply higher allowed ROE for ComEd.

Risks & Considerations for NRG Energy, Inc. (NRG)

Forward retail margins and volumes could fall: Over the last 14 years, NRG demonstrated its ability to grow retail margins largely regardless of the power price environment. However, the margins are close to historical highs and any meaningful volatility in power prices (especially in ERCOT) or competition from other electric providers could weigh on NRG's retail margins. The retail margins could also eventually fall along with ongoing decline in forward power prices, especially in PJM/Midwest and the Mid-Atlantic. Separately, NRG expects to grow its retail volumes, meaningfully, which could be difficult during/after the COVID-19 pandemic.
NRG remains a below IG company and its cost of debt could rise along with higher credit spreads: While the company has been paying down debt and expects upgrade to IG by the end of 2020/early 2021, NRG's cost of debt should suffer from the recent expansion of credit spreads for below IG companies.

Risks & Considerations for Public Service Enterprise Group Inc. (PEG)

Lower allowed ROE for electric/gas distribution and transmission due to low market interest rates: Equity returns/ROE of regulated electric/gas/water utilities are indirectly linked to the 10-year Treasury yield. The average allowed ROE of a regulated utility in the US dropped just 25 bps since 2008 despite a 152 bps drop in the average 10-year T yield over this period. However, state utility regulators could sharply reduce allowed ROEs of regulated utilities going forward which currently average 9.75% average. The allowed ROE together with an equity ratio are the key drivers of regulated utility earnings. PSE&G has already agreed to lower its base transmission ROE to 9.9% from 11.2%, and our estimates already remove the current 50 bps RTO ROE adder for electric transmission starting early 2022. PS&EG's distribution ROE could fall along with the next distribution rate case in 2025 below the current 9.6%.
Forward power prices could fall from current elevated levels: The recent spike in natural gas prices has sharply elevated forward power prices across the US, especially for 2022 and (to a lesser extent) 2023. PEG is heavily hedged for 2022 and likely partly hedged for 2023. PEG could, however, see some incremental uplift to its power earnings from a federal nuclear PTC (tax benefit) if adopted by the federal government.
Sharply higher natural gas and power prices could limit upside to PSE&G's T&D capex: The recent spike in natural gas prices, if sustained, could lead to some electric/gas bill pressures for PSE&G's customers. Those in turn could limit upside to PSE&G's capex plans.

Risks & Considerations for Vistra Corp. (VST)

Forward spark spreads/capacity prices could fall further in PJM/ISO-New England: With weak power demand (even before COVID), growth in subsidized renewables, and cheap local natural gas, we are likely to see ongoing declines in forward power and capacity prices in the Midwest and the Northeast. While VST's gas fired plants in the regions could benefit somewhat from lower gas prices (through higher margins), newer/more efficient gas plants and subsidized renewables should weigh on VST's power earnings in the region.
Forward retail margins and volumes could fall: VST's retail margins are close to historical highs and any meaningful volatility in power prices (especially in ERCOT) or competition from other electric providers could weigh on VST's retail margins. The retail margins could also eventually fall along with ongoing decline in forward power prices, especially in PJM/Midwest and the Mid-Atlantic. Separately, VST expects to grow its retail volumes, meaningfully, which could be difficult during/after the COVID-19 pandemic.
VST remains a below IG company and its cost of debt could rise along with higher credit spreads: While the company has been paying down debt and expects upgrade to IG by the end of 2021, VST's cost of debt should suffer from the recent expansion of credit spreads for below IG companies.

Exelon Corp | North America

Constellation: Investor Day Takeaways

Stock Rating	Industry View	Price Target
Overweight	Attractive	$74.00

We view favorably CEG's very strong balance sheet position, dividend policy, highly contracted cash flows, and multiple growth opportunities / capital allocation options – factors that warrant ExGen/CEG a premium vs. other IPPs, in our view.

Yesterday, Exelon hosted an Investor Day for its merchant business ExGen (or Constellation, post separation) where we found commentary around balance sheet quality and capital allocation as particularly encouraging. The company expects to generate $2.8-3.2b in FCF pre-growth in 2022-'23, which coupled with $1.75b cash infusion from EXC at separation (planned for Feb. 1st) drives a very healthy cash position, in our view. Post debt repayment, dividends (more on this below), O&M/capex, and identified growth opportunities the company estimates $1.8-2.2b in funds available for additional growth opportunities (not yet identified) and/or available for capital return for shareholders via a special dividend and/or buybacks, which we expect to be received well by investors. Other positive updates included: 1) their dividend strategy; 2) ability to lever up if needed, with the company estimating an FFO/Debt metric in 2022 of 45/35% for S&P/Moody's, respectively, vs. a downgrade threshold level of ~20-25%; 3) commentary around growth opportunities at double-digit IRRs, including acquisitions of merchant nuclear plants, repowering of renewable assets, and production of green hydrogen; and 4) new GHG and methane reduction targets. On the other hand, 2022 gross margin and EBITDA guidance came in below our estimates, while 2023 gross margin was in-line but there could be modest downside to our 2023 EBITDA estimate as well. We are revising our model but overall anticipate lower 2022 financials to be offset by other items such as a slightly lower discount rate driven by a more balanced capital structure, vs. our 30/70 debt/equity assumption, and potentially higher useful lives associated to the nuclear fleet as the company files for 20yr nuclear license extensions.

Financial Guidance:

- Initiated gross margin guidance of $7,350m for '22 and $7,650m for '23
- Initiated '22 Adjt EBITDA guidance of $2,350m - $2,750m
- Generation hedged at 93/75/52% in 22/23/24, including IL carbon mitigation credits (CMCs)
- Capex of $1,750m in '22, $1,550m in '23, and $1,300m in '24

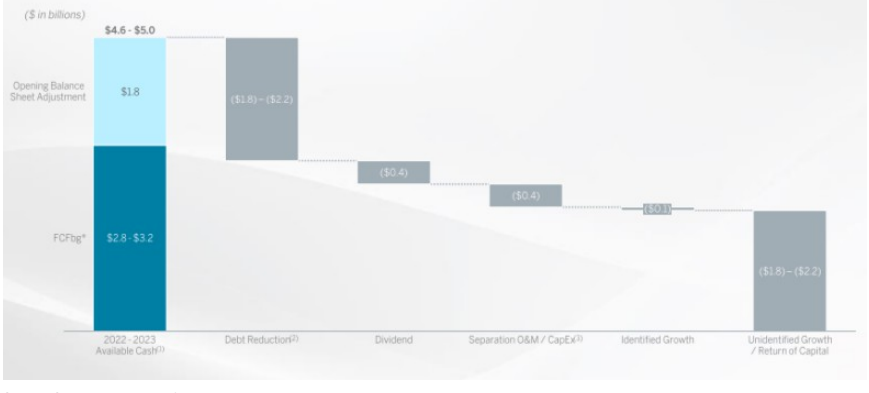
- $180m in dividend payments in '22 and +10% annual growth target through '24
- '22 FFO/Debt target metrics of 45% for S&P and 35% for Moody's vs. downgrade thresholds of ~20-25%
- '22 Debt/EBITDA target of 2x book, 1.5x ex-non-recourse debt
- $4.6-5b available cash in '22-'23

We particularly like the company's dividend payment approach, with a fixed, nominal amount of $180m in 2022 growing +10% through 2024. The company expects to return 10-20% of FCF before growth to shareholders in the form of dividends. For 2022 they have set a $180m target, which implies $0.55/shr annual dividend (based on ~330m share count, or 1/3rd of EXC's share count), and a +10% growth rate through 2024. While management is pursuing various growth endeavours, absent accretive growth opportunities, the company is targeting to return available cash to shareholders in the form of buybacks or a special dividend; for 2022-'23 this amount would be of $1.8-2.2b (see Exhibit 1). In the event of share buybacks, dividends-per-share would increase, a dynamic that various investors appreciate.

Exhibit 1: 2022-'23 Expected Uses of Cash



Source: Company presentation

We believe investors currently under-appreciate the contracted nature of ExGen's cash flows and investment opportunities. Based on EXC's latest closing price of ~$56/shr and our valuation of the RemainCo of ~$50 (based on a 10% premium to utility peers), the implied value of ExGen in the market is of $6, or a ~4.5x EV/EBITDA multiple using 2023 consensus EBITDA estimates of $2.5b (or 5.3x using a 5% premium to value the RemainCo). This implied valuation compares to the IPPs' (VST and NRG) avg. of 7.3x and significantly under-appreciates the contracted nature of the cash flows, with 56% of power generation receiving financial support from state/federal programs and with a total generation that is hedged at 93/75/52% over 2022/'23/'24, respectively (see Exhibit 2). Factors that in our view warrant a premium to the IPPs include: 1) a significantly cleaner generation fleet with no coal exposure and minimal exposure to gas, 2) the low risk associated to state/federal payments that warrant a lower discount rate when valuing these cash flows, 3) footprint diversification, 4) strong balance sheet and investment-grade rating, and 5) growth opportunities via acquisitions of merchant nuclear plants that also receive government support (we would note that the company has an excellent track record of improving the operational performance of previously acquired plants and monetizing the associated benefits, as well as strong customer satisfaction/retention scores), repowering of renewable assets, and production of green hydrogen at the nuclear facilities. Our current valuation of EXC of $74/shr assigns $24 equity value to ExGen, with an implied ~10.5x EV/EBITDA multiple.

Provided for the exclusive use of Lindsay Cox at Exelon Corp on 06-May-2022 11:34 AM.

The company also announced new targets around their ESG strategy. Particularly related to the "E", management announced a 100% carbon-free owned generation target by 2040 with an interim goal of 95% by 2030, a 100% reduction target in operational emissions by 2040 with an interim target of 65% by 2030 from 2020 levels, and a 30% methane emissions reduction target by 2030, also from 2020 levels. While we note that the targets around GHG emissions are aggressive, ~90% of the ESG fund flows today come from European funds, some of which have restrictions on investing in companies with exposure to nuclear power. Nonetheless, the European Commission announced it has begun consultations on the proposal to include nuclear (as well as gas) in the EU taxonomy. According to our ESG team (see note here), the draft is being reviewed by EU countries and advisors, and may change before it is published later in January. Member states must provide feedback by January 12th. Once published, the European Parliament and Council will have four months (with an optional additional two months if requested) to review the document and may object with a majority, but not amend the document. Regardless of whether taxonomy rules change, we expect focus on ESG criteria from US investors to continue to evolve, and EXC to rank well on their screens.

Key beneficiary in our coverage universe from passage of the Build Back Better legislation. As we have noted in various notes, we see EXC as a key beneficiary of the BBB legislation, which includes a production tax credit for existing nuclear plants that if passed would de-risk ExGen cash flows even further, and that we quantify could add ~$450m in annualized incremental EBITDA. The extension of wind and solar tax credits as well as the creation of a subsidy for green hydrogen would also benefit ExGen as the business is looking into repowering some of their renewable assets (starting this year) and, as mentioned previously, producing green hydrogen at the nuclear facilities. They are already exploring this at the Nine Mile nuclear plant.

Items to track for ExGen in particular: 1) Close of the businesses' separation on

Provided for the exclusive use of Lindsay Cox at Exelon Corp on 06-May-2022 11:34 AM.

Feb. 1st, 2) news flow around the BBB legislation, 3) power market reform in Texas, 4) EU taxonomy changes, and 5) pricing trends around voluntary renewable energy credits (RECs) in the markets that they operate as a proxy for customer demand for clean electricity.

Morgan Stanley is acting as financial advisor to the Special Transaction Committee of the Board of Directors of Exelon Corp. ("Exelon") in connection with its plan to separate into two independent publicly-traded companies as announced on February 24, 2021. The transaction is subject to final approval by Exelon's Board of Directors, a Form 10 registration statement being declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission, regulatory approvals and satisfaction of other conditions. The transaction is subject to approval by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and New York Public Service Commission. There can be no assurance that any separation transaction will ultimately occur. Please refer to the notes at the end of this report.

Risk Reward – Exelon Corp (EXC.O)

PRICE TARGET $74.00

We value the regulated utilities' 2023 earnings by applying the large-cap regulated group P/E multiple at a 10% premium to account for above average earnings growth of 6-8% through 2025. Separately, using a DCF approach, we value ExGen's nuclear subsidies (ZECs) at $3-4, and ExGen's uncontracted cash flows at ~$20 (bear/bull range of $0/$32).

OVERWEIGHT THESIS

EXC offers above avg. utility earnings growth of 6-8% through 2025 and owns a large, highly contracted, unregulated merchant fleet that the market currently prices at little value. This compares to our valuation of Exgen of ~$20/shr ex-ZECs (bear/bull of $0/$32). We believe the market underappreciates ExGen's unlevered FCF generation of ~$2b/yr., margin stability from the nuclear state subsidies, and the re-rating that could result from potential carbon legislation in the US.

Special Situation:	Positive

BULL CASE $91.00

21.7x Utility EPS, $36/share ExGen

Differences from our Base Case include: 1) Earnings at the regulated utilities that grow at 10%, and 2) Higher terminal year assumptions for power market prices used in ExGen's DCF and the passage of a $15/MWh federal nuke PTC.

BASE CASE $74.00

20.8x Utility 2023 EPS, ~$25/share ExGen

We value the regulated utilities' 2023 earnings by applying the large-cap regulated group P/E multiple at a 10% premium to account for above average earnings growth of 6-8% through 2025. Separately, using a DCF approach, we value ExGen's nuclear subsidies (ZECs) at $3-4, and ExGen's uncontracted cash flows at ~$20.

BEAR CASE $39.00

18.9x Utility EPS, $3/share ExGen

Differences from our Base Case include: 1) Lower earnings at the regulated utilities driven by a 9.5% ROE and a 45% equity ratio, 2) An in-line P/E multiple to the peer group, and 3) No earnings associated with ExGen's assets (the unsecured cash flows). ExGen's valuation of ~$3/shr reflects the nuclear subsidies (ZECs) that are currently secured.

Morgan Stanley sells to and buys from customers the securities/instruments of companies covered in Morgan Stanley Research on a principal basis. Morgan Stanley may have a position in the debt of the Company or instruments discussed in this report. Morgan Stanley trades or may trade as principal in the debt securities (or in related derivatives) that are the subject of the debt research report.
Certain disclosures listed above are also for compliance with applicable regulations in non-US jurisdictions.

STOCK RATINGS

Morgan Stanley uses a relative rating system using terms such as Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated or Underweight (see definitions below). Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold and sell. Investors should carefully read the definitions of all ratings used in Morgan Stanley Research. In addition, since Morgan Stanley Research contains more complete information concerning the analyst's views, investors should carefully read Morgan Stanley Research, in its entirety, and not infer the contents from the rating alone. In any case, ratings (or research) should not be used or relied upon as investment advice. An investor's decision to buy or sell a stock should depend on individual circumstances (such as the investor's existing holdings) and other considerations.

Global Stock Ratings Distribution

(as of December 31, 2021)
The Stock Ratings described below apply to Morgan Stanley's Fundamental Equity Research and do not apply to Debt Research produced by the Firm.
For disclosure purposes only (in accordance with FINRA requirements), we include the category headings of Buy, Hold, and Sell alongside our ratings of Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight. Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold, and sell but represent recommended relative weightings (see definitions below). To satisfy regulatory requirements, we correspond Overweight, our most positive stock rating, with a buy recommendation; we correspond Equal-weight and Not-Rated to hold and Underweight to sell recommendations, respectively.

Exelon Corp.

With or Without You: Takeaways from the Exelon and Constellation Analyst Days

Neutral

EXC, EXC US
Price: $55.62
11 Jan 2022

As the Exelon/Constellation February 1 spin date approaches, we provide takeaways from this week's Exelon and Constellation (formerly Exelon Generation) Analyst days. For Exelon's utilities, we see growing electrification trends, as highlighted in our 2022 Outlook, supporting a premium growth platform, including a $29bn investment opportunity set. Additionally, the combination of an 8.1% rate base CAGR, 6-8% annual EPS and dividend growth, and limited near-term regulatory actions all underpin a solid outlook, in our view. Moreover, IL's return to more traditional utility rate-making versus current electric ROEs pegged to the 30-year Treasury could provide earnings upside at the back end of the 2022-2025 plan. That said, legacy ComEd issues and the utility's deferred prosecution agreement (set to end in 2023) represent one potential ongoing drag, despite EXC's notable steps to rectify past practices. Separately, Constellation's clean energy focused business, including 21 GW of nuclear plants and emerging new energy transition related opportunities, should appeal to ESG focused investors, even though many of these investments remain longer dated.

- New EXC utility capital plan highlights growing electrification opportunities. EXC's revised ~8.1% 2022-2025 rate base growth represents the driving force behind its 6-8% EPS growth CAGR over the same period. The new capital plan stands ~$2.0bn above EXC's prior 2021-2024 plan, with 2023 and 2024 rate base +$0.7bn and +$1.7bn higher, respectively. EXC's suite of utilities all appear well positioned to capture incremental investments supported by growing electrification trends and broader grid transformation to accommodate new renewables. Moreover, as inflation concerns spread through the economy, we see heightened risks for utilities with large near-term rate asks. Notably on this front, EXC's near-term regulatory calendar stands relatively light until ComEd's filing under the new IL framework, expected early next year.

- Changing IL regulatory framework could drive earnings upside. Despite historically challenged jurisdictions, EXC has made significant strides in recent years to improve both MD and DC regulatory frameworks as well as earned ROE prospects through new multi-year planning processes. Moving forward, EXC's consolidated earned ROE could improve an additional 40bps with IL's formula rate framework set to expire at the end of 2023, assuming ComEd's distribution ROE returns to industry averages between 9-10%. In our view, this ROE revision up from the sub 8% allowed under the current framework should provide an earnings tailwind versus the existing plan, although management only provided a high level view of EXC's IL rate assumptions embedded in the EPS CAGR guidance.

- ComEd fallout represents a question mark. With ~18 months left on ComEd's deferred prosecution agreement with the DOJ, EXC stressed the improved internal controls recently put in place and best-in-class governance structure. Nonetheless, we believe legacy IL issues could remain a partial overhang on the stock, especially given continued pushback within the state. That said, the successful transition away from formula rates and return to more traditional utility regulation over the next couple of years could highlight improved standing in the state after the drawn out process to secure incremental nuclear support. We see next year's rate proceeding as a potential test of local sentiment.

- Constellation could draw significant ESG interest, but likely takes time to materialize. Constellation (formerly Exelon Generation) also hosted an analyst day on Tuesday, highlighting the benefits both of existing nuclear generation assets and future opportunities to support the energy transition across H2, CCS, SMRs, and more. Given the early stage nature of these opportunities, Constellation deferred a more detailed 2022-2023 capital allocation strategy for later in 2022. In the interim, we believe the company likely focuses capital return to shareholders across buybacks and special dividends, though appeared relatively non-committal on the form and timing. Moreover, the new company could be one of the biggest beneficiaries under a reworked Build Back Better framework including support for nuclear generation and hydrogen, and we see a potential to advance these elements this year independent of BBB's ultimate success. Finally, Constellation sees M&A as a core part of the company's strategy given the company's superior nuclear operations track record and scale-related benefits.

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period.
J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:
J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight [Over the next six to twelve months, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the analyst's (or the analyst's team's) coverage universe.] Neutral [Over the next six to twelve months, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the analyst's (or the analyst's team's) coverage universe.] Underweight [Over the next six to twelve months, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the analyst's (or the analyst's team's) coverage universe.] Not Rated (NR): J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap equity research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's research website, www.jpmorganmarkets.com.

Constellation Analyst Day – We Ain't Gotta Dream No More, Man

Bottom Line:

Constellation (CEG) management held its own analyst day today where the company outlined its post-spin business strategy and opportunities, updated gross margin and EBITDA outlook as well as stand-alone asset allocation framework. Based on today's incremental disclosures we are raising our EXC consolidated 2023 and 2024 EPS to $3.41 and $3.55, respectively. However, our consolidated target price is unchanged at $63/share. Although our EBITDA for Constellation is higher in both 2023 and 2024, our net debt assumption is also higher which leaves our valuation unchanged in our SOTP valuation framework.

Key Points

While the longer-term value drivers for Constellation remain intact, we believe investors were modestly disappointed with the wider guidance range for 2022 EBITDA ($2,350-2,750mm) given the company is 93% hedged for the year and discrete capital allocation guidance is likely not forthcoming until some time in the second half of the year.

Management provided a higher-level asset allocation framework along with its outlook for cumulative FCF across 2022 and 2023 totaling $1.8-2.2bn that would be available for growth and/or return to shareholders. This is net of an initial $180mm common dividend which is expected to grow in absolute terms by 10%/annum and would represent ~10-20% of the company's avail. cash flow. This initial $0.55 dividend suggests 1.3% current yield assuming ~$14bn equity value for CEG post spin.

The company's asset allocation discussion earmarked $1.8-2.2bn of debt reduction in support of its targeted investment-grade leverage metrics. With downgrade thresholds in the low 20% at both S&P (BBB- FFO/Debt) and Moody's (Baa2 CFO Pre-WC/Debt), it currently has ample headroom in its ratings grid. Although as of 9/30/21 the final Form 10 showed net debt of ~$3,741mm, the quarter-end snapshot was lower due to the sharp move up in commodity prices in 3Q21 and associated collateral postings under the company's hedges which materially increase the company's cash balances. With the subsequent pull back in commodities in November and December, this cash balance declined and with the company's planned debt reduction in 2022 management sees its year-end 2022 leverage in the 2x debt/adjusted EBITDA range or ~$5.1bn by our estimate including non-recourse debt.

We maintain our Outperform rating. Although EXC shares were one of the best-performing names in 2021, we continue to see scope for further multiple expansion in both securities post the upcoming split next month.

Our Thesis

We believe pending IL clean energy legislation has the potential to materially move investor perception of EXC toward its large-cap regulated peers, which currently trade at a meaningful premium to EXC on 2024 P/E based on our estimates. Our valuation implies investors are paying very little for EXC's high-quality generation fleet that could see its longer-term earnings profile derisked.

Scenarios

Valuation

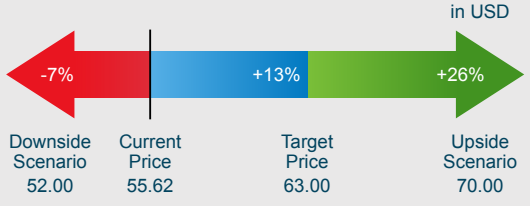
We value EXC on a sum-of-the-parts valuation, which utilizes an EV/EBITDA multiple for the company's generation and marketing business. We apply a base P/E multiple to our 2024 estimated earnings from the company's utility businesses consistent with the rest of our coverage universe.

Upside Scenario $70.00

Our upside scenario implies an improved quark spread for the company's nuclear assets and better-than-expected rate base growth and earned ROEs at the company's utility through better cost control.

Downside Scenario $52.00

Our low case or downside reflects an adverse outcome in IL, sustained sub-$2.00 natural gas prices, and slower growth at the utilities combined with further deteriation in IL following the company's recent DOJ deferred prosecution agreement for its IL utility.



Key Catalysts

We believe IL legislation, which has been delayed due to COVID-19, still could be taken up in the Spring Legislative Session in the General Assembly by mid-2021.

Company Description

Exelon is the largest competitive U.S. power generator, with over 30,000 MW of owned capacity. Its Constellation business unit provides energy products and services to business, public, and residential sector customers. Exelon's utilities deliver electricity and natural gas to 10 million customers in Delaware, DC, Illinois, Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

Constellation Analyst Day – We Ain't Gotta Dream No More, Man

Constellation (CEG) management held its own analyst day today where the company outlined its post-spin business strategy and opportunities, updated gross margin and EBITDA outlook as well as stand-alone asset allocation framework. While the longer-term value drivers for Constellation remain intact, we believe investors were modestly disappointed with the wider guidance range for 2022 EBITDA ($2,350-2,750mm) given the company is 93% hedged for the year and discrete capital allocation guidance is likely not forthcoming until some time in the second half of the year. With the analyst day in the rearview mirror the company will now be on the road meeting with investors concurrent with the "when issued" trading of both EXC and CEG shares (likely next week). With the record date set for January 20, the distribution date and first day of trading regular way for both securities will be February 1. We maintain our Outperform rating on EXC shares. Although EXC shares were one of the best-performing names in 2021, we continue to see scope for further multiple expansion in both securities post the upcoming split next month.

Using November 30 pricing, management provided its total gross margin outlook for 2022 and 2023 of $7,350mm and $7,650mm, respectively, which includes the contracted revenues associated with capacity, ZEC and CMC yielding revenues of $2,450mm and $2,850mm for 2022 and 2023. The rise in contracted revenue into 2023 partially reflects the full year of the Illinois CMC payments and increases state program support from 33% of gross margin in 2022 to 38% in 2023. Including these CMC revenues Constellation's ratable hedging program results in a hedge profile of 93%, 75% and 52% in 2022, 2023, and 2024, respectively. The company's outlook for adjusted O&M increases about $225mm to $4,375mm in 2022, with the reversal of mitigation-related cost savings due to COVID 19 and winter storm Uri. After 2022, O&M is expected to be flat into 2023 with a modest inflationary uptick (~2.3%) into 2024. Including other opex/other income, the range for 2022 EBITDA was initiated at $2,350-2,750mm. While in line with our current $2,574mm forecast at the midpoint, we believe the wider range despite its 93% hedge profile was a modest disappointment for investors. However, we believe the outlook reflects a certain amount of conservatism by management given the spin and the recent volatility in the commodity markets.

Constellation management provided a higher-level asset allocation framework along with its outlook for cumulative FCF across 2022 and 2023 totaling $1.8-2.2bn that would be available for growth and/or return to shareholders. This is net of an initial $180mm common dividend which is expected to grow in absolute terms by 10% per annum and would represent ~10-20% of the company's available cash flow. This initial $0.55 dividend suggests a 1.3% current yield assuming ~$14bn of equity value for CEG post spin. Given the company's flexibility to buy back stock, repurchases could accelerate the dividend growth on a per share basis. Although CEG is not likely to give a discrete asset allocation guidance until the second half of 2022, the company laid out its growth-related investment opportunities in general order of timeline: 1) acquisitions of carbon-free energy including nuclear plants with supportive policy; 2) repowering/co-location of existing fleet; 3) growth in its sustainability products and services offered to C&I customers; 4) clean hydrogen production around its fleet; 5) additional technology investments; and 6) advanced nuclear technology. Any unallocated FCF would then be available to return to shareholders including share repurchases as well as special dividends. While not as common, we believe the latter return channel provides the company with additional flexibility to optimize the return associated with any capital return.

CEG's initial forecast for $1.8-2.2bn of cash available for growth/return of capital if allocated to a share repurchase, could represent up to ~13-16% of our estimated market cap for CEG of $14bn. Given the lead time associated with some of its growth initiatives and its 2022 commitment to debt reduction, we would not expect any material activity over the next 6-9 months. However, we see FCFbG rising at least $400mm to $2.2-2.6bn when the separation O&M/capex rolls off in 2024. Moreover, given the current commodity curves and the company's ratable hedging program, as EBITDA rises FCFbG will continue to move upward providing the company with incremental growth and capital return opportunities.

Also outlined in the company's asset allocation discussion is an earmark for $1.8-2.2bn of debt reduction in support of its targeted investment-grade leverage metrics. With downgrade thresholds in the low 20% at both S&P (BBB- FFO/Debt) and Moody's (Baa2 CFO Pre-WC/Debt), the company currently has ample headroom in its ratings grid. Although as of 9/30/21 the final Form 10 showed a net debt of ~$3,741mm, the quarter-end snapshot was lower due to the sharp move up in commodity prices in 3Q21 and associated collateral postings under the company's hedges which materially increase the company's cash balances. With the subsequent pull back in commodities in November and December, this cash balance declined and with the company's planned debt reduction in 2022 (term loan $1.1bn/maturities $1.0bn) management sees its year-end 2022 leverage in the 2x debt/adjusted EBITDA range or ~$5.1bn by our estimate including non-recourse debt.

Turning to business strategy, Constellation is aggressively looking at opportunities to leverage its unparalleled carbon-free generation portfolio, world-class energy solutions marketing & origination operations, and history of investing in enabling energy technology applications. As discussed above, the company expects to pursue both organic and inorganic opportunities to deploy its sizeable annual FCF generation while at the same time enabling its customer base to decarbonize economically. While the lead time on some of its opportunities including additional acquisitions of additional nuclear units, advanced nuclear technologies and getting to scale in pink hydrogen production could take longer, other areas like the repowering of 500MW of existing wind facilities and development of additional sustainable products and services to meet customer needs are likely more near term.

Enhanced Climate Commitment. With today's standalone presentation Constellation has made several commitments to advancing climate change: 1) Supply: 100% carbon free at its owned generation by 2040 with an interim goal of 95% carbon free by 2030 (subject to policy support/technology advancements); 2) Operations: 100% reduction in the company's own operation-driven emissions by 2040; and 3) Customer: Commitment to providing 100% of its customers with customer-specific information related to their GHG emission for facilities taking supply from Constellation including mitigation strategies that include 24/7 clean electric use.

Based on today's incremental disclosures we are raising our EXC consolidated 2023 and 2024 EPS to $3.41 and $3.55, respectively. However, our consolidated target price is unchanged at $63/share reflecting our SOTP valuation of $48/share for the post spin Exelon Utilities (EXC) and $14/share for the spinco Constellation Energy (CEG). Although our EBITDA for Constellation is higher in both 2023 and 2024, our net debt assumption is also higher which leaves our valuation unchanged (Exhibit 4).

Company Specific Disclosures

Disclosure 9B: BMO Capital Markets makes a market in Exelon in United States.

Methodology and Risks to Target Price/Valuation for Exelon (EXC-NSDQ)

Methodology: We value EXC using our sum-of-the-parts valuation analysis to derive our target price. Our valuation takes into account the quality of EXC generation assets relative to its peers and the company's regulated business rate base growth and funding sources.

Risks: Failure to pass a version of the "Clean Energy Jobs Act" in the upcoming legislative session that sufficiently expands financial support for EXC Gen's nuclear plants would cause us to re-evaluate our rating, all else equal. The Governor's opposition to the existing Formulaic Based Rate Plan in IL may result in a new set of regulations that could be adverse to the company's ComEd Utility. Nuclear operations are subject to additional safety and regulatory oversight.

PM Summary

Exelon Generation's EBITDA guidance for 2022 comes in above our view, as lower hedged gross margin gets offset by lower than forecast O&M. Exelon Corp (EXC, Buy) hosted an analyst day event to highlight the strategy for its Exelon Generation (ExGen) subsidiary - the non regulated merchant power business that, upon completion of the proposed spin-off, will be renamed as Constellation Energy. For our takeaways from the RemainCo analyst day held earlier in the week, see here. We note the company anticipates maintaining roughly $2bn of capital allocation across 2022-2023 — for growth initiatives, buybacks or even special dividends.

Main Takeaways

Below, we highlight key details from Tuesday's presentation for the SpinCo - the non-regulated merchant power and retail business currently known as Exelon Generation:

- Exelon Generation initiated 2022 adj. EBITDA guidance of $2.35-$2.75bn which compares to our $2.22bn estimate. Lower than expected hedged power prices gets more than offset by lower forecast O&M — and the company anticipates managing O&M to flat/slightly down levels in the coming years. We note an uptick in O&M exists in the 2022 forecast, largely to offset savings implemented as a result of COVID 19 and Winter Storm Uri headwinds.
- Capital allocation plans include a regular dividend with potential for buybacks, growth or even a special dividend. The company anticipates maintaining roughly $2bn of cash available for allocation — either to organic or inorganic growth, to buybacks or even a special dividend — all after funding capital spend, 1x separation costs and two years worth of dividend payouts.
- The company provided hedging disclosures and gross margin guidance. Exelon Generation provided hedging disclosures for 2022 and 2023, a focus for investors given EXC had stopped providing a multi-year outlook upon announcement of the spin-off back in February 2021. The nuclear plants (Byron, Dresden, Braidwood) receiving the new Carbon Mitigation Credits (CMCs) in Illinois generate roughly 25%-30% of total output — we note the business appears roughly 93%/76% hedged for 2022/2023 and 52% for 2024 — although with no hedged pricing for 2024. As a reminder, the CMCs effectively act as a contract for differences — with EXC receiving $30-$33/MWh or so regardless of market prices for those plants. Although the forward curve for power pricing moved meaningfully upwards during the past year, EXC's hedged pricing came in below our forecast — at first glance, hedged gross margin guidance of $7.35bn/$7.65bn appears below our estimate, however O&M guidance also came in lower, providing an offset.

We remain Buy rated on EXC with a $62, 12-month price target based on a sum of the parts analysis. Key risks include power prices, utility regulation, costs and financing.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our coverage universe) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

For a more detailed description of how we calculate the GS Factor Profile, please contact your GS representative.

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region's Investment Review Committee manages Regional Conviction lists, which represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction lists do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) have been suspended pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company. Not Available or Not Applicable (NA). The information is not available for display or is not applicable. Not Meaningful (NM). The information is not meaningful and is therefore excluded.

Highlights From Constellation 2022 Analyst Day

Constructive update in our view. Constellation introduced 2022 adjusted EBITDA guidance of $2,350-2,750 million, roughly in line with our $2,515 million forecast at the midpoint but below investor expectations based on our dialogue. The Company plans to grow its absolute annual dividend, currently $180 million, by 10% annually from 2022-2024. Constellation's forecasts are supported by a strong investment grade balance sheet with a 2022 estimated debt to adjusted EBITDA of 2.0x with a large cushion in CFO pre-WC and FFO to debt credit metrics of 35% and 45% for Moody's and S&P, respectively, versus downgrade thresholds of ~22% and 25% for the respective Baa2 and BBB- ratings. The Company expects to generate 2022-2023 free cash flow of $1.8-2.2 billion to be utilized for unidentified growth capital and/or return of capital to shareholders in the form of buybacks and special dividends. The Company sees opportunities to deploy capex at double-digit IRR's in the area of nuclear plant acquisition, repowering existing fleet, producing clean hydrogen and growing their offering of sustainability products and services for their C&I customers. Constellation plans to provide more clarity on use of free cash flow in the second half of 2022.

We are introducing 2022-2024 EBITDA estimates for Constellation: For 2022, we are modeling $2,550 million of Constellation EBITDA, the midpoint of Company guidance. We are introducing a 2023 Constellation EBITDA estimate of $2,750 million, a forecast that takes into account total gross margin guidance of $7,650 million, higher O&M and taxes other than income versus prior year. For 2024, we are forecasting $3,010 million of Constellation EBITDA, based on a low teen return on $2,000 million of free cash flow invested plus a baseline that matches our 2023 EBITDA estimate. For Exelon, we are maintaining our full 2021-2024 utility EPS forecast of $2.10 / $2.25 / $2.41 / $2.57 that we updated following yesterday's EXC Analyst Day (see our note). We are reaffirming our Outperform rating and our target price of $63/share, which applies a 6.5x EV to EBITDA multiple to our 2024 Constellation EBITDA estimate of $3,010 million plus an 18.9x multiple (5% premium to our utility target multiple of 18x) applied to our 2024 utility EPS estimate of $2.57/share. See Exhibit 1 inside.

Benefits of Illinois SB 2408 for Exelon & Constellation: As a result of the legislation, Constellation will keep the Byron and Dresden nuclear plants open. In addition, at the bill's 2023 baseline cost of $32.50 per MWh, we see a ~$300mm uplift (included in our forecast) in 2023 EBITDA from potential incremental revenue generated, assuming operating costs of $30 per MWh. Starting in 2024, we also see a potential ~$0.15 annual EPS benefit under the new regulatory framework for Exelon. We arrive at this incremental EPS, which would be ~6% of our outer-year 2024 utility EPS estimate of $2.57, assuming the Company receives ROEs at the current 2022 prevailing national average of ~9.45% or at recent Illinois gas rate case outcomes of ~9.65%, when compared to the existing formula rate plan through 2023 where ROEs are based on the 30-year treasury rate (currently ~2%) plus 580bps. Furthermore we could see upside to EXC's capex and rate base outlook in IL.

Please see the analyst certification and important disclosures on page 6 of this report. Evercore ISI and affiliates do and seek to do business with companies covered in its research reports. Investors should be aware that the firm may have a conflict of interest that could affect the objectivity of this report. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision.

Key Highlights of Illinois Senate Bill 2408

Legislation sets a goal of moving Illinois to 100% clean energy by 2050, with interim targets of 40% renewables by 2030 and 50% by 2040. All privately owned coal- and oil-fired power plants in the state would have to shut down by 2030. Gas plants have until 2045, and until then their carbon emissions in a given year cannot exceed what they emitted, on average, over the past three years. The bill also has a goal of putting one million electric cars and trucks on the road by 2030.

Key nuclear provisions: Importantly, the bill also provides subsidies for nuclear generation through carbon mitigation credits that provide revenue support at baseline costs used to establish a customer protection cap. The baseline costs are the following:

- $30.30/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2022
- $32.50/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2023
- $33.43/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2024
- $33.50/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2025
- $34.50/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2026

Key regulatory framework changes: The bill also includes changes to the regulatory framework applicable to Illinois electric distribution businesses. Specifically, the existing performance-based formula framework will remain for ratemaking through 2023. Under SB 2408, utilities will have the option to establish new rates based on either a traditional rate case using a future test year, or a plan based on investment and operating costs over a four-year period ("Multi-Year Plan"), which the companies would submit by January 20, 2023, to the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) for review / approval. The Commission under the Multi-Year Plan would establish electric rates for each year of the four-year period starting in 2024. The ICC would also determine the allowed ROE based on the companies' forecasted average annual rate base. During the Multi-Year Plan, the ROE would be subject to adjustments for performance metrics relating to affordability of customer delivery service cost, the utility's customer service performance, delivery system reliability, supplier diversity, timeliness of response to customer requests for interconnection of distributed energy resources, and reductions in peak load due to demand response programs. SB 2408 provides for symmetrical performance-based ROE incentives and penalties in a range of 20-60 basis points in the aggregate. The revenue requirement for each calendar year would reflect the companies' actual capital structure for that year, with an equity ratio of up to 50% being deemed prudent and reasonable and a higher equity ratio requiring specific Illinois commission approval. Annual rate adjustments would be permitted under a Multi-Year Plan to reflect the actual annual revenue requirement based on YE rate base. The actual annual revenue requirement approved in an annual rate adjustment may not exceed 105% (a true-up cap) of the revenue requirement for the annual period approved by the Commission in the Multi-Year Plan. Annual reconciliations (subject to Commission prudence review) would be recovered from or refunded to customers within 24 months of the applicable annual period. Some forecasted costs are excluded from the true-up cap, including those associated with new business and facility relocations, major storms, changes in interest rates, changes in the timing of expenditures or investments that move the expenditure or investment into or out of the applicable calendar year, taxes (including income taxes and taxes other than income taxes), pension or other post-retirement benefits costs, and amortization of certain regulatory assets. The true-up cap also excludes costs recovered through riders (bad debt, purchased power, transmission costs) without a traditional rate proceeding. Like with the existing formula rate framework, electric distribution revenues would continue to be decoupled from sales volumes under a Multi-Year Plan. If a utility elects to file a Multi-Year Plan, the Bill permits the phase-in of any initial rate increase with at least 50% of the first year's approved rate increase reflected in the first year, with the remaining portion deferred as a regulatory asset and recovered in rates over a period not to exceed 24 months beginning within 12 months after the second year's rates are effective.

VALUATION METHODOLOGY

RISKS

Higher or lower power / capacity prices and favorable / unfavorable outcomes in regulatory proceedings would cause our valuation to be either higher or lower. Higher interest rates would pull utility earnings up in IL but pressure multiples so the net impact would likely be negative overall. A favorable outcome in the upcoming capacity auctions would be accretive but a significantly lower capacity auction price would be negative.

Ratings Definitions

Current Ratings Definition

Evercore ISI's recommendations are based on a stock's total forecasted return over the next 12 months. Total forecasted return is equal to the expected percentage price return plus gross dividend yield. We divide our stocks under coverage into three primary ratings categories, with the following return guidelines:

Outperform- the total forecasted return is expected to be greater than the expected total return of the analyst's coverage sector.
In Line- the total forecasted return is expected to be in line with the expected total return of the analyst's coverage sector.
Underperform- the total forecasted return is expected to be less than the expected total return of the analyst's coverage sector.
Coverage Suspended- the rating and target price have been removed pursuant to Evercore ISI policy when Evercore is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving this company and in certain other circumstances.*
Rating Suspended- Evercore ISI has suspended the rating and target price for this stock because there is not sufficient fundamental basis for determining, or there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints around publishing, a rating or target price. The previous rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this company and should not be relied upon.*

*Prior to October 10, 2015, the "Coverage Suspended" and "Rating Suspended" categories were included in the category "Suspended."

FINRA requires that members who use a ratings system with terms other than "Buy," "Hold/Neutral" and "Sell" to equate their own ratings to these categories. For this purpose, and in the Evercore ISI ratings distribution below, our Outperform, In Line, and Underperform ratings can be equated to Buy, Hold and Sell, respectively.

Historical Ratings Definitions

Prior to March 2, 2017, Evercore ISI's recommendations were based on a stock's total forecasted return over the next 12 months:

Buy- the total forecasted return is expected to be greater than 10%

Hold- the total forecasted return is expected to be greater than or equal to 0% and less than or equal to 10%
Sell -the total forecasted return is expected to be less than 0%

On October 31, 2014, Evercore Partners acquired International Strategy & Investment Group LLC ("ISI Group") and ISI UK (the "Acquisition") and transferred Evercore Group's research, sales and trading businesses to ISI Group. On December 31, 2015, the combined research, sales and trading businesses were transferred back to Evercore Group in an internal reorganization. Since the Acquisition, the combined research, sales and trading businesses have operated under the global marketing brand name Evercore ISI.

ISI Group and ISI UK:

Prior to October 10, 2014, the ratings system of ISI Group LLC and ISI UK which was based on a 12-month risk adjusted total return:

Strong Buy- Return > 20%
Buy- Return 10% to 20%
Neutral - Return 0% to 10%
Cautious- Return -10% to 0%
Sell- Return< -10%

For disclosure purposes, ISI Group and ISI UK ratings were viewed as follows: Strong Buy and Buy equate to Buy, Neutral equates to Hold, and Cautious and Sell equate to Sell.

Evercore Group:

Prior to October 10, 2014, the rating system of Evercore Group was based on a stock's expected total return relative to the analyst's coverage universe over the following 12 months. Stocks under coverage were divided into three categories:

Overweight- the stock is expected to outperform the average total return of the analyst's coverage universe over the next 12 months.
Equal-Weight- the stock is expected to perform in line with the average total return of the analyst's coverage universe over the next 12 months.
Underweight -the stock is expected to underperform the average total return of the analyst's coverage universe over the next 12 months.
Suspended- the company rating, target price and earnings estimates have been temporarily suspended.

For disclosure purposes, Evercore Group's prior "Overweight," "Equal-Weight" and "Underweight" ratings were viewed as "Buy," "Hold" and "Sell," respectively.

Ratings Definitions for Portfolio-Based Coverage

Evercore ISI utilizes an alternate rating system for companies covered by analysts who use a model portfolio-based approach to determine a company's investment recommendation. Covered companies are included or not included as holdings in the analyst's Model Portfolio, and have the following ratings:

Long- the stock is a positive holding in the model portfolio; the total forecasted return is expected to be greater than 0%.
Short- the stock is a negative holding in the model portfolio; the total forecasted return is expected to be less than 0%.
No Position- the stock is not included in the model portfolio.
Coverage Suspended- the rating and target price have been removed pursuant to Evercore ISI policy when Evercore is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving this company, and in certain other circumstances; a stock in the model portfolio is removed.
Rating Suspended - Evercore ISI has suspended the rating and/or target price for this stock because there is not sufficient fundamental basis for determining, or there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints around publishing, a rating or target price. The previous rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this company and should not be relied upon; a stock in the model portfolio is removed.

Stocks included in the model portfolio will be weighted from 0 to 100% for Long and 0 to -100% for Short. A stock's weight in the portfolio reflects the analyst's degree of conviction in the stock's rating relative to other stocks in the portfolio. The model portfolio may also include a cash component. At any given time the aggregate weight of the stocks included in the portfolio and the cash component must equal100%.

Stocks assigned ratings under the alternative model portfolio-based coverage system cannot also be rated by Evercore ISI's Current Ratings definitions of Outperform, In Line and Underperform.

FINRA requires that members who use a ratings system with terms other than "Buy," "Hold/Neutral" and "Sell," to equate their own ratings to these categories. For this purpose, and in the Evercore ISI ratings distribution below, our Long, No Position and Short ratings can be equated to Buy, Hold and Sell respectively.

Key Message: Constellation's debut fell largely within the parameters we laid out in our preview note last week (HERE), with the key earnings guidance, credit, and capital allocation details close to our modeled expectations. As expected, management continues to emphasize the longevity of its underlying assets in a decarbonizing world, with modest growth capex and dividends the initial routes of capital allocation. We believe the information vacuum on ExGen for most of 2021 created significant uncertainty heading into the event on several levels, and, in our view, the clear 2-year guidance should go some way towards improving consensus and investor comfort around the remaining exogenous variables (curves, BRAs, etc.). We continue to see the current valuation as a relatively comfortable floor against a backdrop of favorable underlying fundamentals, although comps remain slightly challenging, in our view, given the amount of differentiation in the IPP space. In our view, while it may take some time for a deeper investor base to form and build comfort around the policy sensitivities unique to nuclear ownership, Constellation has laid out a clear pathway through 2023 and beyond. Overall, the event today was very consistent with the model we presented in our Preview note (see HERE) last Friday – credit metrics, gross margin, EBITDA and Dividend trajectory, etc., so no change in our estimates for Constellation, but we do see several levers here to provide upside potential in the coming months. We caught up with C-Suite post the analyst day event.

What happened…? Constellation held its analyst day ahead of the February 1st separation, with the new management team laying out 1) detailed 2022-23 gross margin guidance, 2) capital allocation plans, 3) credit metric details, 4) long-term growth strategies (hydrogen, SMRs, etc.), 5) deeper details on the retail business, and opportunities for the fleet to support state and federal decarbonization policies. 2022 Gross margin guidance of $7.35bn was introduced (vs. our ~$7.3bn) as was 2022 EBITDA guidance of $2.35-2.75bn (vs. our $2.45bn). 2023 gross margin of $7.65bn was also introduced (vs. our $7.66bn), with management acknowledging that it is including an internal assumption for the as yet unrun 23/24 BRA, which was our same expectation in our preview note. Capex and O&M guidance through 2024 was also included, with some lingering ERCOT impacts (deferred spending, etc.) to linger into '22 and 23. While the presentation did not come with cost cuts, which we had noted in our preview would have been an incremental surprise, we continue to see this as an area for potential value creation in the future. Management also detailed a commitment for 100% carbon free generation by 2040, a 100% reduction in operational emissions by 2040, and to disclose GHG details to C&I customers. Expansion of the opportunities around the latter area (customer data) remains an area of interest for the retail platform, similar to the kinds of pushes we have heard from peers in recent quarters.

Capital allocation to feature a mix of growth and returning to shareholders, with management taking a patient and flexible approach… While the team's debut did not feature significant deviations from prior growth capex data points, there were additional details on both organic and inorganic thought processes with an eye to the long term. Specifically, management continues to invest in a mix of improved retail product offerings, new technologies, and opportunities at the existing fleet (e.g., hydrogen production and wind repowerings). The latter item, repowerings, is a 500MW opportunity, with the CAFA as-presented only including a single project. The potential timeline and scope of allocation to repowerings remains an open question for us given its direct implications for CAFA 22-23 timeframe; however, we also believe management has significant flexibility on the ultimate details given the nature of the projects. On the inorganic side, we believe management remains open to asset acquisitions (e.g., other nuclear units), with the team acknowledging the advantages of its economies of scale. That said, we caught up with management again after the call, with the team re-emphasizing that it remains very deliberative – if a deal isn't there, they will simply return the available capital.

What could capital returns look like? Dividends, special dividends, and buybacks all on the table… In line with our expectations, management laid out plans for a dividend underpinned by strong growth (10%), although the initial yield may be lower than our cursory initial assumptions. The company will have roughly $2bn of CAFA over 2022 and 2023, and while we expect a portion of this will be incrementally spent on the growth initiatives detailed above, management also left the door open to buybacks or special dividends. The scale and timing of both of these remains completely fluid as management continues to work towards separation and standalone support functions, which we don't think was a surprise at all to investors. In our view, management remains slightly cautious on buybacks overall given peer experiences, potentially elevating the possibility of special dividends. We do not currently expect major updates on allocation or growth activities until 3Q results at the earliest, barring potential interim inorganic moves.

What's next…? Separation finalization, PJM, ERCOT, federal policy, guidance narrowing, and other items all on the table in the coming quarters…. Constellation faces a bevy of incremental events over the coming months, with the resumption of PJM's BRA the most immediate data point for investors to monitor, in our view. The company included some assumptions in its '23 gross margin for the outcome of the forthcoming 23/24 DY auction (which is what we expected in our preview), with the RTO slated to run a pancaked series of auctions in the months ahead as it tries to get the schedule back on track. We expect Constellation to bid and clear almost all of its capacity in the forthcoming auctions given state support is now in place for at-risk assets and the MOPR weakens. In ERCOT management continues to monitor the resource adequacy reform process for readthrough to its strategy in the state (where it owns two highly competitive CCGTs). We asked management on the call and subsequently about the potential divestiture of these assets given prior comments but came away with the impression that the team is taking a wait and see approach to market reforms. We also asked management about their thoughts on BBB and potential pathways forward for energy legislation, with the team indicating that in their view lawmakers were still examining reconciliation vs. a purely standalone package. In their view, the state of the union could be a useful timeframe for further potential changes, although it remains a very challenging and fluid situation. We remain of the view that energy is the least controversial part of the prior BBB package, with nuclear enjoying broad bipartisan support. Management also indicated that its guidance announcements will mostly follow existing conventions – setting up a potential guidance narrowing on the 3Q call.

What do we think of Constellation overall? We continue to apply a ~6x multiple to Constellation in our SoTP, and we believe there is some justification for arguments that it should be higher on the policy backdrop given both the prospects for a PTC in the NT and what we see as the longer-term ascension of nuclear's role in long-term decarbonization planning. Our current Pre-Spin SoTP valuation remains $61, predicated on $48 for the RemainCo and $13 for Constellation – see full breakout on page 4 HERE for further details and page 2 of the same document for implied EV/EBITDA multiples based on a range of RemainCo multiples.

Provided for the exclusive use of Lindsay Cox at Exelon Corp on 06-May-2022 11:35 AM.

Valuation: Our $61 price target is based on a sum-of-the-parts analysis. We assign ~$13 share for ExGen using a 5x weighted average EV/EBITDA multiple applied to ExGen's various assets. We assign ~$48 per share for the regulated utilities combined based on our 2024E EPS of $2.54 applied to a 19.5x regulated utility multiple, which is based on our regression model using the correlation between electric utility valuations and forward interest rate expectations over the past 30+ years. To this 18.5x multiple, we continue to apply a one-turn premium to each of EXC's subsidiaries for favorable recovery mechanisms (DSIC, MYPs) and underlying growth/incremental investment opportunities, except for ComEd. The combination of these two parts equals our $61 share price. Our model is marked to the December 2021 curves.

Risks: Upside and downside risks to our rating and valuation include: Commodity price risk. If natural gas prices fall (rise), wholesale power prices will likely fall (rise), limiting (raising) Power margins. EXC is still inherently a long natural gas call with gas the marginal price setter in PJM. The remaining risks center on the regulated utilities and transmission assets, which encompass traditional risk factors inherent with all utilities including: (1) positive/negative rate case outcomes above/below our expectations, (2) higher/lower capex outlooks, and (3) interest rate changes above/below what we account for in our regression model.

Strategy Centered on ESG and Clean Energy

Management laid out a strategy focused on clean energy and support of the clean energy transition from the zero carbon nuclear generation fleet and provided updated ESG goals of 90% carbon free by 2030 and 100% carbon free by 2040. Management also committed to get all operations to net zero by 2040 and to reduce methane emissions 30% by 2030 from 2020 levels. Longer term management sees growth laterals into provision of clean energy products and services into the C&I retail channel and potential for clean hydrogen production. The initial phase of this will be the pilot project at the Nine Mile Nuclear power plant. Other opportunities for capital allocation in the long term include new nuclear technologies, or other clean technology ventures, but we don't see any of these having a major call on capital over the intermediate term.

Capital Allocation Will Be Deliberate and Patient on Growth Opportunities

The capital allocation plan for 2022 is shown in Figure 1. The first priority is to maintain the IG balance sheet. At spin CEG will be 1.5x non-recourse Debt/EBITDA. FFO/Debt of 45% and CFO Pre-WC/Debt of 35% will be well above downgrade thresholds of ~25% and ~22%. Growth opportunities will target double-digit IRRs, and management will be disciplined on value around any strategic asset acquisitions. The growth strategy prioritizes acquisition of carbon free power at the right value, repowering and other growth in the existing fleet and expansion clean energy offerings to C&I retail customers. Excess free cash flow in any given year will be returned to shareholders. Management remains open to the method of return of cash flow whether that is buybacks or special dividends, dependent upon the best value for shareholders at the time.

Guidance In Line With Expectations - Spin on Track for February 1

The midpoint for Adjusted EBITDA for 2022 ($2,350-$2,750mln) was $50mln lower than previous ExGen guidance related to lower power curves and milder winter weather expectations. Gross Margin guidance of $7,350/$7,650mln for '22/23 is shown in Fig. 2. Hedging was also provided for '22/23 as shown in Fig. 3. Going forward management expects to issue guidance on the 4Q conference call for the go forward year and update it on the 3Q call. Dividends will be set at $180mln in '22 (or ~$0.55/share at ~326mln shares at 1:3 exchange ratio) and cash dividend is forecast to grow at 10% per annum. Dividends per share may grow faster than this dependent upon the extent to which free cash flow before growth is allocated to share repurchases. Management also provided a forecast of capex and opex through 2024, which is shown in Fig. 4.

Company Description

Exelon owns 6 regulated utility subsidiaries: Atlantic City Electric, BGE, ComEd, Delmarva Power, PECO and the Pepco Subsidiaries, which deliver electricity and natural gas to about 10m customers in DE, DC, IL, MD, NJ, and PA. Exelon also owns one of the largest competitive power generators in the US, with 35.5 GW of capacity, mostly in nuclear power plants, but also in gas, wind, solar, and hydroelectric generating facilities. The Constellation unit provides energy products and retail power services to approximately 2.2m customers across the generation fleet's footprint.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Our valuation methodology for the group is price-to-earnings based. The adjustments applied fall into 5 categories. These are as follows: 1) Group Valuation Bias: Flowing from our valuation work comparing Baa corporate yields to group dividend yields and RU price to earnings ratios to those for the S&P 500, we incorporate a positive or negative adjustment to our group multiple representing the gap we calculate to the nearest 5%; 2) Growth Adjustment: We adjust our valuations based on the growth quartile each utility occupies. First quartile receives a 5% premium, second quartile a 2% premium, third quartile a 2% discount and fourth quartile a 5% discount; 3) Regulatory Adjustment: Our valuation adjustments for regulation are based on our proprietary Regulatory Rankings. First quartile jurisdictions receive 5%, second quartile 2%, third quartile -2% and fourth quartile -5%; 4) Multi Utility Diversified Valuation: For multi utilities (those with more than 15% diversified or foreign earnings), we perform a sum-of-the-parts analysis applying business/region appropriate valuations to those diversified businesses; 5) One-off Adjustments: In special situations, we value risk on an issue-specific basis. Common areas where we apply such an adjustment include: ESG advantage, large project construction risk, legal risk, and announced M&A completion risk.

We value Exelon at $63/share on a sum-of-the-parts analysis. We value Exelon's Utility and Parent Only (UPO) at a net 12% premium to the group multiple of 18.1x our $2.51/share UPO earnings forecast for 2023. Our 12% net premium is derived from a 10% premium for the overall regulated utility group, premised upon the current undervaluation versus the Baa corporate bond rounded down to the nearest 5%, a 2% discount for a 3rd quartile regulatory ranking overall, a 5% premium for 1st quartile UPO earnings growth,. This yields $52/share. We value the ExGen competitive generation business at 6.6x our 2023 estimated Open EBITDA of $2.4Bln, plus NPV of hedges of $0.1Bln less net debt of $5.5Bln, which yields $11/share.

Specific risks for Exelon include natural gas prices, power prices, nuclear operational risks, regulatory risks at the Pepco utilities, weather, interest rates, and relative cost of coal and uranium.

Required Disclosures

This report has been prepared by UBS Securities LLC, an affiliate of UBS AG. UBS AG, its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates are referred to herein as UBS.

For information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research product; historical performance information; certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations; and terms and conditions for certain third party data used in research report, please visit https://www.ubs.com/disclosures. The figures contained in performance charts refer to the past; past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results. Additional information will be made available upon request. UBS Securities Co. Limited is licensed to conduct securities investment consultancy businesses by the China Securities Regulatory Commission. UBS acts or may act as principal in the debt securities (or in related derivatives) that may be the subject of this report. This recommendation was finalized on: 11 January 2022 05:26 PM GMT. UBS has designated certain Research department members as Derivatives Research Analysts where those department members publish research principally on the analysis of the price or market for a derivative, and provide information reasonably sufficient upon which to base a decision to enter into a derivatives transaction. Where Derivatives Research Analysts co-author research reports with Equity Research Analysts or Economists, the Derivatives Research Analyst is responsible for the derivatives investment views, forecasts, and/or recommendations. Quantitative Research Review: UBS publishes a quantitative assessment of its analysts' responses to certain questions about the likelihood of an occurrence of a number of short term factors in a product known as the 'Quantitative Research Review'. Views contained in this assessment on a particular stock reflect only the views on those short term factors which are a different timeframe to the 12-month timeframe reflected in any equity rating set out in this note. For the latest responses, please click https://neo.ubs.com/quantitative, or speak to your UBS sales representative for access to the report.

Analyst Certification:
Each research analyst primarily responsible for the content of this research report, in whole or in part, certifies that with respect to each security or issuer that the analyst covered in this report: (1) all of the views expressed accurately reflect his or her personal views about those securities or issuers and were prepared in an independent manner, including with respect to UBS, and (2) no part of his or her compensation was, is, or will be, directly or indirectly, related to the specific recommendations or views expressed by that research analyst in the research report.

1:Percentage of companies under coverage globally within the 12-month rating category.
2:Percentage of companies within the 12-month rating category for which investment banking (IB) services were provided within the past 12 months.
3:Percentage of companies under coverage globally within the Short-Term rating category.
4:Percentage of companies within the Short-Term rating category for which investment banking (IB) services were provided within the past 12 months.

KEY DEFINITIONS: Forecast Stock Return (FSR) is defined as expected percentage price appreciation plus gross dividend yield over the next 12 months. In some cases, this yield may be based on accrued dividends. Market Return Assumption (MRA) is defined as the one-year local market interest rate plus 5% (a proxy for, and not a forecast of, the equity risk premium). Under Review (UR) Stocks may be flagged as UR by the analyst, indicating that the stock's price target and/or rating are subject to possible change in the near term, usually in response to an event that may affect the investment case or valuation. Short-Term Ratings reflect the expected near-term (up to three months) performance of the stock and do not reflect any change in the fundamental view or investment case. Equity Price Targets have an investment horizon of 12 months.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES: UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Committee (IRC). Factors considered by the IRC include the stock's volatility and the credit spread of the respective company's debt. As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is a general communication and is educational in nature; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, structured derivative products and futures (including OTC derivatives) are not suitable for all investors. Trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "The Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You may read the document at http://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp or ask your salesperson for a copy. Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchases and sales of options, such as spreads and straddles. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the Information.

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes:

(i) valuation or accounting purposes;

(ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or

(iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. Risk information:

You agree that you shall not copy, revise, amend, create a derivative work, provide to any third party, or in any way commercially exploit any UBS research, and that you shall not extract data from any research or estimates, without the prior written consent of UBS.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is for your information only; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, derivative products and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky. Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the information (as defined below).

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and may differ or be contrary to opinions expressed by other business areas or groups, personnel or other representative of UBS. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes: (i) valuation or accounting purposes; (ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or (iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS (including between Global Wealth Management and UBS Global Research) and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. For further information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations, please visit https://www.ubs.com/disclosures.

The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this document may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other parties for the purpose of gathering, applying and interpreting market information. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS into other areas, units, groups or affiliates of UBS. The compensation of the analyst who prepared this document is determined exclusively by research management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS's subsidiaries, branches and affiliates as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms in the UK) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Options and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options". You may read the document at https://www.theocc.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp or ask your financial advisor for a copy.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS Financial Services Inc. does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS Financial Services Inc. and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies and styles approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio consisting primarily of sustainable investments may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ. Companies may not necessarily meet high performance standards on all aspects of ESG or sustainable investing issues; there is also no guarantee that any company will meet expectations in connection with corporate responsibility, sustainability, and/or impact performance.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

EXC: RemainCo Details Largely in Line with Our Expectations (See our note HERE)

PCG – TURN files application for rehearing of PG&E Kincade fire violations settlement approval

CNP – CNP closes the sale of the AR/OK LDC assets

DUK/SO – Groups seek rehearing on Southeast Energy Exchange Market despite FERC denial

PCG – TURN files application for rehearing of PG&E Kincade fire violations settlement approval

- TURN has filed an application for rehearing of SED-6, PG&E Kincade fire violations settlement approval.
- The TURN application alleges the CPUC did not follow its own procedural rules in settlement approval, among other allegations.
- TURN also notes improper ex-parte communications involved in order approval.
- CPUC previously approved the settlement reached by PG&E for $125M agreement with the CPUC SED related to the Kincade fire.
- The settlement is separate from the criminal claims by Sonoma County and separate from the Calfire investigation.

Guggenheim takeaway: The settlement resolved one of the multiple legal and regulatory overhangs related to legacy wildfires. There are multiple very strong allegations in the TURN rehearing application, and it is unclear what the level of response will be from the CPUC.

CNP – CNP closes the sale of the AR/OK LDC assets

- CNP announced that the LDC asset sale in AR/OK has closed.
- The asset sale was in process of regulatory approvals during 2021.
- More here.

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. As we anticipated, the asset sales closed without incident and more could be coming.

AEE – Ameren MO and DOJ continue to skirmish in court over Rush Island closure timeline

- "Tripling the minimum time for Rush Island's retirement notice may suit Ameren's interests, but any delay in the plant's shutdown will come at the expense of human health and welfare." - DOJ
- More HERE

Guggenheim takeaway: Minor noise from last week ICYMI.

DUK/SO – Groups seek rehearing on Southeast Energy Exchange Market despite FERC denial

- Seeking to reverse the December 2021 FERC order, 17 clean energy and conservation groups are alleging that FERC 'improperly' rejected rehearing requests.
- "The then-evenly split FERC failed to act on the SEEM proposal by the Oct. 11 deadline, allowing the agreement to go into effect by operation of law on Oct. 12. The organizations sought a rehearing, claiming that the commission's lack of action on the proposal was arbitrary and capricious, given FERC's failure to address their concerns. The organizations argued that the statutory period for the commission to act on a proposal cannot expire on a public holiday, noting that Oct. 11, 2021, was Columbus Day. Therefore, the statutory period for FERC to act on the proposal ended on Oct. 12, they said." - article

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. We continue to monitor.

Exelon Corporation (EXC): Initiates Constellation 2022 EBITDA guidance post-separation and growth proposition

Sentiment Indicator : neutral

Produced by Tucker, Shelby (RBC Capital Markets, LLC) on Tuesday, January 11, 2022, 07:50 AM ET

Disseminated on Tuesday, January 11, 2022, 07:55 AM ET

Our view: Analyst day materials highlighted some unique growth opportunities surrounding nuclear, but expected free cash flows remain mostly uncommitted to specific projects or return of capital plans outside dividends. We believe more visibility in the carbon-free growth pipeline is needed to convince investors of a strong valuation. We focus on hydrogen production opportunities in the long run as there is potential for significant federal support in the future. We highlight key items of analyst day materials below.

New EBITDA guidance. Constellation initiated 2022 adjusted EBITDA guidance of $2,350M-$2,750M. Midpoint of $2,550M is 5% below our estimate of $2,676M, primarily due to to lower energy gross margins net of hedges. Constellation anticipates adjusted O&M to remain stable at $4.4-$4.5B through 2024.

Primarily contracted carbon-free generation platform. Existing generation assets include nuclear (21GW) and renewable (2.7GW primarily hydropower) assets. Constellation expects 56% of total output by 2023 to be supported by state programs, with up to 75% generation hedged by Illinois carbon mitigation credits and Constellation's ratable hedging program.

Capital expenditures. Constellation plans for maintenance capital spending of $1.3B per year including nuclear fuel. Near-term spending will also include one-off separation costs and deferred spending related to COVID and Texas winter storm. Constellation growth plans could include nuclear plants, repowering opportunities and clean hydrogen production but materials have not identified specific projects other that 500MW of wind repowering. Constellation guides to 2022-2023 cash flow of $1.8B-$2.2B after debt reduction.

Dividends. Constellation expects dividends of $180M in 2022, growing at 10% annually. 2022 dividends are equivalent to $0.18/share based on existing share count of Exelon of 996M before separation. This implies a total of $1.53/share for existing EXC shareholders including Exelon utilities' expected dividends of $1.35/share.

SpinCo Constellation Analyst Day Today at 8:30AM ET

Constellation Energy Corp., which is targeted to spin-out of Exelon Corp on February 1, will hold a virtual analyst day this morning at 8:30am eastern time. The transaction will be a 3 for 1 exchange ratio with Exelon shares, or constitute approximately 326 million shares outstanding.

Slide Deck Quick Takes - 2022 Guidance

Constellation issued 2022 Adjusted EBITDA guidance of $2,350-$2,750 million which is in line with UBSe Adjusted EBITDA for ExGen of $2,630 million. Our view is that this is largely in-line with market expectations, although some may have been marking to higher open numbers against the power curve and not considered hedging in their viewpoints. A hedging updated to 93% in 2022, 75% in 2023, and 52% in 2024. Average effective prices are $27/MWh in the Midwest, $33.50 and $34/MWh for Mid-Atlantic, and $24 and $24.50 for New York in '22/23 respectively. Spark spreads are $4 in ERCOT in both years. Gross margin was updated to $7,350/$7,650mln for '22/23.

Dividend and Cash Flows

Management provided dividend guidance of $180mln for 2022 with a 10% growth rate through 2024. At an assumed 326mln shares this would equate to a DPS of ~$0.55. Free cash flow before growth (FCFbg) guidance was $2.8 - $3.2 Bln, and cash available for allocation adds the $1.75Bln payment from Exelon, to reach $4.6-$5.0Bln for '22. This will be allocated to debt reduction ($1.8)-($2.2)Bln, dividends ($0.4)Bln, separation expenses ($0.4)Bln, and identified growth capex ($0.1)Bln. This will leave ($1.8)-($2.2)Bln available for allocation, with priorities to target organic and inorganic growth in line with Constellations clean energy profile and to return excess cash to shareholders.

Valuation: Reiterating our $63 Price Target on EXC

We value Exelon at $63/share on a sum of the parts analysis. We value Exelon's Utility and Parent Only (UPO) at a net 12% premium to the group multiple of 18.1x our $2.51/share UPO earnings forecast for 2023. Our 12% net premium is derived from a 10% premium for the overall regulated utility group, premised upon the current undervaluation versus the Baa corporate bond rounded down to the nearest 5%, a 2% discount for a 3rd quartile regulatory ranking overall, a 5% premium for 1st quartile UPO earnings growth. This yields $52/share. We value the ExGen competitive generation business at a 6.6x our 2023 estimated Open EBITDA of $2.4Bln, plus NPV of hedges of $0.1Bln less net debt of $5.5Bln which yields $11/share.

Company Description

Exelon owns 6 regulated utility subsidiaries: Atlantic City Electric, BGE, ComEd, Delmarva Power, PECO and the Pepco Subsidiaries, which deliver electricity and natural gas to about 10m customers in DE, DC, IL, MD, NJ, and PA. Exelon also owns one of the largest competitive power generators in the US, with 35.5 GW of capacity, mostly in nuclear power plants, but also in gas, wind, solar, and hydroelectric generating facilities. The Constellation unit provides energy products and retail power services to approximately 2.2m customers across the generation fleet's footprint.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Our valuation methodology for the group is price to earnings based. The adjustments applied fall into 5 categories. These are as follows: 1) Group Valuation Bias: Flowing from our valuation work comparing Baa corporate yields to group dividend yields and RU price to earnings ratios to those for the S&P 500, we incorporate a positive or negative adjustment to our group multiple representing the gap we calculate to the nearest 5%; 2) Growth Adjustment: We adjust our valuations based on the growth quartile each utility occupies. First quartile receives a 5% premium, second quartile a 2% premium, third quartile a 2% discount and fourth quartile a 5% discount; 3) Regulatory Adjustment: Our valuation adjustments for regulation are based on our proprietary Regulatory Rankings. First quartile jurisdictions receive 5%, second quartile 2%, third quartile -2% and fourth quartile -5%; 5) Multi Utility Diversified Valuation: For multi utilities (those with more than 15% diversified or foreign earnings), we perform a sum-of-parts analysis applying business/region appropriate valuations to those diversified businesses; 6) One-off Adjustments: In special situations, we value risk on an issue specific basis. Common areas where we apply such an adjustment include: ESG advantage, large project construction risk, legal risk, and announced M&A completion risk.

We value Exelon at $63/share on a sum of the parts analysis. We value Exelon's Utility and Parent Only (UPO) at a net 12% premium to the group multiple of 18.1x our $2.51/share UPO earnings forecast for 2023. Our 12% net premium is derived from a 10% premium for the overall regulated utility group, premised upon the current undervaluation versus the Baa corporate bond rounded down to the nearest 5%, a 2% discount for a 3rd quartile regulatory ranking overall, a 5% premium for 1st quartile UPO earnings growth,. This yields $52/share. We value the ExGen competitive generation business at a 6.6x our 2023 estimated Open EBITDA of $2.4Bln, plus NPV of hedges of $0.1Bln less net debt of $5.5Bln which yields $11/share.

Specific risks for Exelon include natural gas prices, power prices, nuclear operational risks, regulatory risks at the Pepco utilities, weather, interest rates, and relative cost of coal and uranium.

KEY DEFINITIONS: Forecast Stock Return (FSR) is defined as expected percentage price appreciation plus gross dividend yield over the next 12 months. In some cases, this yield may be based on accrued dividends. Market Return Assumption (MRA) is defined as the one-year local market interest rate plus 5% (a proxy for, and not a forecast of, the equity risk premium). Under Review (UR) Stocks may be flagged as UR by the analyst, indicating that the stock's price target and/or rating are subject to possible change in the near term, usually in response to an event that may affect the investment case or valuation. Short-Term Ratings reflect the expected near-term (up to three months) performance of the stock and do not reflect any change in the fundamental view or investment case. Equity Price Targets have an investment horizon of 12 months.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES: UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Committee (IRC). Factors considered by the IRC include the stock's volatility and the credit spread of the respective company's debt. As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

It may also be made available through third party vendors and distributed by UBS and/or third parties via e-mail or alternative electronic means. The level and types of services provided by Global Research to a client may vary depending upon various factors such as a client's individual preferences as to the frequency and manner of receiving communications, a client's risk profile and investment focus and perspective (e.g., market wide, sector specific, long-term, short-term, etc.), the size and scope of the overall client relationship with UBS and legal and regulatory constraints.

All Global Research is available on UBS Neo. Please contact your UBS sales representative if you wish to discuss your access to UBS Neo.

When you receive Global Research through a system, your access and/or use of such Global Research is subject to this Global Research Disclaimer and to the UBS Neo Platform Use Agreement (the "Neo Terms") together with any other relevant terms of use governing the applicable System.

When you receive Global Research via a third party vendor, e-mail or other electronic means, you agree that use shall be subject to this Global Research Disclaimer, the Neo Terms and where applicable the UBS Investment Bank terms of business (https://www.ubs.com/global/en/investment-bank/regulatory.html) and to UBS's Terms of Use/Disclaimer (http://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/disclaimer.html). In addition, you consent to UBS processing your personal data and using cookies in accordance with our Privacy Statement (http://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/privacy.html) and cookie notice (http://www.ubs.com/global/en/homepage/cookies/cookie-management.html).

If you receive Global Research, whether through a System or by any other means, you agree that you shall not copy, revise, amend, create a derivative work, provide to any third party, or in any way commercially exploit any UBS research provided via Global Research or otherwise, and that you shall not extract data from any research or estimates provided to you via Global Research or otherwise, without the prior written consent of UBS.

In certain circumstances (including for example, if you are an academic or a member of the media) you may receive Global Research otherwise than in the capacity of a client of UBS and you understand and agree that (i) the Global Research is provided to you for information purposes only; (ii) for the purposes of receiving it you are not intended to be and will not be treated as a "client" of UBS for any legal or regulatory purpose; (iii) the Global Research must not be relied on or acted upon for any purpose; and (iv) such content is subject to the relevant disclaimers that follow.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is a general communication and is educational in nature; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, structured derivative products and futures (including OTC derivatives) are not suitable for all investors. Trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "The Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You may read the document at http://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp or ask your salesperson for a copy. Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchases and sales of options, such as spreads and straddles. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the Information.

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and may differ or be contrary to opinions expressed by other business areas or groups, personnel or other representative of UBS. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes:

(i) valuation or accounting purposes;

(ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or

(iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. For further information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations, please visit https://www.ubs.com/disclosures.

management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS's subsidiaries, branches and affiliates as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms under English law or, if not carried out by UBS in the UK the law of the relevant jurisdiction in which UBS determines it carries out the activity) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Within the past 12 months UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS Financial Services Inc. does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS Financial Services Inc. and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies and styles approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio consisting primarily of sustainable investments may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ. Companies may not necessarily meet high performance standards on all aspects of ESG or sustainable investing issues; there is also no guarantee that any company will meet expectations in connection with corporate responsibility, sustainability, and/or impact performance.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

Exelon Corporation

EXC-Q: US$56.82 Target: US$55.00 Rating: Sector Outperform

The Calm Before the Split

OUR TAKE: Positive. We're drawn to the materially de-risked portfolio that EXC will retain after the Constellation spinoff on February 1. RemainCo will have much better visibility into above-average EPS/DPS growth of 6%-8% as it will no longer be at the mercy of commodity markets and, more importantly, of inconsistent policymakers (grid operators, politicians, and regulators) and thus inefficient and unstable energy and capacity markets. We like the favorable regulatory recovery mechanisms and revenue decoupling for most subs, which have helped EXC achieve strong earned ROEs of ~9.5%. However, we struggle to assign a premium target multiple to EXC given uncertainty about the regulatory construct in IL, challenging regulatory environments in several other jurisdictions, and the ESG "ding" from the ComEd bribery scandal. We recognize that our $55 target price is below where the stock currently trades; EXC has outperformed the XLU by ~17% over the past six months. For now, we hold pat on our Sector Outperform rating, target price, and estimates as we await better clarity on how the market will split the value between the entities after the separation. We see fair value of $44/sh for Exelon and $11/sh for Constellation.

KEY POINTS

Robust financial outlook. Consistent with prior commentary, management guides to 6%-8% LT EPS growth for the go-forward Exelon, the utilities-only RemainCo, for 2021-2025. EXC suggested the pace of growth could continue beyond that, but was clear to stop short of committing to it. In the near-term, management tightened the 2021 utility EPS guidance range to $2.06-$2.14 and narrowed and trimmed the 2022 EPS guidance range to $2.18-$2.32 (from $1.95-$2.25 and $2.15-$2.45, respectively). EXC also guides to a 2022 dividend of $1.35 with commensurate 6%-8% growth through 2025, implying a stable 60% payout ratio vs. historical growth of ~5% and a DPO ratio of ~50%. Management also increased the four-year capex plan by a strong $2.3B (8.5%) along with the roll-forward to 2022-2025. Arguably more impressively, $1.3B of the increase relates to 2022-2024, or +6.3% vs. the Feb 2021 guidance on an apples-to-apples basis. Lastly, we see potential for EXC to once again be an acquirer of a regulated utility. While the organic growth plan is clearly Plan A, management repeatedly stressed the benefits of sharing best practices operationally across the portfolio and of financial synergies.

Mixed regulatory environments, but alternative recovery mechanisms and quiet near-term regulatory calendar limit risks.

- Overall, we view EXC's regulatory exposure as essentially average, though slightly more risky than accommodating. We view the PHI jurisdictions as particularly challenging (D.C. and DE specifically), while MD is also a tough environment. By contrast, we view NJ and PA as modestly attractive, and IL as being mixed (and unproven). Management calculates a weighted-average RRA regulatory ranking of Average/2, i.e. average by national standards.

- On the regulatory front, the calendar is typically busy, but is currently uncharacteristically quiet. The only outstanding rate case is Delmarva MD electric (to be resolved in March), following recently-concluded cases for Delmarva DE electric and PECO electric, and ComEd's annual formula rate update. Beyond that annual ComEd filing and annual formula rate filings for the transmission business (~20% of consolidated rate base), for most other subsidiaries, EXC forecasts a roughly 2-3 year filing cycle.

- Looking forward, in IL, following the passage of the Climate and Equitable Jobs Act, which most notably impacts the merchant nukes but also the regulated ComEd, that utility can now choose between a general rate case with a forward-looking test year, with new rates starting in 2024, or a multi-year plan to cover 2024-2027. We like this change from the current formula rate setup, which has resulted in among the lowest allowed ROEs in the country given rock-bottom interest rates recently (even if they are rising). Either way, the filing won't come until 2023, further reducing regulatory risks for EXC in 2022.

- In terms of recovery, we view the widespread use of alternative mechanisms favorably as they reduce regulatory lag (helping near-term earnings), enable the company to file less frequent rate cases (reducing regulatory and headline risks), and help smooth out cost increases for customers to provide rate stability and reduce price spikes. EXC estimates that only ~2% of planned rate base growth through 2025 will seek traditional base rate recovery; the overwhelming majority instead will benefit from alternative recovery mechanisms such as multi-year plans or trackers. ComEd will be shifting away from formula rates, as mentioned, though it's unclear at this point what the future setup will look like.

- Lastly, we note that revenue decoupling mechanisms reduce volumetric risk for ~76% of revenues, further improving visibility into and consistency of revenues.

We've had several debates about EXC's utility-only valuation. Given the wide range of valuations we've heard for Constellation, it's hard to say exactly where the Exelon utilities currently trade on an implied basis. We believe that a modest (5%) P/E discount to peers would be appropriate as the appeal of above-average EPS/DPS growth and quiet rate case outlook is offset by uncertainty about the regulatory construct in IL, challenging regulatory environments in several jurisdictions, and the ESG "ding" from the ComEd bribery scandal (more on that below). For now, we maintain our $55 TP, which includes $44 for RemainCo, predicated on a 5% relative discount to our anchor multiple of 18.0x applied to 2024 EPS (the balance is attributable to ExGen/Constellation). We recognize that our TP is below where the stock currently trades; for now we hold pat on our Sector Outperform rating, target price, and estimates as we await better clarity on how the market will split the value between the entities after the February 1 spinoff.

Smooth operators: Much of the presentation focused on the company's materially-improved operations over the past decade, helped in part by aggressive investments in infrastructure and sharing of best practices after each of the company's acquisitions. Earned ROEs have improved by >150bps since 2012, though much of the progress was in the earlier years after the Constellation merger; returns have been reasonably stable at ~9.5% since 2016 (9.3% on a TTM basis) vs. the company's targeted range of 9%-10%. The company also strongly emphasized its focus on and progress toward safety and reliability, including shortening outage restoration periods. Much of the improvement is attributable to smart grid investments in technologies that have been deployed over the past decade. Though management describes the business as ranking in the top quartile in terms of customer satisfaction, our analysis of J.D. Power customer satisfaction ratings suggests that EXC is more of a middle-of-the-pack performer as evaluated by both residential and business customers (link to our recent analysis). Lastly, we note that EXC's rates are 16% below the largest U.S. cities, according to the company. EXC believes that its low customer rates will help support local economic development, which would help both in terms of increased need for infrastructure and helping with customer affordability, particularly on the residential side.

Looking forward, driven in part by an ongoing focus on controlling O&M expenses, EXC plans to limit customer bill increases to the pace of inflation (e.g. ~2%-2.5%), if not below.

Yet another great ESG story: Management calls the company "an industry leader in ESG", although as we've published with just a hint of tongue-in-cheek sarcasm (link), every single utility company under our coverage uses similar verbiage. Frankly, we're a bit torn on how to evaluate EXC's ESG profile:

- On the one hand, the company's direct emissions will be minimal after spinning off the merchant power generation. Though the utilities don't control the procurement of power in most jurisdictions, management believes there's a lot that the company can do around clean energy, energy efficiency in particular. We see EXC as among the best-positioned utilities in terms of helping customers integrate electric vehicles (EVs) given the urban footprint. It also helps for EXC's environmental initiatives that most of the service territory is in or around liberal cities, which have been and will continue to support investments in clean energy infrastructure. Beyond direct actions, EXC touts the company's partnerships with local governments to help cities and corporate customers to meet their goals related to climate change, economic development, and social justice.

- However, on the other hand, the low emission profile limits potential to reduce emissions going forward. We admit we struggle with how to compare wires-only utilities to vertically-integrated companies, but in general we believe that the emission reductions that will come from coal plant retirements should be more attractive to ESG funds than a company with a better starting point like EXC. Lastly on governance, we believe that the black eye from the ComEd bribery scandal disclosed in July 2019 will persist for quite some time. We credit the company for entering into a deferred prosecution agreement (DPA) in July 2020, and management emphasizes its commitment to the company's code of conduct ("a gold standard"). The penalty will no doubt fade along with investors' memories of the event, but we believe it'll take time.

Company Description

Exelon Corporation (EXC) has the largest number of utility customers in the United States and operates in 48 states, the District of Columbia, and Canada. Exelon's six utilities deliver electricity and natural gas to approximately 10 million customers in Delaware, the District of Columbia, Illinois, Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania through its Atlantic City Electric (ACE), Baltimore Gas and Electric Company (BGE), ComEd, Delmarva Power, PECO Energy Company, and Pepco Holdings Inc. (PHI) subsidiaries. EXC is one of the largest competitive U.S. power generators, with more than 35,168 MW of nuclear, gas, wind, solar, and hydroelectric generating capacity. The company's Constellation business unit provides energy products and services to approximately 2 million residential, public-sector, and business customers.

Key Risks

Uncertainties around the future of ExGen (including a potential divestiture, IL legislation, and PJM rule changes), headline and financial risks related to the bribery scandal in IL, rate cases in challenging jurisdictions, and rising interest rates

Definition of Scotiabank, Global Banking and Markets Equity Research Ratings

Scotiabank has a three-tiered rating system, with ratings of Sector Outperform, Sector Perform, and Sector Underperform. Each Research Analyst assigns a rating that is relative to his or her coverage universe or an index identified by the Research Analyst that includes, but is not limited to, stocks covered by the Research Analyst.

The rating assigned to each security covered in this report is based on the Scotiabank, Global Banking and Markets Research Analyst's 12-month view on the security. Research Analysts may sometimes express in research reports shorter-term views on these securities that may impact the price of the equity security in a manner directly counter to the Research Analyst's 12-month view. These shorter-term views are based upon catalysts or events that may have a shorter-term impact on the market price of the equity securities discussed in research reports, including but not limited to the inherent volatility of the marketplace. Any such shorter-term views expressed in research report are distinct from and do not affect the Research Analyst's 12-month view and are clearly noted as such.

Ratings

Sector Outperform (SO)
The stock is expected to outperform the average 12-month total return of the analyst's coverage universe or an index identified by the analyst that includes, but is not limited to, stocks covered by the analyst.

Sector Perform (SP)
The stock is expected to perform approximately in line with the average 12-month total return of the analyst's coverage universe or an index identified by the analyst that includes, but is not limited to, stocks covered by the analyst.

Sector Underperform (SU)
The stock is expected to underperform the average 12-month total return of the analyst's coverage universe or an index identified by the analyst that includes, but is not limited to, stocks covered by the analyst.

Focus Stock (FS)
As of April 29, 2019, Scotiabank GBM discontinued the Focus Stock rating. A stock assigned this rating represented an analyst's best idea(s); stocks in this category were expected to significantly outperform the average 12-month total return of the analyst's coverage universe or an index identified by the analyst that included, but was not limited to, stocks covered by the analyst.

Other Ratings

Under Review – The rating has been temporarily placed under review, until sufficient information has been received and assessed by the analyst.

Tender – As of January 25, 2021, Scotiabank GBM discontinued the Tender rating.

Risk Ranking
The Speculative risk ranking reflects exceptionally high financial and/or operational risk, exceptionally low predictability of financial results, and exceptionally high stock volatility. The Director of Research and the Supervisory Analyst jointly make the final determination of the Speculative risk ranking.

Ratings Distribution

	Companies Rated in Each Category		Investment Banking Service Provided in the Last 12 Months

Morgan Stanley | RESEARCH

UPDATE

January 11, 2022 05:03 AM GMT

Exelon Corp | North America

Investor Day Takeaways | Positive Update Across the Board, Raising PT

Stock Rating	Industry View	Price Target
Overweight	Attractive	$74.00

Yesterday's financial update reaffirmed our positive view of the RemainCo. Updated '21-'22 EPS guidance, reaffirmed and rolled forward 6-8% annual growth, increased rate base and capex plan, unch'd equity needs post cash payment to CEG, and FFO/Debt metrics drive us to increase our PT +$5 to $74.

WHAT'S CHANGED?

Exelon Corp (EXC.O)	From:	To:
Price Target	$69.00	$74.00

Yesterday, Exelon hosted an Investor Day for the RemainCo where it provided a positive update across the board that should alleviate investors' concerns regarding balance sheet capacity and growth prospects. In-line with our expectations, the company maintained the 6-8% annual EPS growth rate (now extended through '25), kept the $1b in equity needs (now through '25), and set FFO/Debt targets at 13-14% (above the 12% threshold level). The company also narrowed '21 EPS guidance to $2.06-2.14 (vs. $1.95-2.25 previously) and '22 guidance to $2.18-2.32 (vs. $2.15-2.45 previously), and rolled forward and raised their rate base growth guidance to 8%+ (+50bps) and 4yr capex plan (+$2b). Confirmation of robust growth ahead plus a stable balance sheet is driving our revised EPS estimate for the RemainCo of $2.40 for '23 (up $0.10 vs. our prior estimate) and increased P/E premium used to value the utilities to 10% (from 5%), in-line with other companies in our coverage that offer similar growth prospects. We are raising our PT by +$5 to $74 ($50 for RemainCo and $24 for ExGen).

Higher 4yr capital investment plan, with 98% recovered via mechanisms that reduce regulatory lag. EXC raised capex to $29b over '22 to '25 (previously $27b over '21 to '24). Federal targets around economy-wide decarbonization, state-level targets, and customer preferences drive a vast investment opportunity in EXC's jurisdictions. These include investments in wires infrastructure to allow penetration of renewables (utility-scale and DERs) as well as the electrification of other sectors, and investments to maintain reliability and performance of the system, and cyber & physical security. Separately, while gas represents a minor portion of EXC's rate base at 14%, investments in gas replacements are expected to drive growth as well. Overall, we view favorably:

1. The alternate rate mechanisms used in 98% of the capex plan that allow for reduced regulatory lags.

2. The average size of projects (small to medium) that reduces regulatory/operational risks in the approval and development of the projects, respectively.

3. Upside opportunities such as investment in the T&D infrastructure needed to connect offshore wind projects built in the east coast (the company is currently involved in these proceedings/conversations) and opportunities driven by the potential passage of federal clean energy legislation, which has the potential to create rate headroom via lower power generation costs and via financial support for transmission projects. While EXC won't own generation assets post the separation, federal support for clean energy technologies and nuclear power plants translates into lower utility bills for customers, which ultimately create rate headroom and drive increased utility capex across the system (generation, distribution, and transmission). For reference, another company in our coverage estimated that $100m-$150m of headroom each year could lead to over $1b in incremental capex investment.

Quantification of credit rating metrics should alleviate a key investor concern: equity needs. The company set a new FFO/Debt target of 13-14%, comfortably above the 12% downgrade threshold level and below the currently estimated 15% FFO/Debt level. This reflects the reduced business risk of the company as post separation it becomes a pure wires-only company (no generation), footprint diversification, and the flexibility to lever up and fund the $1.75b cash contribution to Constellation (CEG) at separation (scheduled for Feb. 1st) and the $400m in separation-related expenses.

Post separation of the entities, we expect to see increased ESG interest in the stock. We get asked frequently about a list of stocks that meets a very strict criteria: No nuclear exposure and no-to-minimal coal exposure (with a clear exit strategy). Post separation, EXC will represent one of very few utilities that meets this criteria, while their investments in large part enable the decarbonization of the power sector and the electrification of other sectors. While investor focus tends to be in the "E" of the ESG, we expect to see more attention on the "G" and given the criminal matter involving corruption/bribery in which ComEd (EXC's IL utility) was involved in 2020, the company reached a settlement with the US Department of Justice. We see no further liability going forward but are watchful of improvements to their code of conduct and any repercussions with regulators/legislators in the state of IL. The current formula-rate structure in IL goes through the end of 2023, and we expect the utility to file for rate recovery under a new mechanism (still to be determined) in 2023-2024. This could result in an improved ROE, especially in light of the rising interest rate environment and currently well below average ROE. According to management, if ComEd were to earn within the 9-10% ROE range, the overall ROE for EXC would increase by ~40bps to 9.7%.

Among other items, the company guided to a $1.35 DPS in 2022, reaffirmed dividends to grow in-line with earnings at 6-8% through '25, and a dividend payout ratio of ~60%, consistent with the sector.

We view EXC as one of the most attractive US utility stocks we cover, and we see a re-rating potential as the company completes the separation of the utility (RemainCo, referred to simply as Exelon going forward) and merchant generation (Constellation) businesses this quarter. For the RemainCo, we would note that op. earnings grew by 9% from 2016-'21, and that given the various investment opportunities ahead and solid balance sheet we expect robust growth to continue and investors to value EXC as a premium utility. See our recent US Utilities Outlook note here for more context on Exelon relative to the broader utility sector.

Risk Reward – Exelon Corp (EXC.O)

PRICE TARGET $74.00

We value the regulated utilities' 2023 earnings by applying the large-cap regulated group P/E multiple at a 10% premium to account for above average earnings growth of 6-8% through 2025. Separately, using a DCF approach, we value ExGen's nuclear subsidies (ZECs) at $3-4, and ExGen's uncontracted cash flows at ~$20 (bear/bull range of $0/$32).

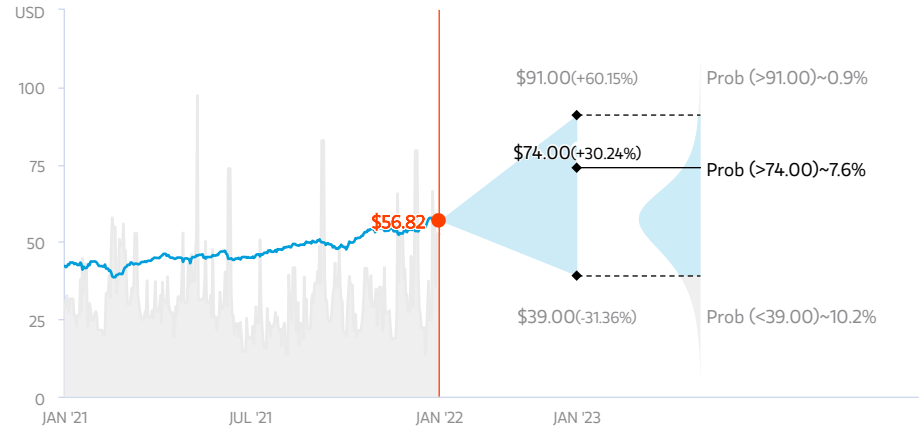
RISK REWARD CHART AND OPTIONS IMPLIED PROBABILITIES (12M)



Key: Historical Stock Performance ● Current Stock Price ◆ Price Target

Source: Refinitiv, Morgan Stanley Research, Morgan Stanley Institutional Equities Division. The probabilities of our Bull, Base, and Bear case scenarios playing out were estimated with implied volatility data from the options market as of 10 Jan, 2022. OVERWEIGHT THESIS

EXC offers above avg. utility earnings growth of 6-8% through 2025 and owns a large, highly contracted, unregulated merchant fleet that the market currently prices at little value. This compares to our valuation of Exgen of ~$20/shr ex-ZECs (bear/bull of $0/$32). We believe the market underappreciates ExGen's unlevered FCF generation of ~$2b/yr., margin stability from the nuclear state subsidies, and the re-rating that could result from potential carbon legislation in the US.

Risk Reward Themes

Contrarian:	Positive
Special Situation:	Positive

BULL CASE $91.00

21.7x Utility EPS, $36/share ExGen

Differences from our Base Case include: 1) Earnings at the regulated utilities that grow at 10%, and 2) Higher terminal year assumptions for power market prices used in ExGen's DCF and the passage of a $15/MWh federal nuke PTC.

BASE CASE $74.00

20.8x Utility 2023 EPS, ~$25/share ExGen

We value the regulated utilities' 2023 earnings by applying the large-cap regulated group P/E multiple at a 10% premium to account for above average earnings growth of 6-8% through 2025. Separately, using a DCF approach, we value ExGen's nuclear subsidies (ZECs) at $3-4, and ExGen's uncontracted cash flows at ~$20.

BEAR CASE $39.00

18.9x Utility EPS, $3/share ExGen

Differences from our Base Case include: 1) Lower earnings at the regulated utilities driven by a 9.5% ROE and a 45% equity ratio, 2) An in-line P/E multiple to the peer group, and 3) No earnings associated with ExGen's assets (the unsecured cash flows). ExGen's valuation of ~$3/shr reflects the nuclear subsidies (ZECs) that are currently secured.

STOCK RATINGS

Morgan Stanley uses a relative rating system using terms such as Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated or Underweight (see definitions below). Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold and sell. Investors should carefully read the definitions of all ratings used in Morgan Stanley Research. In addition, since Morgan Stanley Research contains more complete information concerning the analyst's views, investors should carefully read Morgan Stanley Research, in its entirety, and not infer the contents from the rating alone. In any case, ratings (or research) should not be used or relied upon as investment advice. An investor's decision to buy or sell a stock should depend on individual circumstances (such as the investor's existing holdings) and other considerations.

Global Stock Ratings Distribution

The Stock Ratings described below apply to Morgan Stanley's Fundamental Equity Research and do not apply to Debt Research produced by the Firm.
For disclosure purposes only (in accordance with FINRA requirements), we include the category headings of Buy, Hold, and Sell alongside our ratings of Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight. Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold, and sell but represent recommended relative weightings (see definitions below). To satisfy regulatory requirements, we correspond Overweight, our most positive stock rating, with a buy recommendation; we correspond Equal-weight and Not-Rated to hold and Underweight to sell recommendations, respectively.

Exelon Utilities Analyst Day – Party Time, EXCellent

Bottom Line:

EXC held its utility-only Analyst Day today for the RemainCo. The company's 6-8% EPS growth rate for 2021-2025 is consistent with the prior regulated earnings growth rate. However, an increased 2022-2025 capital plan now drives rate base growth of 8.1% compared to the prior 7.6% rate. Based on the update and incremental capital, we are updating our 2021-2024 standalone EXC RemainCo estimates to $2.10, $2.24, $2.36, and $2.53, respectively, which also nudges up our consolidated estimates to $2.84, $3.32, $3.28, and $3.34. Accordingly, we increase our target price to $63.

Key Points

With today's Analyst Day and what will now be a normal 4Q event, Exelon rolled forward its capex program to 2022-2025, with the total spending outlook increasing to $29bn or ~7-8% higher over its 2021-2024 program. The additional $350-400mm per year of spending is for capital opportunities tied to accelerated electrification, cybersecurity, and continued resiliency programs. With nearly 98% of the capital spending being recovered under alternative/contemporaneous cost recovery mechanisms and the regulated utility portfolio being ~76% decoupled by volume, investors should have good visibility into the company's growth over the forecast period.

The company continues to see a modest need for equity of ~$1bn through 2025, which we see as manageable both in terms of dilution and capital markets access at roughly 0.5% of its implied standalone market cap of ~$47bn (using our $48/share target price). This commitment to the balance sheet will help the company maintain its 13-14% FFO/Debt targets, on average, over the 2022-2024 timeframe and leave the company with plenty of financial flexibility above its 12% downgrade threshold. Management reaffirmed its 2021 UP&O equivalent range at $2.06-2.14/share and initiated its 2022 outlook at $2.18-2.32, suggesting a 7% growth midpoint over midpoint.

With a growth outlook in line with the sector's high multiple peers, geographic diversity, a pure T&D business model, and a pro forma potential market cap of at least $42-43bn, we believe Exelon Utilities has the potential to be one of the go-to names in the sector post separation. Furthermore, we believe the profiles of both entities will likely continue to attract investor interest given Exelon Utilities' large-cap, above-average growth and pure-play T&D utility exposure and Constellation's unique positioning as a well-capitalized and scale way to gain exposure to carbon-free energy and the numerous business opportunities that could develop.

Our Thesis

We believe pending IL clean energy legislation has the potential to materially move investor perception of EXC toward its large-cap regulated peers, which currently trade at a meaningful premium to EXC on 2024 P/E based on our estimates. Our valuation implies investors are paying very little for EXC's high-quality generation fleet that could see its longer-term earnings profile derisked.

New Scenarios

Valuation

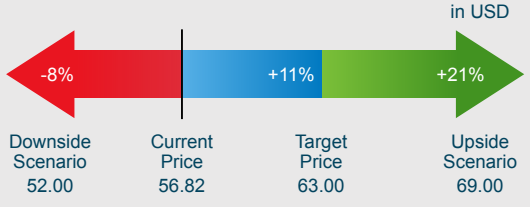
We value EXC on a sum-of-the-parts valuation, which utilizes an EV/EBITDA multiple for the company's generation and marketing business. We apply a base P/E multiple to our 2024 estimated earnings from the company's utility businesses consistent with the rest of our coverage universe.

Upside Scenario $69.00

Our upside scenario implies an improved quark spread for the company's nuclear assets and better-than-expected rate base growth and earned ROEs at the company's utility through better cost control.

Downside Scenario $52.00

Our low case or downside reflects an adverse outcome in IL, sustained sub-$2.00 natural gas prices, and slower growth at the utilities combined with further deteriation in IL following the company's recent DOJ deferred prosecution agreement for its IL utility.



Key Catalysts

We believe IL legislation, which has been delayed due to COVID-19, still could be taken up in the Spring Legislative Session in the General Assembly by mid-2021.

Exelon Utilities Analyst Day – Party Time, EXCellent

In the first installment outlining the standalone prospects for post spin EXC entities, Exelon held its utility-only, Exelon Utilities (EXC) Analyst Day this afternoon. Although the profile of the regulated RemainCo did not change materially, the company did provide updates across several fronts to add visibility to its growth outlook, financing plan, and dividend plans through 2025.

Addressing earnings, management reaffirmed its 2021 UP&O equivalent range at $2.06-2.14/share and initiated its 2022 outlook at $2.18-2.32, suggesting a 7% growth midpoint over midpoint. Driven by continued regulated investment, PECO's electric and gas GRC's, lower depreciation & amortization, and modest dilution, the midpoint of this range is around $0.05 higher than our initial $2.20/share estimate. The company's 2022 forecast assumes non-corporate O&M is up $150 million year over year, and management stated its confidence in being able to mitigate any disynergies associated with the corporate separation. The company's regulated-only, long-term growth rate remains in line with its previous utilities' 6-8% regulated earnings growth using its 2021 range as the base for this five-year outlook. Management feels very confident in its ability to achieve its growth outlook, including a stress test of the various earned return scenarios at both ComEd and PECO. As the recent IL legislation impacting ComEd's allowed ROE methodology does not affect earnings until 2024, the company embeds a current 30-year treasury curve (~1.94%) in its longer-term outlook, which is consistent with our current forecast. We conservatively have not assumed a step up in the ROE at ComEd in 2024 as we await clarity pending the ICC establishing its revised regulatory framework over the next 12 months.

With today's Analyst Day and what will now be a normal 4Q event, Exelon rolled forward its capex program to 2022-2025, with the total spending outlook increasing to $29 billion or ~7-8% higher over its 2021-2024 program. This higher level of spending, which includes a ~5% step up on an annualized basis in 2024 and 2025 compared to our estimates, helps drive a modest increase in expected rate base growth to 8.1% from 7.6% previously through 2025. The additional $350-400 million of spending is expected to receive contemporaneous recovery through multi-year rate plans across various jurisdictions and represents capital opportunities tied to accelerated electrification, cybersecurity, and continued resiliency programs. As nearly 98% of its capital spending has alternative cost recovery mechanisms and its regulated utility portfolio is 76% decoupled by volume investors and should have good visibility into the company's growth over the forecast period. Through cost control and a focus on continuous improvement, EXC expects to focus on keeping its customer rates competitive and its current $29 billion capital plan can be executed with rate impacts at or below inflation.

The company continues to see a modest need for equity of ~$1 billion through 2025, which we see as manageable both in terms of dilution and capital markets access at roughly 0.5% of its implied standalone market cap of ~$47 billion (using our $48/share target price). This commitment to the balance sheet will help the company maintain its 13-14% FFO/Debt targets on average over the 2022-2024 timeframe and leave the company with plenty of financial flexibility above its 12% downgrade threshold.

With the separation, EXC expects its standalone 2022 dividend to be established at $1.35/share, representing a 60% payout of operating earnings. With only modest equity needs and starting out with a sector-low payout objective, EXC expects dividend growth in line with its operating EPS growth or 6-8% through 2025. Based on this initial dividend level and our $48 target price, we see a dividend yield in the 2.8% range, which is on par or just slightly below the sector average of 3.1%.

On a UP&O basis (EXC RemainCo after the February 1 split), we are revising our 2021-2024 estimates higher to reflect both the slightly lower equity needs through 2024 and higher capex in 2023 and 2024. Our standalone EXC RemainCo estimates are now $2.10, $2.24, $2.36, and $2.53, respectively. Although our consolidated estimates are also higher with our new forecast on the regulated operations, we have not changed our estimates for ExGen (Constellation Energy) pending the Analyst Day tomorrow morning.

With the change to our UP&O forecast, our consolidated (pre-spin EXC) estimates move to $2.84, $3.32, $3.28, and $3.34, respectively.

With a growth outlook in line with the sector's high multiple peers, geographic diversity, a pure T&D business model, and a pro-forma potential market cap of at least $47 billion, Exelon Utilities has the potential to be one of the go-to names in the sector post separation, in our view. Furthermore, we believe the profiles of both entities will likely continue to attract investor interest given Exelon Utilities large-cap, above-average growth and pure-play T&D utility exposure and Constellation's unique positioning as a well-capitalized and scale way to gain exposure to carbon-free energy and the numerous business opportunities that could develop from the company's portfolio positioning.

Our consolidated target price moves up to $63/share, reflecting a higher UP&O valuation of $48/share given our higher 2024 estimate for the utility-only segment used in our SOTP valuation framework (Exhibit 4).

Company Specific Disclosures

Methodology and Risks to Target Price/Valuation for Exelon (EXC-NSDQ)

Methodology: We value EXC using our sum-of-the-parts valuation analysis to derive our target price. Our valuation takes into account the quality of EXC generation assets relative to its peers and the company's regulated business rate base growth and funding sources.

Risks: Failure to pass a version of the "Clean Energy Jobs Act" in the upcoming legislative session that sufficiently expands financial support for EXC Gen's nuclear plants would cause us to re-evaluate our rating, all else equal. The Governor's opposition to the existing Formulaic Based Rate Plan in IL may result in a new set of regulations that could be adverse to the company's ComEd Utility. Nuclear operations are subject to additional safety and regulatory oversight.

Stock trades higher on solid Exelon standalone outlook. Monday's Analyst Day for the new standalone Exelon T&D business was well received by the Street, with the stock trading up modestly (+0.3%) and outperforming ~100bp in a tough tape. As observed in our earlier note, the new rate base forecast and implied EPS trajectory came in above our 2024E valuation year forecast for the utility plus parent suggesting $2+ of value uplift to our sum-of-parts. While we have held off on updating the model until we digest tomorrow's Constellation (CEG) meeting we would expect to raise our pro forma Exelon valuation to $44/sh based on our average regulated target multiple of 17x applied to adjusted 2024E.

Constellation outlook broadly consistent. After the close on Monday CEG posted its slides with its meeting set for 8.30am ET on Tuesday morning. CEG pegs adjusted EBITDA in a range of $2.35B-$2.75B for 2022E, which compares decently with $2.6B in our model. The updated gross margin forecast is $7.35B for 2022E and $7.65B for 2023E with 2023 benefiting from a full calendar year of the new Illinois CMC nuclear credits. These numbers are ~$150M higher than our model for 2022E and over $500M higher for 2023E, although this is offset partially by an O&M forecast which is $100M higher than our 2022E and closer to $200M higher for 2023E. We have work to do post the meeting reconciling drivers, but at a high level we find the numbers broadly consistent to modestly above our recently re-marked expectations.

Margin forecasts reflect November 30 pricing. One wrinkle is that the CEG numbers reflect an 11/30 price deck, since when forward power for 2022 is down by $2-$4 per MWh although 2023 pricing is actually $1-$2 higher. Expected generation is 91-94% hedged for 2022 and 74-77% for 2023, however, so these price deltas should only have a limited impact.

Forecast shows up to $5B available cash for 2022-2023. CEG shows cash flow for 2022-2023 combined, amounting to $4.6B-$5.0B including the $1.8B transfer from EXC and $2.8B-$3.2B of estimated free cash flow before growth (FCFbG). After debt reduction ($1.8B-$2.2B), dividends ($0.4B), separation related O&M and CapEx ($0.4B) and identified growth ($0.1B) this leaves $1.8B-$2.2B for yet to be identified growth or capital return. Our modeling assumption was for more debt reduction, but this was essentially a placeholder and the CEG forecast shows 2022 debt: adjusted EBITDA at a very manageable 2.0x or 1.5x excluding the non-recourse element. Cash flow to debt metrics for 2022 are seen at 45% (S&P) and 35% (Moody's) with both showing significant headroom versus downgrade thresholds.

Favorability at the base CapEx and nuclear fuel lines. One area where there is tangible upside versus our expectations is at the CapEx line or "Carbon-Free Capital Investment Plans" to use the term in the slides. These numbers show $1.75B for 2022E (including nuclear fuel) and this declines to $1.55B for 2023E and $1.3B for 2024E, with the latter amounting to base spending and nuclear fuel ($650M each). Versus our current model, these CapEx numbers are lower by $50M for 2022E, $250M for 2023E and $500M lower for 2024E amounting to $800M over the course of three years. In terms of the components, the new CEG forecast shows base spending and nuclear fuel both settling out around $200M lower than what we had been using.

Initial dividends keep EXC payout intact. CEG is earmarking $180M for dividends in 2022 and expects to grow this 10% annually in 2023 and 2024. With share count expected to decline on stock buybacks, effective DPS growth for CEG will likely exceed 10%. For current Exelon holders the CEG payout amounts to $0.18 per EXC share, keeping investors at least whole at the current $1.53 when combined with the new $1.35 EXC payout announced Monday.

Leading carbon-free generator; largest retail electric provider for C&I. Strategy-wise, CEG position their nuclear-centric portfolio as the largest U.S. producer of carbon-free power with the lowest carbon emissions of any major player in the industry. This is largely as we expected and continues the narrative outlined by management at the EEI Conference in November. The new slides spend considerable time illustrating this profile, while also highlighting alignment with state and federal policy preferences as well as new repowering opportunities in the renewable feet and plans to seek extensions of current nuclear licenses out to 80 years. At the same time, CEG's leading position in the retail electric C&I market is highlighted as a key differentiator with a customer offering increasingly focused around zero-carbon solutions including an hourly-matched carbon free product which CEG has under development and about which we look forward to learning more tomorrow.

Nuclear sites eyed as future Clean Energy Centers. More broadly, we look forward to the presentation to get a better sense of how management intend to prioritize growth versus capital return in their overall business and financial strategy. It seems clear from the slide deck that the plan will be geared around playing some offense on both the supply side and in the customer business but it remains unclear to us to what extent this will actually involve material deployment of incremental growth capital. One concept we find interesting in the presentation is the notion of transitioning the existing nuclear sites into future Clean Energy Centers. This might involve integration with hydrogen opportunities, data centers, direct air capture and other emerging technologies. How willing investors are to embrace financing these ideas in lieu of potential capital return is an open question in our mind, although we would note that the current stated financial plan at this stage shows very little in the way of committed growth capital over the next two years (~$100M).

Expect questions on uncommitted cash and timing. Fair questions for the call might be a better sense of plans for the $1.8B-$2.2B of uncommitted cash for 2022-2023, how much we might expect to be earmarked for capital return, and on what timeframe management expect to be providing the Street with some additional clarity on this front. We suspect the answer may be at least partly dependent on what happens with the potential federal nuclear PTC and timing thereof, but await management's meeting commentary for a better sense of plan priorities.

Exelon Corp (EXC, Buy) hosted an analyst day event to highlight the strategy for RemainCo - the regulated business currently owned by the company - in preparation for the separation of its non-regulated business in the coming weeks. We note the non-regulated business, Exelon Generation (ExGen - to be renamed Constellation Energy) - will host its analyst day event on Tuesday a.m. of this week.

Main Takeaways

We detail highlights from today's presentation for the RemainCo - the legacy transmission/distribution utility businesses that serve markets such as Chicago, DC, Baltimore and Philadelphia:

- EXC raised its rate base and capital spending outlook for the utilities, with a forecast rate base CAGR now at 8.1% from 2021-2025 versus 7.6% previously forecast for the prior 5 year period of 2020-2024. EXC raised its long-term capital spending forecast to $35.6bn, (versus $33.3bn from 2020-2024 prior) with an increase in all years of the 2021-2024 comparable period versus the prior forecast — we note the bulk of the change occurs in expected cumulative 5 year Distribution spend moving from $22.3bn to $23.2bn, Transmission spend increasing slightly form $7.1bn to $7.8bn and Gas Delivery/Other from $4bn to $4.6bn.
- Financing plans appear largely consistent with prior guidance, with equity needs at $1bn during the forecast horizon. Our current forecasts do not embed the $1bn of equity issuance - as we still assume a consolidated structure for EXC and ExGen. However, EXC's prior guidance - and today's disclosure - both assume roughly $1bn of equity issuances going forward - albeit with today's forecast encompassing four years versus the prior outlook just for three years, implying lower issuance per year ($250m/yr vs $333m/yr previously).
- EXC guided O&M slightly up yoy, at 4% in 2022, representing a 1.4% CAGR from 2016-2022, below inflation levels. However, the company noted longer term O&M growth should remain below inflationary levels.

Multi-year EPS growth rate guidance appears unchanged at 6%-8% through

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our coverage universe) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

For a more detailed description of how we calculate the GS Factor Profile, please contact your GS representative.

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region's Investment Review Committee manages Regional Conviction lists, which represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction lists do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) have been suspended pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company. Not Available or Not Applicable (NA). The information is not available for display or is not applicable. Not Meaningful (NM). The information is not meaningful and is therefore excluded.

The information, opinions, estimates and forecasts contained herein are as of the date hereof and are subject to change without prior notification. We seek to update our research as appropriate, but various regulations may prevent us from doing so. Other than certain industry reports published on a periodic basis, the large majority of reports are published at irregular intervals as appropriate in the analyst's judgment.

Goldman Sachs conducts a global full-service, integrated investment banking, investment management, and brokerage business. We have investment banking and other business relationships with a substantial percentage of the companies covered by our Global Investment Research Division. Goldman Sachs & Co. LLC, the United States broker dealer, is a member of SIPC (https://www.sipc.org).

Our salespeople, traders, and other professionals may provide oral or written market commentary or trading strategies to our clients and principal trading desks that reflect opinions that are contrary to the opinions expressed in this research. Our asset management area, principal trading desks and investing businesses may make investment decisions that are inconsistent with the recommendations or views expressed in this research.

The analysts named in this report may have from time to time discussed with our clients, including Goldman Sachs salespersons and traders, or may discuss in this report, trading strategies that reference catalysts or events that may have a near-term impact on the market price of the equity securities discussed in this report, which impact may be directionally counter to the analyst's published price target expectations for such stocks. Any such trading strategies are distinct from and do not affect the analyst's fundamental equity rating for such stocks, which rating reflects a stock's return potential relative to its coverage universe as described herein.

We and our affiliates, officers, directors, and employees, excluding equity and credit analysts, will from time to time have long or short positions in, act as principal in, and buy or sell, the securities or derivatives, if any, referred to in this research.

Key Message: Exelon's debut as a purely regulated entity was largely in line with the expectations we laid out in our preview note last week (see our NOTE), with top tier 6-8% EPS growth extended through 2025 and key supporting details backfilled ahead of the formal split on February 1st. Management continues to find robust avenues for capital deployment across the footprint, guided by below-inflation customer rate pressure. As we have seen with other multi-state eastern T&Ds, the emphasis in today's narrative was on lag minimization from favorable mechanisms and efficiency, with the forthcoming changes at ComEd arguably the final piece of the differentiated puzzle. We believe the fully regulated EXC will present an attractive alternative to other wires-only eastern names post spin, and we continue to assign a premium to eastern utilities. We caught up with C Suite tonight post the analyst day. Our preview note was very consistent with the messaging today, capital plan update, credit metrics, EPS/rate base growth in line with our newly published estimates. Below is a quick take. Investors should revert back to our preview for more in-depth details.

What happened? Exelon held its RemainCo analyst day, laying out 2025 capex guidance, 2022 earnings guidance, and refreshing a slew of interim data points. The data points were generally in line with our expectations heading into the event (see our preview note HERE), with LT EPS growth of 6-8% rolled forward to 2025. This is supported by a very robust update to the prior 5-year capital plan and associated rate base growth, with the latter increasing to 8.1% through the forecast window. The spend is split roughly 65% electric distribution, 22% transmission, and 13% gas delivery, with backfilling occurring across the previously-guided 2022-24 period, as we expected. Funding the $29bn plan is roughly $14bn of new debt and $1bn of new equity, in addition to ~$14bn of CFO (net of dividends). The modest amounts of equity were in line with our modeled expectations for 2025 heading into the analyst day, as was the ~7% dividend growth midpoint management provided. Post-agency adjustments credit metrics in the range of 13-14% CFO/FFO to debt were also announced, just below our pre-adjustment expectation for ~15% heading into the event.

We asked on the call about the potential for management to provide general guidance beyond the 5-year window similar to some utilities in recent quarters (CNP, D, DUK, etc.); however, management was of the view that such long-dated efforts are fraught with assumptions, uncertainties, and regulatory issues (e.g., front running the process) and that the team is comfortable with the current horizon. Management also introduced 2022 guidance in the range of $2.18 to 2.32, versus our $2.27 and prior indications in the range of $2.15-2.45. We caught up with management after the call and asked about the slight slippage in the midpoint, which they partially attributed to the drop in treasuries (about half of the change), with the balance coming from separation items, services costs, and other cats and dogs.

What's next? ComEd process in focus as other utilities face a relatively quiet year. Exelon remains on the cusp of becoming a boring regulated utility, in our view, with the ongoing case at DPL the only major regulatory activity currently ongoing outside of the policy implementation process in IL. We asked about the potential IL outcomes (MYPs and ROE improvements) versus the latest plan, with management generally indicating that it has some assumptions built in but continues to engage in the overall process. Our impression remains that the company is sensitive to the process, with the overall 6-8% growth well cemented despite investors' attempt to pinpoint an evolving situation. From a rate pressure perspective, management indicated that deferrals and EDIT amortizations remain potential levers under discussion within the context of the proceedings and regulatory conversations, with the tax flowbacks an item in the 2021 legislative package.

What do we think of RemainCo overall? We believe the fully regulated EXC presents an attractive alternative to other wires-only eastern names like ES and FE. We continue to view the core EXC utilities outside of IL favorably, with exemplary efforts across the platform to implement MYPs and improve earned ROEs across PHI and the other legacy utilities – all supporting top-tier growth. While the implementation of MYPs and the general backdrop in IL remains somewhat of a work in progress, we generally believe that EXC could have the core attributes for potentially drawing in ES-style ESG investors in the longer term, namely its wires focus and small gas rate base. Our current Pre-Spin SoTP valuation remains $61, predicated on $48 for the RemainCo and $13 for SpinCo – see full breakout on page 4 HERE for further details and page 2 for RemainCo multiple ranges.

Highlights From 2022 Analyst Day

We view Exelon's 2022 Analyst Day today as a positive update. EXC narrowed its 2021 adjusted EPS guidance to $2.06-2.14/share from $1.95-2.25/share previously, which is unchanged at the midpoint. In addition, the Company lowered 2022 EPS guidance by 2% at the midpoint to $2.18-2.32/share versus $2.15-2.45/share previously. On the positive side, Exelon is now guiding to 6-8% EPS growth from 2021-2025 versus 6-8% previously for 2020-2024, and assuming linear growth at the 7% midpoint this implies a projected 2024 estimate of $2.57/share, which is 3% higher than the previous estimated disclosure of $2.50/share midpoint. EXC also rolled forward and raised its four-year capex plan to $29 billion for 2022-2025 from $27 billion for 2021-2024, with the update including a modestly higher $6.60 billion of capital for 2021 versus the $6.55 billion planned previously. The increased long-term capex program is expected to drive an 8.1% rate base CAGR for 2021-2025 versus 7.6% previously for 2020-2024. Exelon expects to finance this plan with $1 billion of equity for 2022-2025 versus $1 billion previously planned for 2021-2024. This financing plan is intended to target a 2022-2024 average FFO to debt of 13-14% for S&P's current BBB rating which has a downgrade threshold of 12%, and CFO (pre-WC) to debt of 13-14% for Moody's current Baa2 rating which has a downgrade threshold of 12%. Exelon projects to grow its dividend 6-8% through 2025, in line with operating EPS. Lastly, the Company said it is focused on executing on the base plan but open to evaluating M&A opportunities to enhance shareholder value.

Updating our utility EPS estimates and raising our target price. We are maintaining our 2021 and 2022 utility EPS estimates of $2.10 and $2.25, respectively. We are raising our 2023 utility EPS forecast to $2.41 from $2.35, and introducing a 2024 estimate of $2.57. Our full 2021-2024 EPS estimates are now $2.10 / $2.25 / $2.41 / $2.57 versus our prior 2021-2023 forecast of $2.10 / $2.25 / $2.35. We are increasing our target price to $63/share as we now value Exelon at 18.9x multiple (5% premium to our utility target multiple of 18x) applied to our 2024 EPS estimate. See Exhibit 1 inside. For Constellation we are introducing our preliminary 2024 estimated EBITDA of $2,810mm. We arrive at our 24E by adding low teen investment return on ~$2B in free cash flow (2022-2023) to company's 2022 EBITDA guidance mid-pt of $2,550mm. We will fine tune our Constellation EBITDA forecast and valuation post-company Analyst Day tomorrow. We reaffirm our Outperform rating for EXC.

Benefits of Illinois SB 2408 for Exelon & Constellation: As a result of the legislation, Constellation will keep the Byron and Dresden nuclear plants open. In addition, at the bill's 2023 baseline cost of $32.50 per MWh, we see a ~$300mm uplift (included in our forecast) in 2023 EBITDA from potential incremental revenue generated, assuming operating costs of $30 per MWh. Starting in 2024, we also see a potential ~$0.15 annual EPS benefit under the new regulatory framework for Exelon. We arrive at this incremental EPS, which would be ~6% of our outer-year 2024 utility EPS estimate of $2.57, assuming the Company receives ROEs at the current 2022 prevailing national average of ~9.45% or at recent Illinois gas rate case outcomes of ~9.65%, when compared to the existing formula rate plan through 2023 where ROEs are based on the 30-year treasury rate (currently ~2%) plus 580bps. Furthermore we could see upside to EXC's capex and rate base outlook in IL.

Please see the analyst certification and important disclosures on page 5 of this report. Evercore ISI and affiliates do and seek to do business with companies covered in its research reports. Key Highlights of Illinois Senate Bill 2408

Legislation sets a goal of moving Illinois to 100% clean energy by 2050, with interim targets of 40% renewables by 2030 and 50% by 2040. All privately owned coal- and oil-fired power plants in the state would have to shut down by 2030. Gas plants have until 2045, and until then their carbon emissions in a given year cannot exceed what they emitted, on average, over the past three years. The bill also has a goal of putting one million electric cars and trucks on the road by 2030.

Key nuclear provisions: Importantly, the bill also provides subsidies for nuclear generation through carbon mitigation credits that provide revenue support at baseline costs used to establish a customer protection cap. The baseline costs are the following:

- $30.30/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2022
- $32.50/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2023
- $33.43/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2024
- $33.50/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2025
- $34.50/MWh for the delivery year beginning June 1, 2026

Key regulatory framework changes: The bill also includes changes to the regulatory framework applicable to Illinois electric distribution businesses. Specifically, the existing performance-based formula framework will remain for ratemaking through 2023. Under SB 2408, utilities will have the option to establish new rates based on either a traditional rate case using a future test year, or a plan based on investment and operating costs over a four-year period ("Multi-Year Plan"), which the companies would submit by January 20, 2023, to the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) for review / approval. The Commission under the Multi-Year Plan would establish electric rates for each year of the four-year period starting in 2024. The ICC would also determine the allowed ROE based on the companies' forecasted average annual rate base. During the Multi-Year Plan, the ROE would be subject to adjustments for performance metrics relating to affordability of customer delivery service cost, the utility's customer service performance, delivery system reliability, supplier diversity, timeliness of response to customer requests for interconnection of distributed energy resources, and reductions in peak load due to demand response programs. SB 2408 provides for symmetrical performance-based ROE incentives and penalties in a range of 20-60 basis points in the aggregate. The revenue requirement for each calendar year would reflect the companies' actual capital structure for that year, with an equity ratio of up to 50% being deemed prudent and reasonable and a higher equity ratio requiring specific Illinois commission approval. Annual rate adjustments would be permitted under a Multi-Year Plan to reflect the actual annual revenue requirement based on YE rate base. The actual annual revenue requirement approved in an annual rate adjustment may not exceed 105% (a true-up cap) of the revenue requirement for the annual period approved by the Commission in the Multi-Year Plan. Annual reconciliations (subject to Commission prudence review) would be recovered from or refunded to customers within 24 months of the applicable annual period. Some forecasted costs are excluded from the true-up cap, including those associated with new business and facility relocations, major storms, changes in interest rates, changes in the timing of expenditures or investments that move the expenditure or investment into or out of the applicable calendar year, taxes (including income taxes and taxes other than income taxes), pension or other post-retirement benefits costs, and amortization of certain regulatory assets. The true-up cap also excludes costs recovered through riders (bad debt, purchased power, transmission costs) without a traditional rate proceeding. Like with the existing formula rate framework, electric distribution revenues would continue to be decoupled from sales volumes under a Multi-Year Plan. If a utility elects to file a Multi-Year Plan, the Bill permits the phase-in of any initial rate increase with at least 50% of the first year's approved rate increase reflected in the first year, with the remaining portion deferred as a regulatory asset and recovered in rates over a period not to exceed 24 months beginning within 12 months after the second year's rates are effective.

VALUATION METHODOLOGY

RISKS

Higher or lower power / capacity prices and favorable / unfavorable outcomes in regulatory proceedings would cause our valuation to be either higher or lower. Higher interest rates would pull utility earnings up in IL but pressure multiples so the net impact would likely be negative overall. A favorable outcome in the upcoming capacity auctions would be accretive but a significantly lower capacity auction price would be negative.

Ratings Definitions

Current Ratings Definition

Evercore ISI's recommendations are based on a stock's total forecasted return over the next 12 months. Total forecasted return is equal to the expected percentage price return plus gross dividend yield. We divide our stocks under coverage into three primary ratings categories, with the following return guidelines:

Outperform- the total forecasted return is expected to be greater than the expected total return of the analyst's coverage sector.
In Line- the total forecasted return is expected to be in line with the expected total return of the analyst's coverage sector.
Underperform- the total forecasted return is expected to be less than the expected total return of the analyst's coverage sector.
Coverage Suspended- the rating and target price have been removed pursuant to Evercore ISI policy when Evercore is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving this company and in certain other circumstances.*
Rating Suspended- Evercore ISI has suspended the rating and target price for this stock because there is not sufficient fundamental basis for determining, or there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints around publishing, a rating or target price. The previous rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this company and should not be relied upon.*

*Prior to October 10, 2015, the "Coverage Suspended" and "Rating Suspended" categories were included in the category "Suspended."

Historical Ratings Definitions

Prior to March 2, 2017, Evercore ISI's recommendations were based on a stock's total forecasted return over the next 12 months:

Buy- the total forecasted return is expected to be greater than 10%

Hold- the total forecasted return is expected to be greater than or equal to 0% and less than or equal to 10%
Sell -the total forecasted return is expected to be less than 0%

On October 31, 2014, Evercore Partners acquired International Strategy & Investment Group LLC ("ISI Group") and ISI UK (the "Acquisition") and transferred Evercore Group's research, sales and trading businesses to ISI Group. On December 31, 2015, the combined research, sales and trading businesses were transferred back to Evercore Group in an internal reorganization. Since the Acquisition, the combined research, sales and trading businesses have operated under the global marketing brand name Evercore ISI.

ISI Group and ISI UK:

Prior to October 10, 2014, the ratings system of ISI Group LLC and ISI UK which was based on a 12-month risk adjusted total return:

Strong Buy- Return > 20%
Buy- Return 10% to 20%
Neutral - Return 0% to 10%
Cautious- Return -10% to 0%
Sell- Return< -10%

For disclosure purposes, ISI Group and ISI UK ratings were viewed as follows: Strong Buy and Buy equate to Buy, Neutral equates to Hold, and Cautious and Sell equate to Sell.

Evercore Group:

Prior to October 10, 2014, the rating system of Evercore Group was based on a stock's expected total return relative to the analyst's coverage universe over the following 12 months. Stocks under coverage were divided into three categories:

Overweight- the stock is expected to outperform the average total return of the analyst's coverage universe over the next 12 months.
Equal-Weight- the stock is expected to perform in line with the average total return of the analyst's coverage universe over the next 12 months.
Underweight -the stock is expected to underperform the average total return of the analyst's coverage universe over the next 12 months.
Suspended- the company rating, target price and earnings estimates have been temporarily suspended.

Ratings Definitions for Portfolio-Based Coverage

Evercore ISI utilizes an alternate rating system for companies covered by analysts who use a model portfolio-based approach to determine a company's investment recommendation. Covered companies are included or not included as holdings in the analyst's Model Portfolio, and have the following ratings:

Long- the stock is a positive holding in the model portfolio; the total forecasted return is expected to be greater than 0%.
Short- the stock is a negative holding in the model portfolio; the total forecasted return is expected to be less than 0%.
No Position- the stock is not included in the model portfolio.
Coverage Suspended- the rating and target price have been removed pursuant to Evercore ISI policy when Evercore is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving this company, and in certain other circumstances; a stock in the model portfolio is removed.
Rating Suspended - Evercore ISI has suspended the rating and/or target price for this stock because there is not sufficient fundamental basis for determining, or there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints around publishing, a rating or target price. The previous rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this company and should not be relied upon; a stock in the model portfolio is removed.

Stocks included in the model portfolio will be weighted from 0 to 100% for Long and 0 to -100% for Short. A stock's weight in the portfolio reflects the analyst's degree of conviction in the stock's rating relative to other stocks in the portfolio. The model portfolio may also include a cash component. At any given time the aggregate weight of the stocks included in the portfolio and the cash component must equal100%.

Stocks assigned ratings under the alternative model portfolio-based coverage system cannot also be rated by Evercore ISI's Current Ratings definitions of Outperform, In Line and Underperform.

FINRA requires that members who use a ratings system with terms other than "Buy," "Hold/Neutral" and "Sell," to equate their own ratings to these categories. For this purpose, and in the Evercore ISI ratings distribution below, our Long, No Position and Short ratings can be equated to Buy, Hold and Sell respectively.

Analyst Day for RemainCo Post Spin of Constellation on February 1

Exelon held an analyst day highlighting the independent utility transmission and distribution company post the spin-out transaction of the Constellation competitive generation and retail investment expected on February 1. The Constellation spinco will hold an analyst day on January 11. The forecast updated stand alone earnings per share guidance is $2.06-$2.14 for 2021 and $2.18-$2.32 for 2022. The current utility and parent only UBSe EPS forecast for 2022 is $2.32. Rate base growth is projected to be 8.1% through 2025 (vs. 7.6% through 2024 previously) on ~$29 Billion (vs. $27 Billion previously through 2024) of capital expenditures, which brings forecast rate base to $65 Billion in 2025 versus $47.6 Billion in 2021. Customer rates are expected to increase at below the rate of inflation (2-2.5% per annum) across the forecast term. See Figure 1 below for the capital expenditure comparison.

A More Constructive Regulatory Recovery Model

Management highlighted the shift from 27% of rate recovery under traditional rate mechanisms in 2016 at the time of the 2017 - 2020 capital plan. Currently in the 2022 - 2025 rate base growth plan only 2% of rate recovery is under traditional rate recovery mechanisms. ComEd in Illinois remains under formula rates; however, this regulatory construct will change moving forward into 2024 as the recently passed Illinois reform legislation returns to commission driven rate regulation. See Figures 2 and 3 below.

Stand Alone Balance Sheet Allows for Increase in HoldCo Debt; Less Equity

The strength of the stand alone Exelon balance sheet, with 13%-14% FFO/Debt and CFO (Pre-WC)/Debt versus 12% downgrade thresholds, will allow for increased rate base growth to be funded with $1 Billion in equity over the plan and the increase in HoldCo debt to ~27% of total debt from ~22% in 2021. Increased HoldCo interest expense and slight equity dilution is included in management's earnings per share growth guidance of 6%-8% over the forecast term versus the 8.1% rate base growth through 2025. Forecast growth is above 7% at the midpoints into 2023, and the ComEd regulatory process into 2024 remains important to adjust ROEs to more normalized levels versus the level implied by the current tracking mechanism. We see operational cash flow of ~$14 Billion through 2025 and equity issuance of $1 Billion in line with Exelon's forecast. The $14 Billion of debt issuance to fund the capital program will break down as ~$9 Billion of utility issuance to maintain 51% equity ratios at the utility subsidiaries and ~$5 Billion in holding company issuance over the forecast. See Figures 4 and 5 below.

Valuation: Reiterating $63 Price Target

We value Exelon at $63/share on a SOTP (detailed methodology below).

The stronger stand alone balance sheet and existence as a T&D regulated utility of Exelon post spin affords the capability to increase holding company leverage from ~22% of total debt in 2021 to ~27% over the forecast period, which limits equity funding needs to ~$1 Billion through 2025.

Company Description

Exelon owns 6 regulated utility subsidiaries: Atlantic City Electric, BGE, ComEd, Delmarva Power, PECO and the Pepco Subsidiaries, which deliver electricity and natural gas to about 10m customers in DE, DC, IL, MD, NJ, and PA. Exelon also owns one of the largest competitive power generators in the US, with 35.5 GW of capacity, mostly in nuclear power plants, but also in gas, wind, solar, and hydroelectric generating facilities. The Constellation unit provides energy products and retail power services to approximately 2.2m customers across the generation fleet's footprint.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Our valuation methodology for the group is price-to-earnings based. The adjustments applied fall into 5 categories. These are as follows: 1) Group Valuation Bias: Flowing from our valuation work comparing Baa corporate yields to group dividend yields and RU price to earnings ratios to those for the S&P 500, we incorporate a positive or negative adjustment to our group multiple representing the gap we calculate to the nearest 5%; 2) Growth Adjustment: We adjust our valuations based on the growth quartile each utility occupies. First quartile receives a 5% premium, second quartile a 2% premium, third quartile a 2% discount and fourth quartile a 5% discount; 3) Regulatory Adjustment: Our valuation adjustments for regulation are based on our proprietary Regulatory Rankings. First quartile jurisdictions receive 5%, second quartile 2%, third quartile -2% and fourth quartile -5%; 4) Multi Utility Diversified Valuation: For multi utilities (those with more than 15% diversified or foreign earnings), we perform a sum-of-the-parts analysis applying business/region appropriate valuations to those diversified businesses; 5) One-off Adjustments: In special situations, we value risk on an issue-specific basis. Common areas where we apply such an adjustment include: ESG advantage, large project construction risk, legal risk, and announced M&A completion risk.

We value Exelon at $63/share on a sum-of-the-parts analysis. We value Exelon's Utility and Parent Only (UPO) at a net 12% premium to the group multiple of 18.1x our $2.51/share UPO earnings forecast for 2023. Our 12% net premium is derived from a 10% premium for the overall regulated utility group, premised upon the current undervaluation versus the Baa corporate bond rounded down to the nearest 5%, a 2% discount for a 3rd quartile regulatory ranking overall, a 5% premium for 1st quartile UPO earnings growth. This yields $52/share. We value the ExGen competitive generation business at 6.6x our 2023 estimated Open EBITDA of $2.4Bln, plus NPV of hedges of $0.1Bln less net debt of $5.5Bln, which yields $11/share.

Specific risks for Exelon include natural gas prices, power prices, nuclear operational risks, regulatory risks at the Pepco utilities, weather, interest rates, and relative cost of coal and uranium.

KEY DEFINITIONS: Forecast Stock Return (FSR) is defined as expected percentage price appreciation plus gross dividend yield over the next 12 months. In some cases, this yield may be based on accrued dividends. Market Return Assumption (MRA) is defined as the one-year local market interest rate plus 5% (a proxy for, and not a forecast of, the equity risk premium). Under Review (UR) Stocks may be flagged as UR by the analyst, indicating that the stock's price target and/or rating are subject to possible change in the near term, usually in response to an event that may affect the investment case or valuation. Short-Term Ratings reflect the expected near-term (up to three months) performance of the stock and do not reflect any change in the fundamental view or investment case. Equity Price Targets have an investment horizon of 12 months.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES: UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Committee (IRC). Factors considered by the IRC include the stock's volatility and the credit spread of the respective company's debt. As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

Global Disclaimer

This document has been prepared by UBS Securities LLC, an affiliate of UBS AG. UBS AG, its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates are referred to herein as UBS.

This Document is provided solely to recipients who are expressly authorized by UBS to receive it. If you are not so authorized you must immediately destroy the Document.

Global Research is provided to our clients through UBS Neo, and in certain instances, UBS.com and any other system or distribution method specifically identified in one or more communications distributed through UBS Neo or UBS.com (each a system) as an approved means for distributing Global Research. It may also be made available through third party vendors and distributed by UBS and/or third parties via e-mail or alternative electronic means. The level and types of services provided by Global Research to a client may vary depending upon various factors such as a client's individual preferences as to the frequency and manner of receiving communications, a client's risk profile and investment focus and perspective (e.g., market wide, sector specific, long-term, short-term, etc.), the size and scope of the overall client relationship with UBS and legal and regulatory constraints.

All Global Research is available on UBS Neo. Please contact your UBS sales representative if you wish to discuss your access to UBS Neo.

When you receive Global Research through a system, your access and/or use of such Global Research is subject to this Global Research Disclaimer and to the UBS Neo Platform Use Agreement (the "Neo Terms") together with any other relevant terms of use governing the applicable System.

When you receive Global Research via a third party vendor, e-mail or other electronic means, you agree that use shall be subject to this Global Research Disclaimer, the Neo Terms and where applicable the UBS Investment Bank terms of business (https://www.ubs.com/global/en/investment-bank/regulatory.html) and to UBS's Terms of Use/Disclaimer (http://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/disclaimer.html). In addition, you consent to UBS processing your personal data and using cookies in accordance with our Privacy Statement (http://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/privacy.html) and cookie notice (http://www.ubs.com/global/en/homepage/cookies/cookie-management.html).

If you receive Global Research, whether through a System or by any other means, you agree that you shall not copy, revise, amend, create a derivative work, provide to any third party, or in any way commercially exploit any UBS research provided via Global Research or otherwise, and that you shall not extract data from any research or estimates provided to you via Global Research or otherwise, without the prior written consent of UBS.

In certain circumstances (including for example, if you are an academic or a member of the media) you may receive Global Research otherwise than in the capacity of a client of UBS and you understand and agree that (i) the Global Research is provided to you for information purposes only; (ii) for the purposes of receiving it you are not intended to be and will not be treated as a "client" of UBS for any legal or regulatory purpose; (iii) the Global Research must not be relied on or acted upon for any purpose; and (iv) such content is subject to the relevant disclaimers that follow.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is a general communication and is educational in nature; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, structured derivative products and futures (including OTC derivatives) are not suitable for all investors. Trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "The Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You may read the document at http://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp or ask your salesperson for a copy. Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchases and sales of options, such as spreads and straddles. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the Information.

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and may differ or be contrary to opinions expressed by other business areas or groups, personnel or other representative of UBS. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes:

(i) valuation or accounting purposes;

(ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or

(iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. For further information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations, please visit https://www.ubs.com/disclosures.

Research will initiate, update and cease coverage solely at the discretion of UBS Research Management, which will also have sole discretion on the timing and frequency of any published research product. The analysis contained in this document is based on numerous assumptions. All material information in relation to published research reports, such as valuation methodology, risk statements, underlying assumptions (including sensitivity analysis of those assumptions), ratings history etc. as required by the Market Abuse Regulation, can be found on UBS Neo. Different assumptions could result in materially different results.

The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this document may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other parties for the purpose of gathering, applying and interpreting market information. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS into other areas, units, groups or affiliates of UBS. The compensation of the analyst who prepared this document is determined exclusively by research management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS's subsidiaries, branches and affiliates as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms under English law or, if not carried out by UBS in the UK the law of the relevant jurisdiction in which UBS determines it carries out the activity) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Within the past 12 months UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms in the UK) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Options and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options". You may read the document at https://www.theocc.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp or ask your financial advisor for a copy.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS Financial Services Inc. does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS Financial Services Inc. and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies and styles approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio consisting primarily of sustainable investments may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ. Companies may not necessarily meet high performance standards on all aspects of ESG or sustainable investing issues; there is also no guarantee that any company will meet expectations in connection with corporate responsibility, sustainability, and/or impact performance.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

RemainCo slides released; Constellation materials expected later. First thing this morning Exelon released its presentation materials for the first of two Analyst Day meetings scheduled for early this week. Today's meeting will address the outlook for the standalone Exelon T&D business and begins at 1pm ET. The bigger focus for the Street will likely be the Constellation meeting tomorrow, with more open questions regarding the financial outlook and business strategy. Constellation's meeting is set to begin at 8.30am ET on Tuesday and we are currently expecting those materials may be released after market close today.

Largest U.S. utility by customers served. We expect this today's Exelon RemainCo meeting to focus on the strengths of the Exelon T&D franchise with its six utilities covering four major metropolitan areas and serving over 10 million customers. This makes RemainCo the largest U.S. regulated utility measured by customers. Strong operational performance, favorable ESG positioning and increased reliance on alternative regulatory recovery mechanisms are some of the key elements emphasized in the slides.

Guidance for 2022 modestly above our estimate. Exelon is guiding to headline 2022 EPS of $2.18-$2.32, which points to a mid-point of $2.25 or $0.05 above the $2.20 number we have in our current model for RemainCo (utilities plus parent). We would note that the new 2022 midpoint is $0.05 lower than the RemainCo outlook given early last year ($2.20-$2.50) but by 2024 the numbers are slightly ahead. While 2021 will be less of a focus, the new standalone guide of $2.06-$2.14 for 2021 shakes out a nickel or so below our current $2.16E.

Implied 2024E implies $2/sh value uplift vs. VRPe. Looking forward, guidance is for 6-8% EPS growth through 2025. This works out to implied midpoints of $2.40 for 2023E, $2.57 for 2024E and $2.75 for 2025E. These midpoints are $0.06 above our current RemainCo 2023E and $0.13 higher by our 2024E valuation year. If we apply our average 2024E regulated target multiple of 17x to this delta it would increase our overall EXC value by ~$2+ per share all else equal.

Rate base CAGR of 8.1% through 2025; $1.7B (2.9%) higher for 2024E. Updated utility CapEx and rate base projections are shown to 2025 with a four-year (2022-2025) plan of $29B, up $2B (~7%) versus 2021-2024. Looking at the rate base projections, Exelon see $65B by 2025E from a 2021 base of $47.6B and implying compound growth of 8.1%. Compared to the prior projections from early 2021, forecast rate base for our 2024E valuation year is $60.5B versus $58.8B, which is up $1.7B or 2.9%. Looking at the individual utility numbers, the bulk of the upside to CapEx and rate base comes through in the second half of the planning period and we will look for further details on this at the meeting this afternoon.

Balanced financing plan still includes up to $1B of equity. In terms of financing, EXC project a balanced plan with $14B of $29B CapEx for 2022-2025 expected to be funded with cash from operations (net of dividends) and another $14B from utility and corporate debt issuance. This leaves ~$1B to be funded with new equity, unchanged from last year's outlook. We believe there was some expectation this equity component of the financing plan might be lowered or even eliminated, particularly after EXC announced the planned transfer of $1.75B of cash from RemainCo to Constellation as part of the separation agreement. In terms of credit metrics, the new plan envisages maintaining ~51% equity at the utilities and corporate debt as a percentage of total Exelon debt averaging 27% over the forecast period. Targets for cash flow to debt metrics at both S&P and Moody's are seen in the 13-14% range, allowing for a decent (100bp-200bp) cushion over respective downgrade thresholds.

Dividend set at $1.35 with 6-8% growth targeted. Exelon will set the 2022 RemainCo dividend at $1.35 based on a 60% payout ratio of operating earnings and expect to target 6-8% growth in line with operating earnings. This compares to the current 2021 dividend of $1.53, although Constellation are expected to pay a dividend per the Form 10 and we would expect this to be set at a level which would keep the existing EXC holder whole.

Exelon Corporation (EXC): Introduces solid 2022 guidance and long-term investment plan

Produced by Tucker, Shelby (RBC Capital Markets, LLC) on Monday, January 10, 2022, 08:17 AM ET

Disseminated on Monday, January 10, 2022, 08:22 AM ET

Our view: New long-term earnings guidance are in line with our expectations. We note that dividend payout stands at 68% ($1.53/share) based on 2022 EPS midpoint of $2.25, which is above the targeted 60% level. This suggests a slightly more modest dividend growth relative to earnings growth over the near term. We view targeted credit metrics to be on par with T&D utilities, with at least 100-bps cushion over investment grade thresholds.

EXC introduces 2022 utilities adjusted EPS guidance range of $2.18-$2.32. Our current estimate of $2.25 is in line with midpoint of guidance. Key highlights of today's announcements are as follows:

Investment plan. EXC highlights 2022-2025 4-year investment plan of $29B, with $18.9B planned for electric distribution, $3.7B in gas distribution and remaining $6.4B in electric transmission projects. EXC expects this to support total rate base of $65B by 2025, supporting CAGR of 8.1%.

Earnings and dividend. EXC anticipates 2022-2025 EPS CAGR of 6-8%, and dividend growth in line with earnings. EXC targets 60% payout ratio.

Balance sheet. EXC expects to fund the new $29B investment primarily with cash with operations (~$14B) and new debt issuance (~$14B) net of maturities and refinancings. EXC further expects $1B equity issuances over the 4 years. Management targets FFO/Debt at 13-14% compared to anticipated downgrade thresholds at ~12%.

What Happened?

Exelon Corp released their slide deck for their analyst day that will occur today between 1pm - 4pm eastern time. The spin co. transaction for ExGen is expected to close on February 1.

First Takes

Exelon increased capital expenditure guidance to $29 Billion from 2022 - 2025 from $27 Billion in 2021 - 2024. This increased go forward rate base growth to 8.1% to ~$65 Billion in 2025 from $48 Billion in 2021. This results in 6% - 8% operating earnings per share growth through 2025 from the $2.06-$2.14 2021 guidance range. Guidance was also issued for 2022 of $2.18 - $2.32 up from utility and parent only guidance for 2022 of $2.06-$2.14 previously. Exelon also indicated a 60% payout ratio target to a dividend per share of $1.35 in 2022 with projected growth in line with operational eps growth guidance. The funding plan will encompass $14 Billion of adjusted cash from operations through 2025, $5 Billion of debt maturities that will be refinanced, $14 Billion of debt issuance, and approximately $1 Billion of total equity needs. Debt issuance will maintain a ~51% equity ratio across the utilities and a ratio of corporate debt to Exelon debt of ~27% over the forecast period.

How Will Investors React?

Positive. Lower equity needs than expected, although slightly offset by higher corporate debt levels. Dividend guidance in line with expectations, and rate base growth slightly higher, with overall eps growth guidance in line, and 2022 guidance higher than prior utility and parent only guidance.

Valuation: Reiterating our $63 Price Target

We value Exelon at $63/share on a sum of the parts analysis. We value Exelon's Utility and Parent Only (UPO) at a net 13% premium to the group multiple of 18.3x our $2.51/share UPO earnings forecast for 2023. Our 13% net premium is derived from a 10% premium for the overall regulated utility group, premised upon the current undervaluation versus the Baa corporate bond rounded down to the nearest 5%, a 2% discount for a 3rd quartile regulatory ranking overall, a 5% premium for 1st quartile UPO earnings growth. This yields $52/share. We value the ExGen competitive generation business at a 6.6x our 2023 estimated Open EBITDA of $2.4Bln, plus NPV of hedges of $0.1Bln less net debt of $5.5Bln which yields $11/share.

Company Description

Exelon owns 6 regulated utility subsidiaries: Atlantic City Electric, BGE, ComEd, Delmarva Power, PECO and the Pepco Subsidiaries, which deliver electricity and natural gas to about 10m customers in DE, DC, IL, MD, NJ, and PA. Exelon also owns one of the largest competitive power generators in the US, with 35.5 GW of capacity, mostly in nuclear power plants, but also in gas, wind, solar, and hydroelectric generating facilities. The Constellation unit provides energy products and retail power services to approximately 2.2m customers across the generation fleet's footprint.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Our valuation methodology for the group is price to earnings based. The adjustments applied fall into 5 categories. These are as follows: 1) Group Valuation Bias: Flowing from our valuation work comparing Baa corporate yields to group dividend yields and RU price to earnings ratios to those for the S&P 500, we incorporate a positive or negative adjustment to our group multiple representing the gap we calculate to the nearest 5%; 2) Growth Adjustment: We adjust our valuations based on the growth quartile each utility occupies. First quartile receives a 5% premium, second quartile a 2% premium, third quartile a 2% discount and fourth quartile a 5% discount; 3) Regulatory Adjustment: Our valuation adjustments for regulation are based on our proprietary Regulatory Rankings. First quartile jurisdictions receive 5%, second quartile 2%, third quartile -2% and fourth quartile -5%; 5) Multi Utility Diversified Valuation: For multi utilities (those with more than 15% diversified or foreign earnings), we perform a sum-of-parts analysis applying business/region appropriate valuations to those diversified businesses; 6) One-off Adjustments: In special situations, we value risk on an issue specific basis. Common areas where we apply such an adjustment include: ESG advantage, large project construction risk, legal risk, and announced M&A completion risk.

We value Exelon at $63/share on a sum of the parts analysis. We value Exelon's Utility and Parent Only (UPO) at a net 12% premium to the group multiple of 18.1x our $2.51/share UPO earnings forecast for 2023. Our 12% net premium is derived from a 10% premium for the overall regulated utility group, premised upon the current undervaluation versus the Baa corporate bond rounded down to the nearest 5%, a 2% discount for a 3rd quartile regulatory ranking overall, a 5% premium for 1st quartile UPO earnings growth,. This yields $52/share. We value the ExGen competitive generation business at a 6.6x our 2023 estimated Open EBITDA of $2.4Bln, plus NPV of hedges of $0.1Bln less net debt of $5.5Bln which yields $11/share.

Specific risks for Exelon include natural gas prices, power prices, nuclear operational risks, regulatory risks at the Pepco utilities, weather, interest rates, and relative cost of coal and uranium.

The Disclaimer relevant to Global Wealth Management clients follows the Global Disclaimer.

Global Disclaimer

This document has been prepared by UBS Securities LLC, an affiliate of UBS AG. UBS AG, its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates are referred to herein as UBS.

This Document is provided solely to recipients who are expressly authorized by UBS to receive it. If you are not so authorized you must immediately destroy the Document.

Global Research is provided to our clients through UBS Neo, and in certain instances, UBS.com and any other system or distribution method specifically identified in one or more communications distributed through UBS Neo or UBS.com (each a system) as an approved means for distributing Global Research. It may also be made available through third party vendors and distributed by UBS and/or third parties via e-mail or alternative electronic means. The level and types of services provided by Global Research to a client may vary depending upon various factors such as a client's individual preferences as to the frequency and manner of receiving communications, a client's risk profile and investment focus and perspective (e.g., market wide, sector specific, long-term, short-term, etc.), the size and scope of the overall client relationship with UBS and legal and regulatory constraints.

All Global Research is available on UBS Neo. Please contact your UBS sales representative if you wish to discuss your access to UBS Neo.

When you receive Global Research through a system, your access and/or use of such Global Research is subject to this Global Research Disclaimer and to the UBS Neo Platform Use Agreement (the "Neo Terms") together with any other relevant terms of use governing the applicable System.

When you receive Global Research via a third party vendor, e-mail or other electronic means, you agree that use shall be subject to this Global Research Disclaimer, the Neo Terms and where applicable the UBS Investment Bank terms of business (https://www.ubs.com/global/en/investment-bank/regulatory.html) and to UBS's Terms of Use/Disclaimer (http://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/disclaimer.html). In addition, you consent to UBS processing your personal data and using cookies in accordance with our Privacy Statement (http://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/privacy.html) and cookie notice (http://www.ubs.com/global/en/homepage/cookies/cookie-management.html).

If you receive Global Research, whether through a System or by any other means, you agree that you shall not copy, revise, amend, create a derivative work, provide to any third party, or in any way commercially exploit any UBS research provided via Global Research or otherwise, and that you shall not extract data from any research or estimates provided to you via Global Research or otherwise, without the prior written consent of UBS.

In certain circumstances (including for example, if you are an academic or a member of the media) you may receive Global Research otherwise than in the capacity of a client of UBS and you understand and agree that (i) the Global Research is provided to you for information purposes only; (ii) for the purposes of receiving it you are not intended to be and will not be treated as a "client" of UBS for any legal or regulatory purpose; (iii) the Global Research must not be relied on or acted upon for any purpose; and (iv) such content is subject to the relevant disclaimers that follow.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is a general communication and is educational in nature; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, structured derivative products and futures (including OTC derivatives) are not suitable for all investors. Trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "The Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You may read the document at http://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp or ask your salesperson for a copy. Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchases and sales of options, such as spreads and straddles. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the Information.

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and may differ or be contrary to opinions expressed by other business areas or groups, personnel or other representative of UBS. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes:

(i) valuation or accounting purposes;

(ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or

(iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. For further information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations, please visit https://www.ubs.com/disclosures.

Research will initiate, update and cease coverage solely at the discretion of UBS Research Management, which will also have sole discretion on the timing and frequency of any published research product. The analysis contained in this document is based on numerous assumptions. All material information in relation to published research reports, such as valuation methodology, risk statements, underlying assumptions (including sensitivity analysis of those assumptions), ratings history etc. as required by the Market Abuse Regulation, can be found on UBS Neo. Different assumptions could result in materially different results.

The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this document may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other parties for the purpose of gathering, applying and interpreting market information. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS into other areas, units, groups or affiliates of UBS. The compensation of the analyst who prepared this document is determined exclusively by research management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS's subsidiaries, branches and affiliates as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms under English law or, if not carried out by UBS in the UK the law of the relevant jurisdiction in which UBS determines it carries out the activity) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Within the past 12 months UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms in the UK) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Options and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options". You may read the document at https://www.theocc.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp or ask your financial advisor for a copy.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS Financial Services Inc. does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS Financial Services Inc. and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies and styles approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio consisting primarily of sustainable investments may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ. Companies may not necessarily meet high performance standards on all aspects of ESG or sustainable investing issues; there is also no guarantee that any company will meet expectations in connection with corporate responsibility, sustainability, and/or impact performance.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

Energy: Electric Utilities

Heads Up — The Week Ahead in Utilities: EXC, AY, EIX, SRE, ENPH, RUN, NOVA, AEP, POR, XEL. AGR, ED, ES, DUK, D

Sophie Karp / (917) 368-2361 / sophie.karp@key.com
Brendan Cutler / (917) 368-2345 / brendan.cutler@key.com

In the week ahead we are tracking oral arguments at CPUC on the NEM Successor Tarriffs, proceedings in AEP's AR rates case, POR's OR GRC, and EXC's MD electric GRC. In other news, we are hosting AY's senior management for a day of meetings on Friday, January 14. EXC is hosting two analyst days this week, and we published a detailed note previewing valuation and debt metrics for EXC and Constellation. XEL's settlement in the CO GRC was made public; the ME Supreme Court agreed to take up AGR's challenge to the ballot referendum; Governor Hochul addressed Clean Energy at the State of the State; ES's NSTAR Electric received MA DPU approval for its PBR filing; the NC governor issued an EO on GHG reduction; VA's SCC approved Phase II of D's Grid Transformation Plan; and PUCT issued a draft order in AEP SWEPCO's TX GRC.

ICYMI

EXC — We published a detailed note ahead of this week's analyst days previewing the potential valuation and debt metrics for EXC and the merchant spinco Constellation. The note is available here.

Upcoming Calendar Event

AY — We are hosting AY's senior management for a day of meetings on Friday, January 14. Please contact your sales representative or contact us to schedule a meeting. Our recent research on AY can be accessed here and here.

Regulatory Calendar

A full regulatory calendar for companies in our coverage is provided below. We provide details on this week's key regulatory events.

EIX, SRE, RUN, ENPH, NOVA — Oral arguments in the CA NEM Successor Tariffs docket are scheduled for January 12: Oral arguments are likely to be presented by utilities and solar industry participants. We have written in detail on these proceedings and our note can be accessed here. While a detailed agenda is not available yet, a final vote on the docket may be scheduled for the January 27 CPUC Voting Meeting.

AEP — Company rebuttal in AEP's AR rate case is scheduled for January 13: In line with plan, AEP recently filed a rate case in AR: SWEPCO filed an electric rate case with the AR PSC (Docket: 21-070-U) for an $85M rate increase premised on a 10.35% ROE. The primary drivers of the rate case are investments in generation and T&D infrastructure along with plans to retire certain coal units or to modify operations at them. SWEPCO has also requested for rates to be regulated under the FRP statute, and to that end, AEP has provided a proposed FRR rider with the filing.

POR — Staff/Intervenor Rebuttal in POR's OR GRC is scheduled for January 13: OR PUC staff, interveners, and POR have already reached a partial settlement in the pending GRC. The settlement addresses the rate increase and recommends that the Commission approve a $30.7M electric rate increase—below POR's $59M original request. The delta includes a $9M capital cost reduction related to the new Integrated Operations Center; $10.5M of certain capital costs, which are recommended for consideration in a future case; and a $6.9M reduction of O&M expenses associated with the February winter storm. POR will seek to recover the storm costs through a separate deferral. As a reminder, the first partial settlement addressed the cost of capital and recommended that the Commission approve a 9.5% ROE and 50% equity layer—in line with POR's request. POR initially filed a GRC in June for the recovery of base business investments in upgrading the grid and increased vegetation management. Other proposals include an accelerated depreciation schedule and separate revenue requirement for Colstrip and removing the 2% cap on decoupling.

EXC — Surrebuttal testimony in Delmarva's MD electric GRC is scheduled for January 14: PSC staff and OPC recently proposed rate increases of $5.6M and $4.3M, respectively. The delta compared to EXC's ask of $27M appears to be centered around a lower recommended ROE and lower allowed depreciation expense relative to EXC's ask. The Staff and OPC recommend reductions of $14M and $12M, respectively, to the $18.3M depreciation expense requested by EXC. While EXC is asking for a 10.1% ROE, the PSC and OPC proposed ROEs of 9.5% and 9.0%, respectively. A final PSC decision must be rendered by March 30, 2022. The filing is requesting rate increases to reflect planned spending and reliability investments that will be placed in service through March 2022 and the recovery of COVID-related regulatory assets, following which EXC plans to file a multiyear rate plan for the period 2023-2025.

Recent Developments for Companies Under Our Coverage

From our midweek: AGR and PNM announced an extension of the merger agreement to April 2023 and PNM filed with the NM Supreme Court to appeal the NM PRC's decision to reject the proposed merger with AGR; AEP's APCo submits plans in VA to acquire or contract 500MW of renewables; DOJ files a response to AEE's plan to retire Rush Island early; NY Climate Action Council drafts a scoping memo to achieve the state's clean energy goals; the FPL and Gulf Power integration is formally complete and a vacancy emerges at the ND PUC.

XEL — Settlement terms in the CO Electric GRC made public: XEL and involved stakeholders reached a comprehensive settlement, the terms of which were made public last week. The settlement allows XEL a net rate increase of $182M based on an ROE of 9.3% and an equity ration of 55.69%. The settlement allows for a continuation of the AGIS deferral and continuation of the deferral mechanism under the Wildfire Mitigation Plan. As a refresher, XEL sought a net rate increase of $338M (netted for the Cheyenne Wind Project that came online in 3Q20 and the TCA rider) on 10% ROE and 55.64% equity layer. Hearings to discuss the settlement are scheduled for this month and a PUC decision is expected in 1Q22 with rates effective in April (Docket: 21AL-0317E).

AGR — ME Supreme Court agrees to take up AGR's challenge to the 2021 referendum: AGR filed a lawsuit following an unfavorable outcome in the November 2021 ballot referendum. AGR filed a lawsuit in the ME Superior Court challenging the citizens' initiative. The lawsuit contends that the referendum intends to retroactively change the law to block NECEC and is unconstitutional and violates state and federal legal principles including vested property rights (ME law protects a property owner who has invested in a project after following the laws in place at the time, which AGR has done), separation of powers (the referendum attempts to reverse decisions of the executive and judicial branches through legislative actions), and contracts clause (by attempting to cancel a 25-year lease signed by NECEC with the state of ME). It appears that the Court has set a deadline of February 28 for briefs by AGR and other opponents of the law and April 18 for briefs by supporters. Oral arguments will likely follow.

ED, AGR — Governor Hochul addresses Clean Energy in the State of the State address:

- Offshore Wind: Among her proposals is a $500M investment in critical offshore wind infrastructure including ports, manufacturing, and supply chain infrastructure. The next offshore wind RFP in 2022 is expected to result in at least 2 GW of new projects. The state will initiate planning for an offshore wind transmission network.
- New York City will see an 80% reduction in fossil fuel use for electricity by 2030 through a build-out of wind and solar and using existing hydro.
- In line with the growth in renewable generation, the governor is proposing to double storage deployment to at least 6 GW by 2030.
- The address included proposals for building electrification and a commitment to zero on-site GHG for new construction by 2027.

ES — NSTAR Electric receives MA DPU approval for rate increase: ES filed for a rate increase for NSTAR Electric under the performance based rate making framework. The Commission approved ES's revised request for $36.8M. ES's revised request excluded recovery of costs related to new methodology for computing property tax valuations. The current PBR remains in place through 2022. MA law requires electric utilities to file a rate case with the DPU once every five years, and we expect that ES will file a rate case in 2022.

DUK — NC governor builds on HB 951 momentum and signs an EO to reduce GHG: The Governor's EO calls for a reduction in GHG by 50% by 2030 (vs. 2005) and reaching net zero by no later than 2050. The order followed the passage of HB 951 last year. We expect the legislation and the EO to shape the final outcome of DUK's NC IRP, and the structure of DUK's next rate case, which we believe will be filed in 2022, will be a multiyear rate case and will take into account the provisions of HB 951 (including PBR, coal ash securitization, and coal retirements, among others).

D — SCC approves Phase II of Grid Transformation Plan: The plan includes projects to facilitate the increase in DER resulting from the VCEA and FERC Order 2222. The Commission also approved D's AMI proposal that was previously denied. The approval includes projects totaling $650M of investments over 2022 and 2023 and D will seek cost recovery in a future proceeding.

AEP — PUCT issued a draft order in SWEPCO's TX rate case: The draft order is based on a ROE of 9.25% vs. SWEPCO's request for 10.35% ROE, ALJ recommendation of 9.45%, and Chair Lake's proposal of 9.3%. SWEPCO's original ask was for a $100M rate increase, Commission approved the $56M revenue increase proposed in the ALJ PD. PUCT concurred with the ALJ on the proposed treatment of Dolet Hills coal plant. SWEPCO proposed to use regulatory liabilities from the 2017 corporate tax reform to partially offset stranded costs associated with the planned early retirement of Dolet Hills, scheduled to be shut down at YE21. The ALJ disapproved SWEPCO's proposed methodology for recovering the unamortized balance and proposed that a regulatory asset for the remaining net book value be created and amortized without a return, using the original end useful life date of 2046. In addition, the Commission approved SWEPCO's request to establish a self-insurance reserve for cost recovery associated with service restoration post-Hurricane Laura and funding for vegetation management.

Analyst Days for RemainCo and SpinCo

The company will hold analyst days for Exelon Corp (RemainCo) and Constellation (SpinCo) on Monday January 10 (1-4pm) and Tuesday January 11 (8:30am - 12pm). The analyst days will be webcast from the Exelon Corp. investor relations website (www.exeloncorp.com/investor-relations). The NY Public Service Commission approved the spin transaction on 12/16 and the SEC deemed the Form 10 effective on 12/29, which would put the expectation for the spin transaction on 2/1/22, and for SpinCo to begin trading under the symbol "CEG" on 2/2/22.

What to Watch For at the Analyst Day

For Exelon (RemainCo) we believe investors will be focused on the potential to accelerate rate base growth, the equity funding need related to that rate base growth with the absence of ExGen free cash flow post spin, the level of cost dis-synergies if any or how they were mitigated, the dynamics of the multi-year rate cases, and the targeted dividend payout ratio. For Constellation (ExGen/SpinCo) we believe investors will be focused on the allocation of free cash flow, the level of dividend payout, the growth strategy with the free cash flow post dividend, disclosure of hedging for 2022, 2023, and 2024, likelihood and magnitude of return of cash to shareholders, EBITDA guidance for 2022 and growth guidance for 2023+, cost structure as an independent company, and any greater level of disclosure for the retail segment of the business.

What's Priced In?

We value the utility business at $52/share in our SOTP. We value ExGen at $11/share premised upon a half turn discount to mid-cycle multiples (6.6x) our 2023 forecast EBITDA of $2,478mln. We have assumed ratable hedging of ~65% in 2023. The current share price implies $5/share for ExGen, and we see the range of potential valuation to be between VST's IPP comp multiple of 5.9x of $9/share and an infrastructure based comp of 10.4x premised upon our SIP SOTP which would imply $21/share. (link).

Valuation: Reiterating our $63 Price Target

We value Exelon at $63/share on a sum of the parts analysis. We value Exelon's Utility and Parent Only (UPO) at a net 13% premium to the group multiple of 18.3x our $2.51/share UPO earnings forecast for 2023. Our 13% net premium is derived from a 10% premium for the overall regulated utility group, premised upon the current undervaluation versus the Baa corporate bond rounded down to the nearest 5%, a 2% discount for a 3rd quartile regulatory ranking overall, a 5% premium for 1st quartile UPO earnings growth. This yields $52/share. We value the ExGen competitive generation business at a 6.6x our 2023 estimated Open EBITDA of $2.5Bln, plus NPV of hedges of $0.1Bln less net debt of $5.5Bln which yields $11/share.

Company Description

Exelon owns 6 regulated utility subsidiaries: Atlantic City Electric, BGE, ComEd, Delmarva Power, PECO and the Pepco Subsidiaries, which deliver electricity and natural gas to about 10m customers in DE, DC, IL, MD, NJ, and PA. Exelon also owns one of the largest competitive power generators in the US, with 35.5 GW of capacity, mostly in nuclear power plants, but also in gas, wind, solar, and hydroelectric generating facilities. The Constellation unit provides energy products and retail power services to approximately 2.2m customers across the generation fleet's footprint.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Our valuation methodology for the group is price to earnings based. The adjustments applied fall into 5 categories. These are as follows: 1) Group Valuation Bias: Flowing from our valuation work comparing Baa corporate yields to group dividend yields and RU price to earnings ratios to those for the S&P 500, we incorporate a positive or negative adjustment to our group multiple representing the gap we calculate to the nearest 5%; 2) Growth Adjustment: We adjust our valuations based on the growth quartile each utility occupies. First quartile receives a 5% premium, second quartile a 2% premium, third quartile a 2% discount and fourth quartile a 5% discount; 3) Regulatory Adjustment: Our valuation adjustments for regulation are based on our proprietary Regulatory Rankings. First quartile jurisdictions receive 5%, second quartile 2%, third quartile -2% and fourth quartile -5%; 5) Multi Utility Diversified Valuation: For multi utilities (those with more than 15% diversified or foreign earnings), we perform a sum-of-parts analysis applying business/region appropriate valuations to those diversified businesses; 6) One-off Adjustments: In special situations, we value risk on an issue specific basis. Common areas where we apply such an adjustment include: ESG advantage, large project construction risk, legal risk, and announced M&A completion risk.

We value Exelon at $62/share on a sum of the parts analysis. We value Exelon's Utility and Parent Only (UPO) at a net 12% premium to the group multiple of 18.1x our $2.51/share UPO earnings forecast for 2023. Our 12% net premium is derived from a 10% premium for the overall regulated utility group, premised upon the current undervaluation versus the Baa corporate bond rounded down to the nearest 5%, a 2% discount for a 3rd quartile regulatory ranking overall, a 5% premium for 1st quartile UPO earnings growth,. This yields $52/share. We value the ExGen competitive generation business at a 6.6x our 2023 estimated Open EBITDA of $2.4Bln, plus NPV of hedges of $0.1Bln less net debt of $5.5Bln which yields $11/share.

Specific risks for Exelon include natural gas prices, power prices, nuclear operational risks, regulatory risks at the Pepco utilities, weather, interest rates, and relative cost of coal and uranium.

Required Disclosures

This report has been prepared by UBS Securities LLC, an affiliate of UBS AG. UBS AG, its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates are referred to herein as UBS.

For information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research product; historical performance information; certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations; and terms and conditions for certain third party data used in research report, please visit https://www.ubs.com/disclosures. The figures contained in performance charts refer to the past; past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results. Additional information will be made available upon request. UBS Securities Co. Limited is licensed to conduct securities investment consultancy businesses by the China Securities Regulatory Commission. UBS acts or may act as principal in the debt securities (or in related derivatives) that may be the subject of this report. This recommendation was finalized on: 10 January 2022 12:56 AM GMT. UBS has designated certain Research department members as Derivatives Research Analysts where those department members publish research principally on the analysis of the price or market for a derivative, and provide information reasonably sufficient upon which to base a decision to enter into a derivatives transaction. Where Derivatives Research Analysts co-author research reports with Equity Research Analysts or Economists, the Derivatives Research Analyst is responsible for the derivatives investment views, forecasts, and/or recommendations. Quantitative Research Review: UBS publishes a quantitative assessment of its analysts' responses to certain questions about the likelihood of an occurrence of a number of short term factors in a product known as the 'Quantitative Research Review'. Views contained in this assessment on a particular stock reflect only the views on those short term factors which are a different timeframe to the 12-month timeframe reflected in any equity rating set out in this note. For the latest responses, please click https://neo.ubs.com/quantitative, or speak to your UBS sales representative for access to the report.

Analyst Certification:
Each research analyst primarily responsible for the content of this research report, in whole or in part, certifies that with respect to each security or issuer that the analyst covered in this report: (1) all of the views expressed accurately reflect his or her personal views about those securities or issuers and were prepared in an independent manner, including with respect to UBS, and (2) no part of his or her compensation was, is, or will be, directly or indirectly, related to the specific recommendations or views expressed by that research analyst in the research report.

1:Percentage of companies under coverage globally within the 12-month rating category.
2:Percentage of companies within the 12-month rating category for which investment banking (IB) services were provided within the past 12 months.
3:Percentage of companies under coverage globally within the Short-Term rating category.
4:Percentage of companies within the Short-Term rating category for which investment banking (IB) services were provided within the past 12 months.

KEY DEFINITIONS: Forecast Stock Return (FSR) is defined as expected percentage price appreciation plus gross dividend yield over the next 12 months. In some cases, this yield may be based on accrued dividends. Market Return Assumption (MRA) is defined as the one-year local market interest rate plus 5% (a proxy for, and not a forecast of, the equity risk premium). Under Review (UR) Stocks may be flagged as UR by the analyst, indicating that the stock's price target and/or rating are subject to possible change in the near term, usually in response to an event that may affect the investment case or valuation. Short-Term Ratings reflect the expected near-term (up to three months) performance of the stock and do not reflect any change in the fundamental view or investment case. Equity Price Targets have an investment horizon of 12 months.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES: UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Committee (IRC). Factors considered by the IRC include the stock's volatility and the credit spread of the respective company's debt. As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

This document is a general communication and is educational in nature; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, structured derivative products and futures (including OTC derivatives) are not suitable for all investors. Trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "The Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You may read the document at http://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp or ask your salesperson for a copy. Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchases and sales of options, such as spreads and straddles. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the Information.

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is for your information only; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, derivative products and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky. Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the information (as defined below).

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and may differ or be contrary to opinions expressed by other business areas or groups, personnel or other representative of UBS. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes: (i) valuation or accounting purposes; (ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or (iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS (including between Global Wealth Management and UBS Global Research) and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. For further information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations, please visit https://www.ubs.com/disclosures.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms in the UK) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Options and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options". You may read the document at https://www.theocc.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp or ask your financial advisor for a copy.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS Financial Services Inc. does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS Financial Services Inc. and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies and styles approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio consisting primarily of sustainable investments may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ. Companies may not necessarily meet high performance standards on all aspects of ESG or sustainable investing issues; there is also no guarantee that any company will meet expectations in connection with corporate responsibility, sustainability, and/or impact performance.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

WATTS COOKING? Weekly

Topics: PNM; EXC; Nuclear SMRs; XEL; ShUFL

Weekly developments that we found to be of interest.

WATTS on Your Mind

This past week investors focused on the outlook for 2022. Of particular interest has been whether the sector will continue to perform well following the December outperformance. We have argued "no", based on the belief that, once the world economy adjusts to the Omicron variant, the market will gravitate toward growth. A few questions also focus on the impact inflation or, at least, a rising interest rate environment, would have on utilities. While most investors still view utilities as a sector to avoid during growing Treasury yield, we have argued that higher rates may have a greater impact on the broader market than it will have on utilities.

Turning to stock-specific topics, investors inquired the most about PNM and EXC. The former is attracting funds that believe that PNM is trading at a discount to other smidcap utilities, yet is still 10% away from the AGR (not covered) cash offer. Other investors see New Mexico as unfriendly given the recent commission decision against the merger. For EXC, many are trying to predict what will be said during this week's Investor Days for Exelon (Jan. 10) and Constellation (Jan. 11, formerly Exelon Generating). The absence of a vote for the Build Back Better act has created some uncertainty regarding Constellation's ultimate valuation.

WATTS on Our Mind

This past Wednesday, the NRC denied an application for a small modular reactor (SMR) from Oklo, a startup developing advanced nuclear technology. Commission staff cited Oklo's repeated failure to provide sufficient information on various safety methodologies and design features. Oklo may resubmit the application in the future. Oklo's micro-reactor design (1.5MW) is the second SMR design application. In July 2021, the NRC approved NuScale's small light water reactor (LWR) capable of producing 50MW each and up to 600MW when housed together with multiple reactors. Our view: We don't think the NRC's denial indicates changes in regulatory stance towards the advanced nuclear industry. The $1.2T infrastructure package passed last year carves out $3.2 billion to the Department of Energy to support SMR development. It is unclear whether SMRs would receive potential zero emission credits that are meant to support existing facilities. If successfully developed, SMRs could provide utilities a cost-effective option for centralized clean energy supply for the long-term, although we do not expect any U.S. utility to commit to SMR technology anytime soon.

WATTS on the ShUFL

We are moving EIX to the #2 spot on the Best Plays, which displaces NEE and AEP. WTRG drops off the Defensive Plays list, replaced by PNM.

Shelby's Utility Focus List (ShUFL)

We are shuffling around our lists given recent wide relative performance. Starting with the Best Plays list, we are moving EIX back up to the #2 spot behind AES. This pushes down NEE and AEP to the #3 and #4 spots, respectively.

We are removing WTRG from our Defensive Plays list. The stock is up 10.4% since the end of November 2021 compared to the XLU up 7.1% and the S&P 500 up 2.4%. We are replacing it with PNM. While PNM's implied upside is limited to $50.30 as long as the merger agreement with AGR holds, we believe that the downside is limited too, as the stock currently trades at an 8% discount to a peer group of smidcap utilities (ALE, AVA, IDA, HE, and POR, none of which we cover). PNM starts at the #2 spot. XEL moves to the #4 spot from #2, while SO moves up to #3. AEP remains our top Defensive idea.

On Wednesday, PSCo, XEL's Colorado utility, along with interveners, filed a comprehensive unopposed settlement for the current general rate case. The total request of $470mm included $127mm in previously authorized costs currently recovered through riders. The settlement included a net increase of $177mm and a total of $299mm. Our view: Overall a relatively constructive outcome, with cost of capital ratios mostly unchanged (ROE at 9.3%; equity ratio at 55.6%). All eyes will be on the recovery of the cost tied to the early retirement Craig unit 2 and the Hayden Generation Station units 1 and 2, which were not part of the settlement.

This product constitutes a compendium report (covers six or more subject companies). As such, RBC Capital Markets chooses to provide specific disclosures for the subject companies by reference. To access conflict of interest and other disclosures for the subject companies, clients should refer to https://www.rbccm.com/GLDisclosure/PublicWeb/DisclosureLookup.aspx?entityId=1. These disclosures are also available by sending a written request to RBC Capital Markets Research Publishing, P.O. Box 50, 200 Bay Street, Royal Bank Plaza, 29th Floor, South Tower, Toronto, Ontario M5J 2W7 or an email to rbcinsight@rbccm.com.

The analyst(s) responsible for preparing this research report received compensation that is based upon various factors, including total revenues of the member companies of RBC Capital Markets and its affiliates, a portion of which are or have been generated by investment banking activities of the member companies of RBC Capital Markets and its affiliates.

Distribution of ratings

or send a request to RBC Capital Markets Research Publishing, P.O. Box 50, 200 Bay Street, Royal Bank Plaza, 29th Floor, South Tower, Toronto, Ontario M5J 2W7. We reserve the right to amend or supplement this policy at any time.
With regard to the MAR investment recommendation requirements in relation to relevant securities, a member company of Royal Bank of Canada, together with its affiliates, may have a net long or short financial interest in excess of 0.5% of the total issued share capital of the entities mentioned in the investment recommendation. Information relating to this is available upon request from your RBC investment advisor or institutional salesperson.

Dissemination of research and short-term trade ideas

RBC Capital Markets endeavors to make all reasonable efforts to provide research content simultaneously to all eligible clients, having regard to local time zones in overseas jurisdictions. RBC Capital Markets provides eligible clients with access to Equity Research Reports and to SPARC on the Firm's proprietary INSIGHT website, via email and via third-party vendors. SPARC contains market color and commentary regarding subject companies on which the Firm currently provides equity research coverage. Research Analysts may, from time to time, include short-term trade ideas in Research Reports and / or in SPARC. A short-term trade idea offers a short-term view on how a security may trade, based on market and trading events, and the resulting trading opportunity that may be available. A short-term trade idea may differ from the price targets and recommendations in our published Research Reports reflecting the Research Analyst's views of the longer-term (one year) prospects of the subject company, as a result of the differing time horizons, methodologies and/or other factors. Thus, it is possible that a subject company's common equity that is considered a long-term 'Sector Perform' or even an 'Underperform' might present a short-term buying opportunity as a result of temporary selling pressure in the market; conversely, a subject company's common equity rated a long-term 'Outperform' could be considered susceptible to a short-term downward price correction. Short-term trade ideas are not ratings, nor are they part of any ratings system, and the firm generally does not intend, nor undertakes any obligation, to maintain or update short-term trade ideas. Short-term trade ideas may not be suitable for all investors and have not been tailored to individual investor circumstances and objectives, and investors should make their own independent decisions regarding any securities or strategies discussed herein. EXC: Straightforward Spin? Constellation Details Much Appreciated, but Expectations Should Be Otherwise Grounded (link HERE)

PCG – Justice Department attorneys will not seek PG&E probation extension

NEE – FPL pushes back on media transparency in coverage of alleged political funding misuse; FL House members send audit request to FPSC

D/VA – Youngkin begins filling administration positions

SRE – Wildfire Management Plan Audit issued for SDG&E, finds only minor accounting recommendations

M&A/Power – Bidding process ongoing for two ERCOT CTs

POR – Intervenor asks for 6 day delay to GRC schedule

EVRG – EVRG to build 10MW solar farm at Hawthorn plant

PCG – Justice Department attorneys will not seek PG&E probation extension

- The Justice Department attorneys noted that they will not seek an extension of PG&E probation in the closing hearings.
- The JD prosecutors acknowledged a lack of case law to extend the probation and the concurrent nature of probation terms.
- Media coverage and more detail here.

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. The probation process has been contentious with a lot of back and forth between monitors, the judge and PG&E. As we anticipated, there is not enough interest and precedent to apply for an extension, despite the probation judge's stern comments on potential extension. This effectively puts the probation on track to close by the end of January. Beyond the federal probation, PG&E is under enhanced oversight from the CPUC.

NEE – FPL pushes back on media transparency in coverage of alleged political funding misuse; FL House members send audit request to FPSC

- FPL published a web site pushing back on the Miami Herald's coverage of allegations made against FPL, citing misinformed/biased reporting, refusing and/or editing FPL's OpEd without permission.
- Other media sources report that in the aftermath of the confusion, FL lawmakers (House) sent a letter to the FPSC requesting an audit of FPL's use of ratepayer funds.
- FPL media here.
- Other media here.

Guggenheim takeaway: Media noise surrounding FPL political spending and use of ratepayer funds has been in the media since late December 2021, but confusion seems to have peaked yesterday. FPL published commentary on what the company sees as misguided and biased reporting form the Miami Herald, as well as the media source refusing to publish FPL's OpEd rebuttal and later publishing a non-consented, edited version. The FPL rebuttal also highlights the rooftop solar interests potential link to the biased coverage

Provided for the exclusive use of Lindsay Cox at Exelon Corp on 06-May-2022 11:35 AM.

(FL legislature is working on net metering legislation to address cost shifts / subsidization of rooftop solar). The adversarial media coverage has prompted FL legislators to request an audit form the FPSC on FPL's use of ratepayer funding. It is unclear what the level of response from the FPSC could be, but the FPSC has a deep testimonial record of FPL's financials from the general rate case that was settled and approved just 1 month ago. NEE has not denied political spending, but mgmt. has long stated multiple levels of compliance and controls for any political contributions including at the board level and through independent auditors. From our perspective the media spat originated from competing interests, and while the rooftop solar debate is reported on with allegations of controversy, the same debate has been taking place in CA for multiple years, with a net energy metering 3.0 decision pending with the CPUC that is well documented and seeks to address the same cost shift goals as the FL legislature. We view the allegations against FPL with a bit of skepticism (given the strong track record with operations and the FPSC) and do not see datapoints for misappropriation of ratepayer funds. Shares are crowded and widely owned, so we see the trading rationale why NEE materially underperformed on this yesterday, but we see this as nothing more than headline noise.

D/VA – Youngkin begins filling administration positions

- "Governor-elect Glenn Youngkin today announced he has chosen Andrew Wheeler as the next Secretary of Natural Resources and Michael Rolband as the next Director of Environmental Quality." - HERE
- The appointments include Margaret "Lyn" McDermid, who worked at Dominion for 30+ years, for secretary of administration
- More HERE, HERE

Guggenheim takeaway: Some interesting nuggets for your awareness. All candidates have to be approved by the General Assembly. As a reminder, Democrats retain control of the senate, and Youngkin was supportive of wind, solar and nuclear as part of an "all of the above" strategy.

SRE – Wildfire Management Plan Audit issued for SDG&E, finds only minor accounting recommendations

- The CPUC offices of energy and infrastructure safety (OEIS) posted the SDG&E wildfire management plan audit report.
- The audit identified only 2 minor issues: tracking of deferred GRC capital costs to fund more WMP safety spending and misalignment of certain wildfire cost categories (recommending SDG&E to clarify during recovery filing)
- Audit report here.

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. A very strong datapoint for SDG&E, reinforcing our view that SDG&E is the gold standard for CA wildfire risk mitigation. The recommendations from the report simply want to ensure proper use of the tree trimming balancing account for capital cost deferral and clarify cost recovery categories (i.e., purely administrative recommendations).

HE – HPUC notices commission hosted meeting on PBR check-ins for January 18

- HPUC noted the commission hosted check in to identify & discuss opportunities for further PIMs and other areas of concern for 1/18/21.
- HPUC previously issued an order setting the schedule for the PBR proceeding to address areas of concern as previously identified.
- The proceeding continues into 2022 with statements of position 2/8/22 and hearings week of 4/4/22
- Docket: HI: 2018-0088

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. Hawaii continues work on PBR and PIM implementation.

M&A/Power – Bidding process ongoing for two ERCOT CTs

- Rockland Capital [PRIVATE] has reportedly qualified as a stalking horse bidder, according to SparkSpread
- The Victoria Port Generation Station and the Victoria City Generation Station are comprised of two 50MW CTs for a total 17wMW of capacity

Guggenheim takeaway: Interesting update – stay tuned.

POR – Intervenor asks for 6 day delay to GRC schedule

- "The purpose of this extension is to provide the parties additional time to evaluate the impact of the recently completed Third Partial Settlement on outstanding cost-of-service and rate design issues." - filing
- Docket HERE

EVRG – EVRG to build 10MW solar farm at Hawthorn plant

- "As we break ground on the solar array, we want to remind customers of this opportunity to contribute to and benefit from renewable energy without the upfront expense and process associated with owning a home solar array" - Chuck Caisley, Evergy SVP
- More HERE

Guggenheim takeaway: Minor FYI.

(1) Regulated utilities deliver power to end-use customers via regulated transmission & distribution (T&D) infrastructure; vertically integrated utilities with regulated or mostly contracted generation are also included.
(2) Local Gas Distribution Companies (LDCs), as well as diversified utilities with a business mix largely comprised of gas infrastructure and related activities (i.e., LDC franchises, interstate pipelines, and/or other gas midstream activities).
(3) Integrated utilities own and operate regulated T&D franchises, as well as un-regulated power generation with commodity exposure.
(4) IPPs operate merchant (i.e., un-regulated, non-utility) power plants that compete to sell power in wholesale markets or through retail marketing businesses.
(5) Mult-Industry Utilities operate some combination of regulated electric and/or gas utilities, in addtion to substantial non-power unregulated activities (i.e. midstream, renewable development, energy trading, etc.).

EXC: Straightforward Spin? Constellation Details Much Appreciated, but Expectations Should Be Otherwise Grounded

Key Message: We have grounded expectations heading into next week's analyst days, with our refreshed standalone valuations (more below) generally in line with where shares are currently trading – supporting our NEUTRAL stance for now, pending further disclosures. That said, any details on Constellation are much appreciated, in our view, and we see the current valuation as a relatively comfortable floor heading into both the events next week and a catalyst-rich new year. Could there be incremental surprises? Potentially, but we remain wary of the magnitude and geography (e.g., cost cuts at Constellation). In our view, the focus of the events will be understandably skewed towards Constellation, with bandwidth for news at RemainCo relatively narrow in light of preexisting guidance and clear-cut strategies at the operating companies. We are raising our PT to $61/share from $52/share.

In this note we: 1) discuss expectations for the forthcoming Analyst days, 2) highlight areas for potential surprise, 3) launch on proforma RemainCo estimates which are now live, 4) value RemainCo and Spinco head of the transaction, and 5) introduce 2025 estimates.

What's happening…? Exelon will be hosting analyst events on Monday and Tuesday of next week (release HERE) for the RemainCo and SpinCo (Constellation), respectively. The staggered presentations come in advance of the actual separation, which we currently expect to happen sometime around the last week of the month, based on the guidance we received late last year for ~6 weeks from NY DPS approval (which occurred on 12/16). As a reminder, management has pointed to no dissynergies from the separation of the two entities.

What do we expect? Key details forthcoming on both sides of the separation, although we see the value-add skewed towards Constellation. We expect a mix of both ad-hoc items and normal guidance to come with the updates, with specific thoughts bifurcated below:

- RemainCo: While many of the key parameters for RemainCo have already been laid out (growth, equity, LT dividend policy), we expect further clarity on the financial plan, alongside a potential roll of capex and earnings guidance to 2025. Backfilling and reshaping of the current 2022-2024 plan is also a possibility in our view in light of several 2021 developments (IL policy, EV/storage pilots at PHI, etc.). We also remain on the lookout for any uplift to the guide from the potential improvements in earnings at ComEd under MYPs in 2024 and beyond. Most importantly, we do not expect any deviations to the 6-8% growth in the NT, and while some investors have previously raised a law-of-large-numbers argument in support of a view around downshifting to 5-7% EPS growth, we continue to model towards 7% through our forecast period across rate base and earnings.
- Constellation: The genco formerly known as ExGen spent most of the past two years subject to the uncertainty of prolonged state and federal processes (IL energy policy, FERC and the MOPR), creating a very challenging environment for even the most basic gross margin guidance beyond the prompt year. This overhang was lifted to a degree in '21, and at a minimum we expect full 2022 and partial 2023 guidance. The latter is still challenged by the latest delays to the 23/24 BRA (originally scheduled for 12/1/21), but we believe some contingent guidance remains feasible (e.g., GM but not EBITDA). Untethered from Exelon, Constellation will have substantial FCFs available for allocation, and our primary focus areas for the day will thus be on 1) capital allocation and 2) growth capex. Our expectations are for a growing dividend at an attractive yield.

Our conversations to date with management have also indicated a general interest in modest growth spending, although it remains unclear to us at this time what this could be beyond M&A (e.g., existing nuclear plants purchased from PSEG Power [PEG]) or natural extensions of the platform to longer-dated initiatives like hydrogen production and/or advanced nuclear (SMRs). Buybacks remain another familiar lever. Beyond GM, EBITDA, and capital allocation guidance, we remain on the lookout for details on a bevy of smaller operational and external items, such as Constellation's plans for the CTV portfolio, the potential impact of a federal policies (nuclear/hydrogen PTCs),

What could surprise us? As noted above, our expectations at RemainCo are generally muted. While we do not expect changes to the growth guidance, management could surprise with a longer capex forecast window, or something along the lines of a '5 + 5' guide we have seen from several other utilities (e.g., CNP, D, LNT, etc.) where the core guidance window is supplemented by a longer-term view on total 10 year capex. This could be further supplemented by financing details. In our view, the primary potential surprise area at Constellation is around potential cost reductions – ExGen had a strong track record of repeatedly extracting recurring efficiencies out of the business, and we suspect some of the post-ERCOT levers pulled in 2021 could be made permanent. Beyond savings, we also remain on the lookout for details around a bevy of internal and external items – management's plans for the CTV equity stakes could surprise – we don't see the company as a long term holder, but we also don't get the impression there is a rush to monetize either, lockups aside.

How are our valuations evolving…? The SoTP screens in line to slightly attractive at current levels, with Constellation poised for upside, in our view… Our current Pre-Spin SoTP valuation is $61, predicated on $48 for the RemainCo and $13 for SpinCo – see full breakout on page 4. We believe a low teens per share for Constellation is a sensible ballpark based on both an ~6x EV/EBITDA multiple and a FCF yield approach (13.5% FCF yield target is equal to approximately $13/share). Based on our $2.54 estimate for RemainCo, we believe Constellation is trading in line to slightly cheap to other IPPs (VST 5.6x, NRG 7.1x on '24) across a range of reasonable P/Es:

We are now applying an ~6x multiple to Constellation, and we believe there is some justification for arguments that it should be higher on the policy backdrop given both the prospects for a PTC in the NT and what we see as the longer-term ascension of nuclear's role in long term decarbonization planning. Our model includes an assumed dividend, targeting a 6% yield and 6% growth, although we note that this is subject to change on Tuesday's call. Our model assumes a gross margin of ~$7.3bn in '22, growing through the forecast period. We incorporate the formerly CENG plants into our generation estimates and begin IL's new nuclear payments in July of this year. In our model debt/EBITDA remains well below ExGen's prior 3x threshold – closer to 2x and trending lower through time. Our model does not include any federal PTCs at this time, although we note there would be some offsets for state ZECs – leaving the PA fleet as the only 'clean' P*Q beneficiary. We hold BRA results at or below 22/23 results and assume a $60/MW-d terminal price. Our model is marked to the 12/30/21 curves.

What do we think of RemainCo? We believe the fully regulated EXC presents an attractive alternative to other wires-only eastern names like ES and FE. We continue to view the core EXC utilities outside of IL favorably, with exemplary efforts across the platform to implement MYPs and improve earned ROEs across PHI and the other legacy utilities – all supporting top-tier growth. While the implementation of MYPs and the general backdrop in IL remains somewhat of a work in progress, we generally believe that EXC could have the core attributes for potentially drawing in ES-style ESG investors in the longer term, namely its wires-focus and small gas rate base. We look for an entry point.

Introducing our estimates for EXC RemainCo…. The estimates published with this report now reflect RemainCo, as does the model in our library… Our consolidated EPS estimates are based on an expected ~$26.5bn of regulated CapEx over the 2022-2025 period, driving ~7% rate base growth through 2025, supporting management's guidance for 6-8% EPS growth through '24. Our capex estimates for '25 represent holdovers from '24, and we expect a full in-depth update next week, or with 4Q results next month, at the latest. As a reminder, management currently guides ~7.6% rate base growth from '20 to '24. We continue to model PHI ROEs at around 9.7%, while the legacy utilities continue to perform at close to their allowed ROEs through our forecast period. We expect modest improvements in ComEd alloweds at the distribution business in 2024 and 2025, supported by our expectations for the utility to seek MYPs under the latest legislation (similar to our approach modeling AEE IL). Our model assumes management and the Board target a 7% growth rate for the dividend and a 60% payout ratio ($1.43/sh dividend in '24), in line with their guidance. CFO/debt sits in the 14-16% range through our forecast period, although we note it remains to be seen how management balances cash needs between capex, the dividend, legacy holdco debt, and the bandwidth that will come with lower credit thresholds under a fully regulated profile.

Valuation

Our $61 price target is based on a sum-of-the-parts analysis. We assign ~$13 share for ExGen using a 5x weighted average EV/EBITDA multiple applied to ExGen's various assets. We assign ~$48 per share for the regulated utilities combined based on our 2024E EPS of $2.54 applied to a 19.5x regulated utility multiple, which is based on our regression model using the correlation between electric utility valuations and forward interest rate expectations over the past 30+ years. To this 18.5x multiple, we continue to apply a one-turn premium to each of EXC's subsidiaries for favorable recovery mechanisms (DSIC, MYPs) and underlying growth/incremental investment opportunities, except for ComEd. The combination of these two parts equals our $61 share price. There is 11% TSR to our price target from current levels, but we maintain our NEUTRAL rating based on the uncertainty over how management will pursue post-spin capital allocation, in addition to uncertainties around federal policy outcomes (e.g., PTCs). Our model is marked to the December 2021 curves.

Risks

Upside and downside risks to our rating and valuation include: Commodity price risk. If natural gas prices fall (rise), wholesale power prices will likely fall (rise), limiting (raising) Power margins. EXC is still inherently a long natural gas call with gas the marginal price setter in PJM.

The remaining risks center on the regulated utilities and transmission assets, which encompass traditional risk factors inherent with all utilities including: (1) positive/negative rate case outcomes above/below our expectations, (2) higher/lower capex outlooks, and (3) interest rate changes above/below what we account for in our regression model.

PM Summary

We remain positive on Exelon Corp (EXC, Buy) and believe the upcoming two analyst days could serve as a positive catalyst for the shares. We recognize EXC's shares already outperformed the sector index by almost 20% over the last 12 months - but we still see roughly 10% capital appreciation potential and almost 13%-14% total return potential to our $62/sh 12-month target price. EXC, in preparation for the spinoff of its non regulated Exelon Generation (ExGen) business - to be renamed Constellation Energy post spin - from the "RemainCo" or Exelon's legacy regulated businesses, will host two analyst days early next week - one for RemainCo and one for ExGen.

In this note, we highlight a number of potential topics and areas of interest investors will monitor at the two analyst days set for Monday January 10th for RemainCo, the legacy regulated businesses, and Tuesday January 11th for the ExGen / Constellation business. We do not take a view on the transaction timing or occurring outside of what EXC itself already provided in public disclosures.

The key drivers and topics ahead for RemainCo

We believe investors will focus on a select few basic questions regarding RemainCo, the regulated segments of EXC —- and outline these in a short list below

- How much will capital spend and rate base growth projections change? We note EXC last provided multi year rate base growth views this time last year —- and while we do not expect massive changes, we could see modest upticks, especially in jurisdictions like in Washington, DC and Illinois where improved regulatory constructs designed in 2021 could drive higher earnings on capital deployed.
- What financing needs will exist for the regulated segments? EXC previously outlined potential for $1bn in cumulative new common equity issuances spread over a multi year program — and embedded this in the multi-year EPS guidance provided a year ago. Any reduction to this financing need could drive higher than expected EPS growth - especially if ExGen sent more cash potentially to Exelon Corp before completing the spinoff.
- What will the rate case schedule look like in 2022 for Exelon Corp or Goldman Sachs does and seeks to do business with companies covered in its research reports. As a result, investors should be aware that the firm may have a conflict of interest that could affect the objectivity of this report. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision. RemainCo? While 2021 included a host of rate cases and regulatory/legislative focus in markets like DC and Illinois, we expect 2022 to emerge as a more "quiet" year for EXC on the regulatory front. We note this as a minor positive, given many other utilities facing significant rate case needs could face pressure from regulators and customer groups given higher wholesale power prices creating upward pressure on the overall bill.

- What do they see ahead for the O&M trajectory going forward? Investors will care whether Exelon Corp or RemainCo faces O&M headwinds due to inflation and dis-synergies from the spinoff — or whether a more pure-play, regulated strategy can lead to lower O&M expenses ahead.

Where will investor attention focus when thinking about ExGen or Constellation?

We note, given few publicly traded Independent Power Producers (IPPs), ExGen/Constellation maintains few real peers — especially those with existing multi GW clean energy generation portfolios. At next week's analyst day event, we think investors will focus on a host of topics, including:

- Where has ExGen hedged its power output for 2022+ and what does this mean for FCF? Historically, EXC provided hedging disclosures on a forward 3 year basis — showing FY1-FY3 hedged quantities and pricing - but to date has not done so for ExGen for any period after 2021. Given the spike in power prices that occurred from mid 2021 onwards, albeit coming back down a bit in the last 30-40 days, many will focus on what amount and at what price did EXC hedge its nuclear output in the coming years.
- What will ExGen's long term capital allocation strategy be and what does this mean for dividends or buybacks... Historically, per its SEC disclosures, ExGen paid sizable dividends up to Exelon Corp — many care on whether this will translate going forward into a dividend payout to shareholders or will the company use share repurchases as a primary capital allocation tool.
- ...and where will the company's long term leverage targets reside — Exelon Corp and ExGen in public comments discussed goals to remain at investment grade credit metrics. We expect significant discussion at the analyst days on what leverage metrics this implies on a net debt/EBITDA basis — we note our forecasts assume a material improvement in these metrics due to the moves in power prices, but questions may emerge on whether ExGen plans to deploy this balance sheet strength for growth, capital allocation or even more deleveraging.
- ...and how will ExGen grow from here? Obviously, changes in power prices - electric energy or capacity prices - can lead to increases or decreases in EBITDA and drive growth or shrinkage on YoY basis, like most commodity companies. The Zero Emissions Credits (ZECs) provide some earnings stabilization - but do not eliminate volatility entirely. Questions will emerge on growth - how ExGen thinks about growth from here — and will growth focus on EBITDA levels or on free cash flow per share metrics? Investors also may think about what organic growth - like renewable development or other clean energy investments - opportunities may exist or will ExGen consider inorganic growth in the merchant power or renewable

- Cost escalation or cost reductions ahead? As a non-regulated, labor intensive business given its 18+ GW nuclear fleet, ExGen does maintain exposure to inflationary trends. Many will seek detail at the analyst day on whether the spinoff creates opportunities to lower costs by lowering corporate G&A expenses - or will inflationary trends at the operating assets drive cost escalation ahead that could weigh on EBITDA and cash flows.
- What does the move higher in uranium pricing mean for ExGen? Spot uranium prices increased over the last year by roughly 30%-40% or so — as the nation's largest nuclear generator, where uranium remains a core component of ExGen's nuclear fuel capital costs, detail on what this change means may provide incremental certainty for investors. Investors may focus a bit on where and how much ExGen contracted for uranium and the other components of nuclear fuel.
- How much would a federal nuclear PTC impact cash flows or EBITDA? Drafts of the federal Build Back Better bill - which the GS economics team no longer includes in its base cases assumptions for the US economy - included a production tax credit (PTC) for existing nuclear plants like the ones ExGen owns. State legislation and regulations cap this upside a bit for some of ExGen's units - we anticipate that investors will seek more clarity on what a federal PTC could mean for the broader ExGen nuclear fleet, recognizing this could add several hundred million dollars per year to free cash flow potential if enacted by the US Congress.

Valuation and key risks

We remain Buy rated on EXC and maintain our 12 month $62/sh target price, based on a sum of the parts analysis. Key risks for EXC include power prices, utility regulation, costs and financing.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our coverage universe) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Quantum

Quantum is Goldman Sachs' proprietary database providing access to detailed financial statement histories, forecasts and ratios. It can be used for in-depth analysis of a single company, or to make comparisons between companies in different sectors and markets.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region's Investment Review Committee manages Regional Conviction lists, which represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction lists do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) have been suspended pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company. Not Available or Not Applicable (NA). The information is not available for display or is not applicable. Not Meaningful (NM). The information is not meaningful and is therefore excluded.

Exelon Corporation

(NYSE: EXC)

Constellation looks attractive vs. merchant power/retail peers even excluding nuclear PTC option; raising PT

Summary:
Next week's analyst day of EXC's Constellation (CEG) should have major implications for NRG and VST. If we value EXC's regulated utilities at a flat P/E vs. pure-play electric peers, the EXC stock currently reflects just $10.50/share for CEG, implying a large 1.4-2.4x discount to VST/NRG on 2023/2024 EBITDA. That's even before accounting for nuclear PTC benefits for CEG which we'd still expect by 2H22. Admittedly, we base this valuation view on numerous assumptions, with no disclosures on power hedges, the cost structure of the recently enlarged nuclear power plant portfolio, the future capital allocation plan or even the basis of future earnings guidance (EBITDA, FCF or EPS). CEG's pitch of this IG-rated merchant power and competitive retail business should set a gold standard for Buy-rated VST and NRG, and hopefully boost all stocks in this orphaned sub-sector at a time when investors crave highly profitable energy plays. We raise our PT for EXC to $61 (from $58) with CEG valued at $13.50 (per EXC shares or ~$41 per CEG shares). Please see inside for our updated EPS/EBITDA/FCF estimates for EXC and CEG.

Highlights

Exelon/RemainCo (regulated utilities less parent): Our updated estimates imply a 7% EPS CAGR for 2022-2025 for the business assuming sharply higher earnings at ComEd in 2024-2025 once the current link to the 30yr T yield stops suppressing the allowed ROE. The 7% EPS/DPS CAGR should be slightly higher than the ~6.5% average for electric utilities for 2022-2025, and as a wires-only utility, Exelon is likely to be included in ESG indices. Then again despite last year's regulatory improvements in IL and positive decisions from MD, Exelon's regulated jurisdictions are seen as average at best, hence our peer-average 2024 P/E multiple (18x) or the business ahead of next week's analyst day.

Constellation/CEG (merchant power and retail): As we head into next week's analyst day (Jan 11), we have very little visibility into CEG's power/gas hedges for 2022-2025, the updated cost structure for the generation assets (especially given the acquisition of EDF's share of CENG nukes), or the future capital allocation plan which is key for any merchant power/competitive retail company. We don't even know if CEG will provide EBITDA, FCF or EPS guidance, but for now we rely on EBITDA/FCF estimates to compare CEG to VST and NRG, its public peers. Our current estimates assume historical levels of power hedges and power prices locked in the 2021 hedge book. For now, Biden's Build Back Better bill and thus nuclear PTCs took a backseat to a voting rights legislation, but given public comments from Sen. Manchin, we remain optimistic that CEG's nuclear plants in PA, MD and IL (~65TWhs annually) should receive the sizable tax benefits starting in 2H22. It will be up to the IRS to implement the nuclear PTCs, but our upside case for CEG (potentially boosting '22/'23/'24/'25 EBITDA by $714MM/482MM/283MM/192MM) is based on realized power prices inclusive of below-market power hedges. The formula behind nuclear PTCs provides a ~$44/MWh floor for ~65TWhs of CEG's nuclear output (~40%) with the remaining nuclear plants in IL, NY and NJ being supported at the state level. That pricing floor could prove important for the next PJM capacity auction given a sharp expansion in fwd spark spreads since the last auction. We'd expect CEG to use the incremental funds to further delever, fund incremental clean hydrogen projects, and potentially acquire PEG's nuclear plants in NJ/PA.

Adjusting estimates: We tweaked our estimates to reflect slightly lower earnings at ComEd and Constellation Tech Ventures as well as fwd power/gas curves as of Dec 31, 2021. Our new '21/'22/'23/'24/'25 EPS estimates for EXC (status quo) are $2.78/3.50/3.66/3.99/4.17 vs. $2.81/3.51/3.65/3.97/4.16, previously. Our EPS estimates for Exelon's utilities less parent are $2.13/2.26/2/40/2.65/2.79 vs. $2.16/2.25/2/38/2.63/2.77, previously. As mentioned above, it's unclear to us if Constellation will guide/trade on EBITDA, FCF or EPS, but our updated EBITDA estimates for '21/'22/'23/'24/'25 excluding nuclear PTCs are $2.22B/3.10B/3.11B/3.22B/3.29B vs. $2.23B/3.19B/3.06B/3.14B/3.28, previously.

Valuation: We estimate that Exelon's regulated utilities less parent (RemainCo) is currently valued at ~$46.50/share (~17.6x 2024 EPS, average for electric utilities) leaving ~$10.50 for Constellation (CEG), implying just 5.3x/5.1x 2023/2024 EV/EBITDA. That's 1.4-2.4x lower than where VST and NRG currently trade despite CEG's likely larger (by ~30%, we estimate) market cap and an IG rating not to mention the large nuclear tax credit option. Our increased PT for EXC of $61 (up from $58) reflects ~$48 for Exelon (RemainCo) and ~$13.50 for CEG (SpinCo) based on 6x 2024 EV/EBITDA, excluding any nuclear PTC benefit.

Company Description:
EXC operates seven electric/gas distribution and transmission utilities in the Mid-Atlantic and the Midwest (IL, PA, MD, NJ, DE, D.C. and VA) serving 9.1 million customer accounts. Separately, through Constellation, EXC operates ~32,000 MW in merchant power plants (including 19,000 MW of nuclear plants) and serves 210 TWhs of retail/wholesale load (70% C&I customers). The spin off of Constellation (CEG) should be complete in Feb 2022.

Exelon Corporation (EXC) Disclosures

I, Angie Storozynski, hereby certify: (1) that all of the views expressed in this report accurately reflect my personal views about any and all of the subject securities or issuers; and (2) that no part of my compensation was, is, or will be, directly or indirectly, related to the specific recommendations or views expressed in this report.

As with all employees of Seaport Global Securities LLC, a portion of our analysts' compensation is paid from the total collection of revenues from all areas of the firm including but not limited to Investment Banking and Sales and Trading departments. In no instance are research analysts' compensation directly derived from Investment Banking revenues.

Risks & Considerations for Exelon Corporation (EXC)

Spin-off of Constellation and future earnings power of the separate businesses: Our PT now assumes that EXC should spin-off its merchant power/competitive business (Constellation or ExGen) by Feb 1, 2022 now that the transaction received its last needed regulatory approval. We have very limited visibility into ExGen's/Constellation's earnings power given no disclosure on power/gas hedges and operating expenses beyond 2021, especially in light of ExGen's recent acquisition of EDF's stake in three nuclear plants in NY and MD.

Nuclear PTCs: Our base case assumption for EXC/Constellation exclude any potential benefit from federal nuclear PTCs which could be very meaningful, especiallly in 2022. We assume that the incremental money should be spent on maintenance and growth capex at Constellation's nukes and deleveraging of its balance sheet as opposed to a special dividend or buybacks. We won't know for sure until the PTCs are awarded, however.

Future dividends: We assume that post the spin-off, the dividend of Exelon and Constellation should exceed the current $1.53 dividend of EXC, but the dividend policy of Constellation remains unclear to us.

ComEd's ROE remains linked to 30yr T yield until 2023: EXC's distribution ROE in IL (for ComEd) changes daily and is based on the 30 year T yield plus 580 bps. A recently adopted energy bill should break this formulaic ROE calculation starting in 2024 which in turn should result in a sharply higher allowed ROE for ComEd.

Risks & Considerations for NRG Energy, Inc. (NRG)

Forward retail margins and volumes could fall: Over the last 14 years, NRG demonstrated its ability to grow retail margins largely regardless of the power price environment. However, the margins are close to historical highs and any meaningful volatility in power prices (especially in ERCOT) or competition from other electric providers could weigh on NRG's retail margins. The retail margins could also eventually fall along with ongoing decline in forward power prices, especially in PJM/Midwest and the Mid-Atlantic. Separately, NRG expects to grow its retail volumes, meaningfully, which could be difficult during/after the COVID-19 pandemic.
NRG remains a below IG company and its cost of debt could rise along with higher credit spreads: While the company has been paying down debt and expects upgrade to IG by the end of 2020/early 2021, NRG's cost of debt should suffer from the recent expansion of credit spreads for below IG companies.

Risks & Considerations for Vistra Corp. (VST)

Forward spark spreads/capacity prices could fall further in PJM/ISO-New England: With weak power demand (even before COVID), growth in subsidized renewables, and cheap local natural gas, we are likely to see ongoing declines in forward power and capacity prices in the Midwest and the Northeast. While VST's gas fired plants in the regions could benefit somewhat from lower gas prices (through higher margins), newer/more efficient gas plants and subsidized renewables should weigh on VST's power earnings in the region.
Forward retail margins and volumes could fall: VST's retail margins are close to historical highs and any meaningful volatility in power prices (especially in ERCOT) or competition from other electric providers could weigh on VST's retail margins. The retail margins could also eventually fall along with ongoing decline in forward power prices, especially in PJM/Midwest and the Mid-Atlantic. Separately, VST expects to grow its retail volumes, meaningfully, which could be difficult during/after the COVID-19 pandemic.
VST remains a below IG company and its cost of debt could rise along with higher credit spreads: While the company has been paying down debt and expects upgrade to IG by the end of 2021, VST's cost of debt should suffer from the recent expansion of credit spreads for below IG companies.

Risks & Considerations for Public Service Enterprise Group Inc. (PEG)

Lower allowed ROE for electric/gas distribution and transmission due to low market interest rates: Equity returns/ROE of regulated electric/gas/water utilities are indirectly linked to the 10-year Treasury yield. The average allowed ROE of a regulated utility in the US dropped just 25 bps since 2008 despite a 152 bps drop in the average 10-year T yield over this period. However, state utility regulators could sharply reduce allowed ROEs of regulated utilities going forward which currently average 9.75% average. The allowed ROE together with an equity ratio are the key drivers of regulated utility earnings. PSE&G has already agreed to lower its base transmission ROE to 9.9% from 11.2%, and our estimates already remove the current 50 bps RTO ROE adder for electric transmission starting early 2022. PS&EG's distribution ROE could fall along with the next distribution rate case in 2025 below the current 9.6%.
Forward power prices could fall from current elevated levels: The recent spike in natural gas prices has sharply elevated forward power prices across the US, especially for 2022 and (to a lesser extent) 2023. PEG is heavily hedged for 2022 and likely partly hedged for 2023. PEG could, however, see some incremental uplift to its power earnings from a federal nuclear PTC (tax benefit) if adopted by the federal government.
Sharply higher natural gas and power prices could limit upside to PSE&G's T&D capex: The recent spike in natural gas prices, if sustained, could lead to some electric/gas bill pressures for PSE&G's customers. Those in turn could limit upside to PSE&G's capex plans.

Energy: Electric Utilities

Company Update / Estimates Change

EXC: Analyst Day Preview

EXC will host separate analyst events next week (1/10 and 1/11) ahead of the spin-off of its merchant business Constellation (CEG). We expect to hear managements' thoughts on strategic positioning, growth targets and drivers for both businesses going forward. We present our thoughts on the positioning and financial outlook for both companies below.

Key Investment Points

Post split, EXC and CEG will have different risk profiles and eventually a different ownership base: We expect EXC will be treated by the market as an average or above-average utility, given its multi-state jurisdictional presence in mature markets, industry-average average ROEs with minimized regulatory lag due to contemporaneous recovery mechanisms, etc. CEG, on the other hand, is likely to have a riskier profile due to its exposure to potentially volatile power markets and regulatory uncertainty around Federal subsidies for its nuclear power plants. As a result, we expect to see in the near term a meaningful ownership rotation, creating potential volatility in CEG shares out of the gate.

What are the shares pricing in? We believe that post-split, the shares of EXC should trade in line with similarly positioned regional peers (AEE, CMS, DTE etc.), that is in the 20-22x P/E range, implying $48/share valuation post-split. That in turn implies that at the current valuation, the market is valuing CEG at ~4.5x EV/EBITDA (see pg 2 for math) - which is a considerable discount to pure-play IPP peers VST and NRG that trade at 6.8x and 8.4x 2022 EV/EBITDA, respectively.

CEG's embedded valuation looks inexpensive, but future upside is highly speculative, in our view: Even though CEG looks inexpensive vs. peers, some discount is warranted given comparatively lower quality of CEG's portfolio. We expect some volatility immediately post-spin as some EXC holders rotate out of CEG shares, and can envision a scenario where the shares could temporarily trade at an even wider discount to peers, prompting whether CEG could be a buy on the spin-off dip story. As it stands right now, future upside catalysts could come from improved power markets dynamic and/or the passage of federal nuclear subsidies (included in the draft of BBB). However, with power markets already at a multi-year peak and natural gas curves coming down, and with BBB currently dead in the water, we see future upside as speculative at this juncture.

Both entities appear well-capitalized post-split, though EXC's metrics bear close watching based on our preliminary math: We expect capitalization of both entities to be an important point of discussion at the analyst day, given EXC's commitment to maintaining IG for both. Our preliminary math suggests strong metrics for both, though we see ~13% FFO/Debt for EXC, which leaves little headroom against typical downgrade thresholds (see page 2). Continued on page 2...

Valuation

Exelon Corporation (EXC)
Based on a stock price of $56.97 and our 2022E EPS of $3.14, shares of EXC are trading at a P/E ratio of ~18x, in line with Integrated Utilities trading at ~18x. We view shares as essentially fairly valued at these levels and assign a Sector Weight rating.

Investment Risks

Exelon Corporation (EXC)
EXC's regulated utilities are exposed to a number of risks, including regulatory risk in its jurisdictions and on the federal level, weather variations affecting electricity demand and the reliability of its system, interest rate risk affecting its cost of capital, and macroeconomic risk as underlying economic activity affects demand for electric power and gas. In addition, through its ownership of merchant power plants, EXC is exposed to risks associated with the fluctuation of wholesale electricity prices in its load zones, as well as potential changes in future capacity prices in PJM and other ISOs where the Company operates. Should the impacts of these risks be greater than we currently anticipate, the Company and the shares may underperform relative to our expectations. Conversely, should the impact of these risks be less than currently anticipated, the Company and the shares may outperform relative to our current expectations.

Adjusting estimates: We make modest changes to our estimates to account for updated power prices and other fine-tuning.

Valuing EXC and CEG individually: With the disclaimer that our math is likely rudimentary based on limited detail, we provide an initial look at how EXC and CEG valuations may appear at the time of the split. Our valuation assumes that CEG holders will receive 1 CEG share for every 3 EXC shares outstanding and that EXC will add $1.75B of debt to fund the cash payment to CEG as part of the settlement agreement and have assumed that same $1.75B as a reduction in CEG's net debt.

Previewing the debt metrics for EXC and CEG ahead of the split: While we expect more details on the proposed split at the analyst days and would adjust our math accordingly, our preliminary attempt to analyze both entities credit metrics is presented below. Both entities appear well capitalized at split, with CEG boasting particularly conservative leverage metrics, which is appropriate given its risk profile. For EXC, ~13% FFO/Debt is close to the IG threshold - though we acknowledge that our math is not precise at this juncture and will wait for management's calculation and adjustments to this metric. Nonetheless, little headroom to IG at EXC will likely raise questions on potential future equity needs at the Utility, depending on the size and cadence of its capex program going forward.

Expect ownership rotation due to different risk profiles of EXC and CEG: We expect that creation of two separate companies will likely lead to some ownership rotation in the shares. EXC will emerge as a pure play utility with well-defined return parameters given its regulated asset base within a contained geographical territory. CEG, on the other hand will emerge as a pure play merchant generator leveraged to unregulated power markets, merchant power prices and the regulatory outcomes, particularly as it relates to nuclear policy. In the table below we summarize the key elements that will drive share price performance for both stocks.

What is Constellation Energy? EXC's spinco, Constellation Energy will be the largest merchant power company with 33 GW of generating capacity (~60% nuclear, 30% fossils — primarily natural gas and the balance as renewables). Constellation will also become the owner of the Constellation Technology Ventures' Portfolio, EXC's venture investments in energy tech companies. The Company also owns a network of gas assets that serve residential and C&I customers and also serves as a fuel source for its natural gas units and for the Everett LNG Terminal.

We expect to hear about the potential avenues for growth at Analyst Day: We expect that Constellation will benefit from load growth through electrification given its broad footprint of generation assets nationally. On the acquisition front, it may be the only natural buyer for PEG's nuclear assets should PEG decide to divest at any point. Constellation is already a partner with PEG at Salem (NJ) and Peach Bottom (PA) — two of the three nuclear units that PEG is an owner of.

Zero carbon generation is gaining momentum — as evidenced by provisions in the BBB: Given the urgency to decarbonize the grid, nuclear power may see more respect than in the recent past. Constellation will emerge as the owner of ~50% of unregulated nuclear capacity in the country and with increased realization that existing nuclear may be the fastest way to get to a decarbonized grid by 2035, federal and state policies may trend toward being more accommodating. Recent examples include the renewal of ZECs in NJ and comprehensive energy legislation in IL that prevented the shutdown of the Dresden and Byron plants at the very last minute. However, both the NJ ZECs and the contract for difference mechanism included in the IL carbon credit framework are short-term measures enacted as states wait for a more durable federal framework to emerge and sentiment will hinge crucially on whether a federal solution can be achieved, within or outside the BBB framework. See our note here on the BBB that includes the provisions for existing nuclear units; our note here on the NJ ZEC renewal and here on the IL legislation.

Power are higher than recent history, at least for now: The rise in natural gas prices over the course of 2021 has led wholesale power prices higher. Sustained higher power prices, especially in combination with state/federal incentives would help stabilize the economics of CEG's nuclear portfolio, which currently relies on the patchwork of state-specific incentives. Overall inflationary trends are helping to keep commodity prices elevated, and it is worth watching these trends as 2022 evolves.

As for the regulated utility, "boring is good": On the regulated front, EXC continues to manage efficiently across its multiple utilities through the current inflationary phase with long-term labor contracts and maximizing synergies across the various entities to maintain cost efficiencies. We expect that management will highlight the growth in T&D investments as the large metropolitan areas in EXC's territories move toward increased electrification and EV adoption. The recently adopted IL legislative framework will change rate making in the state - moving the ROE away from a link to the 30-year treasury to one determined by the Commission. Several details still need to be worked out, including the bands for PBR, but EXC would be eligible to file the first MYRP if it so chooses in January 2023. We expect that at the analyst day, management will provide more color on the IL legislation and how it is likely to affect rate making for EXC in the state.

Guggenheim takeaway: For your calendars and stay tuned…

PCG – PG&E disputes probation violations related to the Kincade and Zogg; Probation Judge considers extending probation

- PG&E disputed probation violations related to the Kincade and Zogg in San Francisco Superior Court yesterday.
- Federal probation judge William Alsup expressed frustration with PG&E and put the option of extending the probation in front of the US attorney's office.
- Media here.

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. The probation process has been contentious with a lot of back and forth between monitors, the judge and PG&E. It is unclear whether there is enough desire and jurisdiction to extend the probation as it was originally contemplated from the San Bruno gas explosion and now moved into an entirely different direction. Beyond the federal probation, PG&E is under enhanced oversight from the CPUC.

PCG – PG&E works through winter storm activity this week

- PG&E is working through 25,000 outages in the Sierra service territories impacted by the winter storm activity this week.
- Media here.

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI. A test of storm restoration for PG&E, with early results being constructive, but at the same time demonstrating the diversity and challenges of the PG&E geography.

BBB – Hydrogen tax credit hangs in balance as Dems aim to revive Build Back Better

- "Failure could throttle utilities' plans…The House-passed bill included a PTC of $3 per kilogram for hydrogen production with near-zero emissions, with smaller incentives for higher-emissions output. The formula would advantage green hydrogen, which is produced using zero-carbon electric power or heat, chiefly through electrolysis. It would also support blue hydrogen production from natural gas capable of achieving high carbon capture rates." – article
- "If the PTC does not pass, something like a renewable portfolio standard for hydrogen or carbon pricing present other options to drive demand, Kramarchuk said. However, tax credits have historically been more politically palatable than carbon pricing, Kramarchuk noted. The bipartisan infrastructure bill included $9.5 billion in support for hydrogen, including $8 billion to establish regional hydrogen hubs. The DOE is also investing in bankable hydrogen projects and supporting research and development." – article

Guggenheim takeaway: FYI, focus intensifies as the Senate reconvenes.

(1) Regulated utilities deliver power to end-use customers via regulated transmission & distribution (T&D) infrastructure; vertically integrated utilities with regulated or mostly contracted generation are also included.
(2) Local Gas Distribution Companies (LDCs), as well as diversified utilities with a business mix largely comprised of gas infrastructure and related activities (i.e., LDC franchises, interstate pipelines, and/or other gas midstream activities).
(3) Integrated utilities own and operate regulated T&D franchises, as well as un-regulated power generation with commodity exposure.
(4) IPPs operate merchant (i.e., un-regulated, non-utility) power plants that compete to sell power in wholesale markets or through retail marketing businesses.
(5) Mult-Industry Utilities operate some combination of regulated electric and/or gas utilities, in addtion to substantial non-power unregulated activities (i.e. midstream, renewable development, energy trading, etc.).

Exelon Corporation

Splitting atoms

Our view: The separation of Constellation Energy from Exelon is quickly approaching. The key ingredient that could drive the combined stock price higher is the passage of the Build Back Better (BBB) Act, specifically the introduction of nuclear production tax credits (PTCs). While we have not added any benefit from BBB, we are raising our price target to account for the possibility that the nuclear PTCs could pass in 2022, with or without BBB. Our new price target to $60, from $51. Our target assumes a 33% probability of supportive PTCs. We maintain our Outperform rating.

Key points:

Federal climate agenda remains strong. While the passage of the $1.85T Build Back Better (BBB) Act is still in doubt, we believe there is decent chance that a large portion of the $550 billion package earmarked for climate could be passed in 2022. We believe climate will remain a priority for Democrats leading up to mid-term elections later this year. Nuclear support faces relatively low opposition from Republicans and could be an easy win for President Biden. Depending on whether other components of BBB stay in a deadlock, we think climate support could be passed as a separate legislation.

Zero-emission credits. Assuming the passage of $15/MWh Federal zero-emission credits applied to all nuclear plants, we estimate that Constellation would generate an additional ~$1 billion of incremental annual EBITDA, likely effective 2023. Any availability for a catch-up for 2022 could be upside for Exelon. Federal credits should reduce state zero-emission credits which are currently available in IL, NJ and NY at different rates. On a run-rate basis, we expect most Constellation nuclear power plants will receive some form of support, either Federal, state or a combination of both. While nuclear generation could pair well with hydrogen production in the future, we currently do not incorporate the potential $3/kg credit that is being contemplated by BBB.

We expect Constellation's valuation gap to narrow. Our sum-of-the-parts valuation suggests that the generation business trades at 7.6x 2023 EV/EBITDA, compared to our target of 8.5x. We think the ~1-turn valuation gap reflects uncertainty over the long-term viability of nuclear. Our target multiple more closely reflects clean generation assets with visible cash flows, assuming passage of Federal subsidies.

Updating estimates, increasing PT. We are adjusting 2021 Exelon adjusted EPS estimate to $2.80, from $2.75. Our 2022-2023 EPS estimates exclude Constellation and remain at $2.25 and $2.43 respectively. We expect annual utilities rate base growth of 7.6% supporting 7% EPS growth. While we anticipate ROE improvement at ComEd as it shifts away from formula rates, we believe the recovery path could be somewhat protracted as regulators consider the impact on customer bills. With 2022 dividend payout at 68% post-separation, we think dividend growth will take on a slower growth trajectory until EPS catches up. PT moves to $60, from $51.

Analyst Day announced. Exelon will hold separate analyst days for utilities aka Exelon (1/10, 1PM ET), and for Constellation (1/11 8:30AM ET).

Key ESG questions

This section is intended to highlight key ESG discussion points relevant to this company, as well as our views on the outlook. Both the questions we highlight and our responses will evolve over time as the dialogue between management, analysts and investors continues to advance. We welcome any feedback on the topics.

	Our view
What does EXC's generation profile look like?	On a MWh basis, EXC generates ~181 TWh annually with close to 90% driven by nuclear power. On a MW capacity basis, EXC's 31 GW generation profile consists of 60% nuclear, 27% thermal and the remaining spread across various renewable assets
What are EXC's key emission goals and metrics?	EXC operates one of nation's lowest CO2 intensive generation fleet at 93.9lb/MWh. EXC has set a goal to reduce internal emissions by 15% by 2022.
What is EXC's key governance matters?	In July 2020, ComEd entered into a two-year deferred prosecution agreement with Federal authorities in relation to certain political lobbying activities. We expect this to produce an overhang for some investors during the course of the DPA.
What is diversity like at the management and board levels?	As of 2020, female employees and employees of color make up 23% and 22% of management, respectively. Female or people of color make up 38.4% of EXC's Board of Directors.
What environment disclosures does EXC provide?	EXC provides disclosures on GRI standards, SASB standards, EEI/AGA ESG templates and scope 1-3 emissions information.

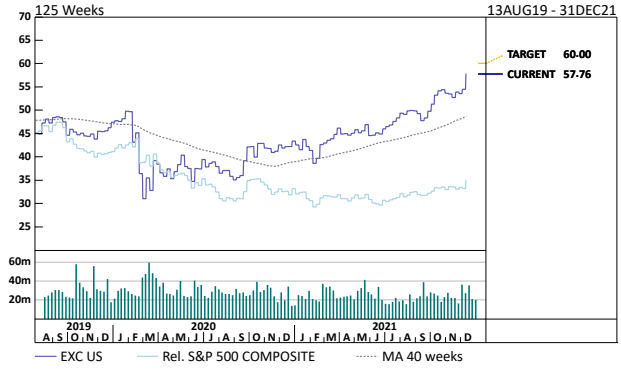
Target/Upside/Downside Scenarios

Exelon Corporation



Source: Bloomberg and RBC Capital Markets estimates for Target

Valuation

Our $60 price target uses a sum-of-the-parts analysis. For Constellation, we apply a 8.5x EV/EBITDA multiple on 2022 EBITDA of $2.9B, resulting in enterprise value of $25B and equity per share value of $20. Our multiple gives consideration to a clean generation profile with stable and visible cash flows. For Exelon Utilities, we apply an 18.1x P/E multiple on 2022 earnings utilities EPS of $2.25, net of corporate expenses. Our multiple reflects average trading level of peer electric and gas combo utilities with similar profiles (6-8% EPS CAGR and 7-8% rate base CAGR). Our price target supports an Outperform rating.

- Upside scenario of $77.
- Exelon Utilities: We assume $25M O&M savings after tax resulting in higher 2022 EPS of 2.30, net of corporate expenses. We then apply our upside industry P/E multiple of 22.9x. Constellation: We assume better energy prices to result in $300M extra EBITDA contribution. Better sentiment towards nuclear increases 2022 EV/EBITDA multiple to 9.5x, from 8.5x, resulting in enterprise value of $30B and equity per share value of $25.

Downside scenario

- Downside scenario of $44
- Exelon Utilities: Higher O&M lower 2022 EPS of $2.19, net of corporate expenses. We apply an adjusted downside industry P/E multiple of 14.9x, giving consideration to the existence of multiyear rate plans in certain jurisdictions and decent regulatory environment in Pennsylvania. Constellation: We assume Federal PTCs do not pass. Lack of long-term support for nuclear power plants increases the risk of early retirements and results in a lower EV/EBITDA multiple of 6x and equity per share value of $12.

Investment summary

If passed, we estimate Federal nuclear production tax credits from the President Biden's Build Back Better Act to add ~$1B EBITDA to Constellation and create substantial value for the stock. We view EXC's current trading range to be an attractive entry point as a result. Turning to RemainCo, we expect utilities EPS growth within 6-8% and benefit from multiyear rate plans. We believe ROE could improve as ComEd shifts into traditional ratemaking as a result of Illinois Senate Bill 18. We do not expect existing dividends to be at risk post-separation from Constellation.

Potential catalysts

- Recovery in forward power curves
- Availability of nuclear PTCs
- Approval of further multiyear rate plans
- PJM capacity auction prices clear higher

Risks to call

- Ratemaking could create additional regulatory lag
- Deteriorating credit metrics at RemainCo
- Lack of nuclear subsidies could suppress ExGen valuation and lead to additional plant retirements in the long-term

Risks to rating and price target

- Ratemaking could create additional regulatory lag
- Deteriorating credit metrics at RemainCo
- Lack of nuclear subsidies could suppress ExGen valuation and lead to additional plant retirements in the long-term

Explanation of RBC Capital Markets Equity rating system

An analyst's 'sector' is the universe of companies for which the analyst provides research coverage. Accordingly, the rating assigned to a particular stock represents solely the analyst's view of how that stock will perform over the next 12 months relative to the analyst's sector average.

Ratings

Outperform (O): Expected to materially outperform sector average over 12 months.
Sector Perform (SP): Returns expected to be in line with sector average over 12 months.
Underperform (U): Returns expected to be materially below sector average over 12 months.
Restricted (R): RBC policy precludes certain types of communications, including an investment recommendation, when RBC is acting as an advisor in certain merger or other strategic transactions and in certain other circumstances.
Not Rated (NR): The rating, price targets and estimates have been removed due to applicable legal, regulatory or policy constraints which may include when RBC Capital Markets is acting in an advisory capacity involving the company.
As of March 31, 2020, RBC Capital Markets discontinued its Top Pick rating. Top Pick rated securities represented an analysts best idea in the sector; expected to provide significant absolute returns over 12 months with a favorable risk-reward ratio. Top Pick rated securities have been reassigned to our Outperform rated securities category, which are securities expected to materially outperform sector average over 12 months.

Risk Rating

The Speculative risk rating reflects a security's lower level of financial or operating predictability, illiquid share trading volumes, high balance sheet leverage, or limited operating history that result in a higher expectation of financial and/or stock price volatility.

Capital Markets

Distribution of ratings

For the purpose of ratings distributions, regulatory rules require member firms to assign ratings to one of three rating categories - Buy, Hold/Neutral, or Sell - regardless of a firm's own rating categories. Although RBC Capital Markets' ratings of Outperform (O), Sector Perform (SP), and Underperform (U) most closely correspond to Buy, Hold/Neutral and Sell, respectively, the meanings are not the same because our ratings are determined on a relative basis.

Exelon Corporation

Valuation

Our $60 price target uses a sum-of-the-parts analysis. For Constellation, we apply a 8.5x EV/EBITDA multiple on 2022 EBITDA of $2.9B, resulting in enterprise value of $25B and equity per share value of $20. Our multiple gives consideration to a clean generation profile with stable and visible cash flows. For Exelon Utilities, we apply an 18.1x P/E multiple on 2022 earnings utilities

Provided for the exclusive use of Lindsay Cox at Exelon Corp on 06-May-2022 11:34 AM.

EPS of $2.25, net of corporate expenses. Our multiple reflects average trading level of peer electric and gas combo utilities with similar profiles (6-8% EPS CAGR and 7-8% rate base CAGR). Our price target supports an Outperform rating.

Risks to rating and price target

- Ratemaking could create additional regulatory lag
- Deteriorating credit metrics at RemainCo
- Lack of nuclear subsidies could suppress ExGen valuation and lead to additional plant retirements in the long-term

Dissemination of research and short-term trade ideas

RBC Capital Markets endeavors to make all reasonable efforts to provide research content simultaneously to all eligible clients, having regard to local time zones in overseas jurisdictions. RBC Capital Markets provides eligible clients with access to Equity Research Reports and to SPARC on the Firm's proprietary INSIGHT website, via email and via third-party vendors. SPARC contains market color and commentary regarding subject companies on which the Firm currently provides equity research coverage. Research Analysts may, from time to time, include short-term trade ideas in Research Reports and / or in SPARC. A short-term trade idea offers a short-term view on how a security may trade, based on market and trading events, and the resulting trading opportunity that may be available. A short-term trade idea may differ from the price targets and recommendations in our published Research Reports reflecting the Research Analyst's views of the longer-term (one year) prospects of the subject company, as a result of the differing time horizons, methodologies and/or other factors. Thus, it is possible that a subject company's common equity that is considered a long-term 'Sector Perform' or even an 'Underperform' might present a short-term buying opportunity as a result of temporary selling pressure in the market; conversely, a subject company's common equity rated a long-term 'Outperform' could be considered susceptible to a short-term downward price correction. Short-term trade ideas are not ratings, nor are they part of any ratings system, and the firm generally does not intend, nor undertakes any obligation, to maintain or update short-term trade ideas. Short-term trade ideas may not be suitable for all investors and have not been tailored to individual investor circumstances and objectives, and investors should make their own independent decisions regarding any securities or strategies discussed herein. Please contact your investment advisor or institutional salesperson for more information regarding RBC Capital Markets' research.

Exelon Corporation

Downgrade to Neutral Based on Uncertain Outlook for Build Back Better

Summary

We are downgrading Exelon to Neutral based on uncertainty regarding the future of the Build Back Better (BBB) legislative proposal in the US Congress. BBB includes a $15.00 per MWh nuclear PTC, which we estimate could add more than $700 million to Constellation's EBITDA. While a BBB deal between Senator Manchin and the White House remains possible in the new year, prospects for passage of BBB are far from certain. We are therefore stepping to the sidelines on EXC shares given added legislative uncertainty. We are raising our dynamic PT to $57 (from $55) to account for current market multiples.

Key Points

- Although the language in the proposed BBB legislation is unclear regarding the threshold for PTC downward adjustments, we estimate a potential PTC contribution in 2024 of $700 million. While we exclude the PTC benefit from our estimates, we have included it in our valuation.
- We are updating our forecast for forward gas and electricity prices as of mid-December 2021. We are also updating our hedge assumptions although the company has still not provided any hedge information beyond 2021.
- Our estimates also reflect weaker results at Commonwealth Edison due to lower interest rates.
- Constellation received final regulatory approval from the New York Public Service Commission for its proposed spin-off.
- Exelon remains on track to complete the spin-off in 1Q22.

Estimate Changes

We are adjusting our estimates to update our forecast model for commodity forward prices as of mid-December 2021 and assumed forward hedges (which have not been disclosed by Constellation yet).

Exhibit 1: EPS Estimate Changes

Consolidated	2021E	2022E	2023E	2024E
Current	$2.82	$3.26	$3.46	$3.57
Prior	$2.83	$3.60	$3.55	$3.56
Difference	($0.01)	($0.34)	($0.09)	$0.01

We are reducing our 2021 EPS estimate by $0.01 to $2.82 due to fine-tuning.

We are decreasing our 2022 estimate by $0.34, primarily due to hedge assumptions (both price and volumes) for next year. Typically, Constellation is at least 80% hedged in the prompt year when it announces fourth-quarter earnings. Our revised estimates assume Constellation is 90% hedged at an average price of $33.00 per MWh. Our estimates also assume a $0.02 contribution from Commonwealth Edison due to lower treasury rates.

We are decreasing our 2023 estimates by $0.09 to $3.46, reflecting a $0.06 reduction in utility earnings due to lower treasury rates and $0.03 lower anticipated earnings at Exelon Generation based on changes in commodity forward prices and hedge assumptions.

We are increasing our 2024 estimate by $0.01 to $3.57. Our estimates assume a lower contribution from Commonwealth Edison, offset by higher earnings at Constellation.

Our estimates do not include possible improvement in authorized returns for Commonwealth Edison beginning in 2024 when the ICC is expected to establish new cost of capital metrics. We would anticipate return on equity to be the same or better than ROE under the current formula rate plan. We also do not include the possible benefit of incentive returns.

Exelon has not provided updated hedge disclosures for Constellation beyond 2021. We assume that Constellation continues to proportionally hedge its merchant output over a three-year rolling period, consistent with its historical targets. Exelon has previously targeted 90% of the prompt year (2022); 60% of prompt plus one and 35% of prompt plus two. Our estimates include hedges consistent with this approach at an assumed price of $33.00 in 2022-24. We also assume an increase in uranium fuel prices to $40 per pound, below market prices due to assumed hedging.

Corporate Separation

Exelon has completed all of the required regulatory approvals for the spin-off of Constellation. Closing of the transaction in the first quarter of 2022 is subject to final approval of Exelon's Board of Directors and a Form 10 registration statement being declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

Prior to the spin-off, Exelon needs to file a Form 10 with the SEC. The document needs to be public for at least 15 days, after which the SEC is able to declare the Form 10 effective. Exelon has not yet indicated when it plans to file the Form 10.

Federal Infrastructure and Reconciliation Bills

The US Congress adjourned in December 2021 without voting on the proposed $1.75 billion BBB bill. Among the provisions in the proposed legislation are additional subsidies for merchant nuclear plants.

The US Congress adopted a $1.0 trillion bipartisan infrastructure bill in the fall of 2021. Included in the infrastructure legislation is a $6.0 billion Civil Nuclear Credit Program (CNCP) paid out over a five-year period from fiscal 2022-26. The annual subsidy amounts to $1.0 billion available to merchant nuclear plants located in competitive electricity markets that are projected to cease operations due to economic factors. For plants receiving state subsidies, the CNCP would supplant payments currently made by the state.

Assuming that all of the merchant nuclear units could demonstrate that they qualify for money under the bill's grant program, this would result in approximately $30 million of subsidy for each unit. Exelon has about 19 merchant nuclear units, which should equate to roughly $570 million of potential grant funding. However, Exelon currently receives almost $1.0 billion in annual ZEC compensation, which could be credited against the grants. Additionally, the grants may not be available to companies for up to a two-year period, complicating decisions about potential closures.

The BBB legislation provides existing nuclear plants with a $15/MWh production tax credit subject to a threshold market price of $25/MWh. Above the $25/MWh market price threshold, the amount of the PTC reduces by $0.80/MWh for each dollar increase in market price (i.e. at a market price of $26/MWh, the PTC would be $14.20/MWh, at $27/MWh, the PTC would be $13.40, etc.; see Exhibit 2). At a market price of $43.75 or higher, the PTC would be $0.00. This proposal also credits any state subsidies against the PTCs proposed in the bill.

Mizuho estimates that Exelon will produce roughly 175 million MWh annually. Based on power forward curves as of mid-December, we estimate that EXC will receive ~$140 million in federal nuclear PTCs in 2022, increasing to just over $700 million by 2026. Exhibit 3 provides our calculation of the potential contribution from a nuclear PTC as currently proposed in BBB.

The key variable in the calculated benefit is the definition of market price. Our base case uses forward prices as provided by S&P Market Intelligence. Another possible interpretation would be the use of realized prices, which would take into consideration company hedges. Under this alternative scenario, the PTC contribution should be higher than what we show in the table above.

Valuation

Base Case

Using a sum of the parts analysis on 2024 results we derive a price target of $57.00 per share. Based on the December 30, 2021 closing price of $57.76, this represents price appreciation potential of (1.3%) and total return potential of 1.3% including the company's current yield of 2.6%. Our price target is derived as follows:

We value the regulated electric distribution and transmission 2024 earnings of $2.38 using a P/E multiple of 19.7 times, a 10.0% premium to our electric group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $47.00.

We value the regulated gas distribution 2024 earnings of $0.47 using a P/E multiple of 17.1 times, a 10.0% premium to our gas group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $8.00.

We value ExGen 2024 generation and retail EBITDA less maintenance capex of $1.7 billion at a 6.9 times multiple net of $5.4 billion of debt resulting in a price target of $7.50.

We assume that federal legislation is adopted providing additional subsidies to nuclear plants, adding $5.00 to our price target.

Adjusting for unallocated debt, net of a 28% tax shield, reduces the price by $10.50.

Bull Case

Under our bull case scenario, generation EBITDA would increase by $515 million based on assumed market heat rate expansion of 1,000. Using a 6.3 times multiple on merchant generation results in a $4.00 positive revision to our price target.

Bear Case

Under our bear case scenario, generation EBITDA would decrease by $515 million based on assumed market heat rate contraction of 1,000. Using a 6.3 times multiple on merchant generation results in a $4.00 negative revision to our price target.

Company Models

In the pages that follow, we highlight our detailed consolidated financial model, including both historical and projections for income statement, cash flow and balance sheet for Exelon Corporation from 2018 to 2024. To derive the consolidated results, we modeled full financials for each operating subsidiary. Clients who would like the full models may obtain them through their MSUSA representative or by direct request to the authors.

Price Target Calculation and Key Risks

Price Target Calculations: Our price target is derived as follows:

We value the regulated electric distribution and transmission 2024 earnings of $2.38 using a P/E multiple of 19.7 times, a 10.0% premium to our electric group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $47.00.

We value the regulated gas distribution 2024 earnings of $0.47 using a P/E multiple of 17.1 times, a 10.0% premium to our gas group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $8.00.

We value ExGen 2024 generation and retail EBITDA less maintenance capex of $1.7 billlion at a 6.9 times multiple net of $5.4 billion of debt resulting in a price target of $7.50.

We assume that federal legislation is adopted providing additional subsidies to nuclear plants, adding $5.00 to our price target.

Adjusting for unallocated debt, net of a 28% tax shield, reduces the price by $10.50.

Consistent with our methodology our price targets are dynamic changing with the group average P/E multiples and EV/EBITDA multiples recalculated on a daily basis.

Key Risks: 1) Equity overhang; 2) Not getting federal nuclear subsidies. Weak commodity outlook, general economic conditions, changes in state and/or Federal regulation, weather, ongoing business operational risk, broader macroeconomic conditions, and interest rate movements are among the key risks to our rating and expected stock performance.

Fiscal 2023 Federal Budget, includes $45B for clean energy; U.S. Senate passes amended version of the America COMPETES Act; FERC Chairman Glick to seek renomination; the House Energy and Commerce Committee is investigating customer shut-offs during the pandemic; a MT consumer group is challenging the constitutionality of the state's pre-approval law; ME Board of Environmental Protection will hear appeals from opponents of NECEC project, VA AG's office is arguing that D's offshore wind project is "not needed"; CMS announces net zero GHG emissions target; PUCT rules against rehearing of AEP's SWEPCO rate case; WV PSC questions potentially higher rates from the state's utilities solar projects; CT advances two bills to conduct studies of grid resiliency and clean energy options; SEC rules that D must allow shareholders to vote on disclosure requirements; and CNP completes midstream exit.

ICYMI

The U.S. Department of Commerce agreed to a petition filed by Auxin Solar to investigate whether solar cells/modules made in Cambodia, Thailand, Vietnam, and Malaysia are in effect using parts originating in China and thus bypassing the anti-dumping/ countervailing duties in place on Chinese imports. We wrote our thoughts here.

News on Companies in Our Coverage

Fiscal 2023 Federal Budget includes $45B for clean energy: The Budget includes $44.9B for clean energy, electrification, and other relevant programs to reduce GHG. The budget also includes a placeholder for clean energy tax credits and other relevant provisions that were included in the BBB but are currently being reconsidered. The bill includes an increase in the DoE budget to $48B from $45B to reflect spending related to the Infrastructure Bill. Specifically, the $48B includes $1B to launch a Global Clean Energy Manufacturing effort to build resilient supply chains, $200M for a new Solar Manufacturing Accelerator to promote domestic solar component manufacturing, and an increase in the ARPA-E budget to support emerging energy technologies.The Budget proposes $9.2B for clean energy research, development, and demonstration, and $90M for a new Grid Deployment Office. The Budget will help achieve the Administration's goal of a 50-52% reduction from 2005 GHG pollution by 2030 and economy-wide zero emissions by 2050.

Senate passes amended version of H.R. 4521: Senate passed the United States Innovation and Competition Act, which is an amended version of the America COMPETES Act of 2022 that the House passed earlier this year. The next step will involve a conference to work out the differences between the House and Senate versions. The House version is heavier on climate change provisions vs. the Senate version. The House version includes $600M annually for fiscal years 2022-2026 (or $3B in total) to support the U.S. solar component manufacturing supply chain, including the construction of new manufacturing facilities. The bill also seeks $75M per year to create a strategic transformer reserve and facilitate the U.S. production and testing of critical grid equipment. Both bills call for tightening of oversight of research collaborations with China.

FERC — Chairman Glick to seek renomination: Chairman Glick joined FERC as a commissioner in 2017 and has been Chairman since his appointment by President Biden in Jan. 2021. His current term ends in June, in which he will seek renomination. The renomination may be challenging in a 50-50 Senate as FERC has received pushback on the revisions to standard permitting policy that now requires developers to demonstrate the need for the projects and to address climate change impacts. The House version includes specific language to crack down on solar imports from countries that seek to avoid AD/CVD.

DTE, DUK, D, EXC, NEE, SO — House Energy and Commerce Committee will investigate reports of customer shut-offs during the pandemic: The companies have until April 4 to provide customer shut-off data and dates on arrearages and customer assistance programs. Most states implemented shut-off moratoriums in the early days of the pandemic. The hearing likely is a result of relevant press reports, such as those provided here and here.

NWE — Consumer group challenges constitutionality of MT pre-approval law: A consumer group in MT isarguing the constitutionality of the MT pre-approval law that allows NWE to receive pre-approval from the Commission, committing customers to a long-term debt schedule for power plants ahead of being added to rate base, and thus reducing the utilities' risk. The law allows state utilities to own generation with an assurance that the projects would be paid for by ratepayers. The question before the Judge is whether pre-approval violates MT Constitution, especially as it applies only to NWE. The lawsuit was filed when NWE was seeking pre-approval of the 175 MW Laurel gas fired generation unit. Since then, NWE withdrew the filing, and will construct the plant with a plan to enter into service in the 2023-2024 winter timeframe.

AGR — ME Board of Environmental Protection to hear appeals regarding NECEC transmission project: The ME Board of Environmental Protection scheduled hearings for May 17-18 to consider appeals filed by project opponents, including environmental groups and NEE. The 1.2 GW transmission project has been on hold pending a ME Supreme Court hearing after the project was suspended in light of the November voter referendum. As a reminder, the Maine Supreme Judicial Court has scheduled a hearing in May to take up questions by CMP about the validity of the referendum.

D — Consultant hired by VA AG finds CVOW as "not needed": The project in question is the 2.6 GW offshore wind project being built by D. The project is a critical part of the VCEA, which requires D to achieve 100% renewable power by 2045 and for the state to have 5.2 GW of solar by 2035. The testimony filed by the consulting firm with the SCC says that apart from legislative policy preferences, the $10B project is not needed to serve D's capacity requirements through 2035, that capacity costs are ~2-3x the costs of solar resources, and the Company's forecasted economic benefits of the project are based on a cost/benefit analysis that overstates the benefits. VEPCO is anticipating an in-service date by the end of 2026 and is currently securing approvals and permits to begin construction in 2Q24. A final approval from the VA SCC is expected in 3Q22 and the consultant filing is likely in relation to the pending SCC approval where the AG's office of Consumer Counsel represents the consumer interests before the SCC.

CMS — CMS announces 2050 net zero GHG emissions target: The Company aims to achieve net zero GHG emissions from its natural gas production and delivery system. The endeavor will include eliminating the impact of emissions traced to the burning of natural gas by customers and GHG emissions caused by gas suppliers to CMS's system. The approach to achieving this target will include the option to use RNG, improve EE, emerging technologies such as carbon capture, use of hydrogen as fuel, use of heat pumps, and proposing carbon offsets to customers.

AEP — PUCT rules against rehearing of SWEPCO's rate case: The Commission voted to not add the Motion for Rehearing to any open meeting agenda, consequently adopting the final order. The Commission had 45 days to decide to rehear the case after AEP. The final order included a rate increase of $55M on a 9.25% ROE vs. SWEPCO's original ask for a $100M rate increase at a 10.35% ROE. SWEPCO, in its request for a rehearing, contended that it does not support the 9.25% ROE, which is the lowest awarded in decades, and disagrees with the Commission's proposed methodology for recovering the investments in Dolet Hills, which is being retired early. The Commission ordered that a regulatory asset for the remaining net book value be created and amortized without a return, using the original end of useful life date of 2046.

AEP, FE — WV PSC questions higher rates from utilities adding solar projects: In response to C&I demand for renewable energy, AEP and FE have planned additions of new solar projects in the state and will seek costs recovery of the utility-scale solar projects under SB 583, which was passed in 2020. Participants in the solar projects would get SRECs for the power purchased. AEP and FE customers in WV would pay a solar surcharge until all the energy credits are bought by program participants. The utilities are requesting that the WV PSC approve the voluntary solar tariff and surcharge effective 2024. In a state that received 88% of its energy from coal as of 2020, there is sufficient opposition to adding renewables as residents fear coal generation being displaced by higher-cost solar.

AGR, ES — CT legislature advances bills to study grid resiliency and clean energy options: SB 177 and HB 5200 advanced to the full Senate and House, respectively, from Committees. If passed, SB 177 would require PURA to perform a grid resilience study and issue a report to the General Assembly. HB 5200 would establish a 19-member task force to conduct a study on hydrogen-fueled energy in the state, including a review of regulations and legislation needed to guide hydrogen development and recommendations for end uses of hydrogen-fueled energy. The task force would be required to submit a report of findings and recommendations to the General Assembly by January 15, 2023.

D — SEC rules that D must allow shareholders to vote on disclosure requirements: According to the ruling, D must allow shareholders to vote on a resolution that would require the utility to disclose plans for mitigating risks from stranded natural gas infrastructure assets. Additionally, D must issue a report describing how it is responding to the risk of stranded natural gas-based infrastructure.

CNP — CNP completes exit from Midstream: The exit from the midstream business was marked by the sale of the remaining interest in ET. Recall that CNP received 51M common units and preferred units in Energy Transfer as part of the proceeds for the sale of its interest in Enable Midstream. The proceeds will be used to pay down debt at the parent level. The sale of the ET units comes ahead of the Company's schedule to exit midstream investments by the end of 2022. The timing was likely helped by the move in midstream equity prices led by the rally in gas prices.

Energy: Electric Utilities

Heads Up — The Week Ahead in Utilities: AEP, XEL, EXC, SO, EIX, SRE, ED

Sophie Karp / (917) 368-2361 / sophie.karp@key.com
Michael Pelletier / (917) 368-2306 / michael.pelletier@key.com

In the week ahead we are tracking proceedings in AEP's TN electric rate case and XEL's ND gas rate case. In other news, the NJ BPU approves the closure of the last two coal plants; SO conducts a study analyzing four pathways to net-zero for its gas distribution; a CA state audit report believes the state agencies are not overseeing wildfire mitigation plans enough, and NY enters a partnership with MA, CT, and NJ to collaborate a proposal to become one of the four regional hubs.

Regulatory Calendar

A full regulatory calendar is provided later in the report. Details on the events that we are tracking this week are below.

AEP — Intervenor testimony in the Kingsport electric rate case in TN is scheduled for March 30: AEP is requesting a $14M rate increase. After the transfer to base rates of ~$7.5 million being collected through riders, the net impact would be a ~$7M overall rate increase. Kingsport Power is requesting to place the new rates into effect around mid 2022. The rate filing is premised on 10.2% ROE and 48.9% equity. The previous Kingsport case was authorized in 2016 at 9.85% ROE and 40.25% equity.

XEL — Rebuttal testimony in the ND gas rate case is scheduled for April 1: NSP recently filed a rate case (PU-21-381) seeking a $7M rate increase premised on a 10.5% ROE (52.54% equity) for a 2022 test year. The request includes $1.25M previously approved amortization of costs related to remediation of a former gas plant. Staff recommends that the Commission remove the $1.25M remediation costs but recommends that interim rates be approved. Interveners have proposed a $3M rate increase on 9.4% ROE and 52% equity. NSP's previous rate case in ND was decided in 2007 with a settlement.

Recent Developments for Companies Under Our Coverage

From our midweek: AEP's 998MW Traverse Wind Project enters service; FERC ruled for a lower transmission ROE in CA, which could hamper the transmission buildout; CA SB 884 amended to speed up the undergrounding of power lines; the Western Market Exploratory Group hires an energy consultant to help evaluate long-term market structure opportunities, and Governor Hochul signs SB 7836, requiring the NY PSC to establish EV rate structures and facilitate faster EV charging options.

EXC — NJ BPU approves the closure of the last two remaining coal plants in the state: The 244MW Chambers Cogeneration and 219MW Logan coal-fired plants will close at the end of May, previously scheduled to close in March 2024 and December 2024, respectively. EXC's subsidiary Atlantic City Electric had separate 30-year PPAs, in which buying out the PPAs and shuttering the plants will save customers $30M over the next few years. Through its Energy Master Plan, NJ is targeting zero carbon emissions by 2050.

SO — Southern Gas conducts study to find pathway to net-zero: The study presents pathways to reduce GHG emissions across its natural gas distribution companies in a cost-effective manner. After analyzing four potential pathways, the study determined that the current natural gas infrastructure will be needed. The combination of natural gas efficiency technologies and RNG is lower cost and produces more GHG reductions for customers than the mandatory 100% electrification pathway. SO believes it can do this by blending more methane captured from dairy farms and other agricultural activities and using its modern natural gas system in place, which is the most affordable route while allowing SO to achieve its long-term GHG reduction goals. Southern Gas used ICF to conduct the study and will help SO achieve its net-zero direct GHG from its entire operations by 2050.

EIX, SRE — CA State Auditor report found that wildfire mitigation work needs more oversight: In the report, the CA State Auditor found that the utilities are not doing nearly enough to prevent wildfires and future power shutoffs in the high threat areas. Specifically, the CPUC and the Office of Energy Infrastructure Safety is not ensuring that the utilities are investing in the high fire-threat areas and notes that the state agencies could use the recent shutoff reduction law (enacted Jan. '22) to find sections that have the more frequent power shutoffs and ensure utilities target investments in hardening those areas. The report also found that the OEIS awarded safety certificates without proper mitigation protocols. CA has faced record wildfires in recent years, and the undergrounding of power lines would be a significant investment burdening the ratepayers; focusing on some higher-risk areas could help mitigate some threats and reduce power shutoffs.

ED — NY Governor announces Multi-State Agreement to propose a regional hydrogen hub: NY has partnered with CT, MA, and NJ to collaborate on proposal development to achieve designation as a regional hub under the federal infrastructure act and advance hydrogen projects. As part of President Biden's fight against climate change, he signed the federal infrastructure package, which would set aside ~$8B for at least four hydrogen hubs around the country. In addition to the four states, a combination of forty corporations and universities joined the partnership, including ED. In her State of the State address, Governor Hochul discussed her ambition to make NY a Green Hydrogen hub.

Exelon Corporation

(NYSE: EXC)

With utility stocks back in favor, EXC's inflation-hedged wires-only EPS growth should boost its P/E; maintaining $48 PT

Summary:
We marginally raised our '22/'23 estimates to reflect higher allowed ROEs for ComEd (linked to the 30yr T yield), but we lowered our '24/'25 estimates to be more conservative on ComEd's new rate plan in IL and because EXC should try to smooth out its earnings trajectory. Our new '22/'23/'24/'25 EPS estimates of $2.28/2.41/2.64/2.80 imply a 7.4% EPS CAGR, above a 6.5% average for electric utilities, with the growth coming from T&D-only capex and being backed by strong management execution. Even after today's outperformance, EXC trades at a large 2.1x/2.5x '23/'24 P/E discount to AEE, EXC's closest public peer. We hope for EXC's inclusion in clean energy/ESG indices like ICLN, but that should require a refresh of EXC's MSCI rating post the recent CEG spin-off. As we await more updates from IL, we value EXC at our anchor '24 P/E of 18x and maintain our $48 PT.

Highlights

Regulatory setup in IL: Through the end of '23, ComEd's allowed ROE on the electric distribution side will be adjusting daily with the 30 yr T yield. ComEd's ROE is now at ~8.35% up from ~7.8% on average for '21. ComEd and AEE's IL electric utility continue to participate in lengthy workshops on the new regulatory design for electric utilities, including performance-based ratemaking. ComEd will file its next rate case in early '23 for new rates to be effect 1/1/24, but it's too early to tell if it will be a multiyear or a future test year rate case, and that in turn should determine the allowed and realized ROEs for the utility. Our updated '24/'25 EPS estimates for ComEd reflect an allowed ROE of 9.2% and a 20-30 bps ROE underearning which could turn conservative, especially given an up to a 40 bps performance ROE adder. It's unclear how ComEd's '20 deferred prosecution agreement should impact its '24 rate case.

Updating estimates: We raised our '22/'23 estimates to reflect higher ComEd earnings (due to the higher 30 yr T yield) partly moderated by a higher parent-level drag. We lowered our '24/'25 estimates to be conservative on ComEd's new electric rate plan and because we expect EXC's management to attempt to deliver a smoothed out earnings trajectory. Our new '22/'23/'24/'25 EPS estimates are $2.28/2.41/2.64/2.80 vs. $2.26/2.40/2.71/2.92, previously. Our updated estimates imply a 7.4% '22-'25 EPS CAGR, within management's 6-8% EPS growth target and above the 6.5% EPS CAGR average for electric utilities. As mentioned above, EXC's '24/'25 earnings will depend on the outcome of ComEd's rate case, but we've already moderated our expectations for the ROE step up in IL.

Valuation: Even after today's outperformance, EXC trades at a large 2.1x/2.5x '23/'24 P/E discount to AEE which we continue to see as EXC's closest public peer. EXC's discount vs. XLU is smaller at 0.8x/1.4x, respectively, but we struggle to justify any valuation discount for EXC given its premium EPS growth, strong execution and wires-only business. We hope for EXC's inclusion in clean energy/ESG indices like ICLN. That could take time as it should require an update of ESG ratings (MSCI in particular) post the CEG spin-off, we believe. As we await more updates from IL, we value EXC at our anchor '24 P/E of 18x and maintain our $48 PT.

Company Description:
EXC operates six electric/gas T&D utilities in IL, PA, MD, NJ, DE, D.C. and VA) serving 9.1 million customer accounts. The spin off of Constellation Energy (CEG) from EXC was completed on Feb 1, '22.

Exelon Corporation (EXC) Disclosures

I, Angie Storozynski, hereby certify: (1) that all of the views expressed in this report accurately reflect my personal views about any and all of the subject securities or issuers; and (2) that no part of my compensation was, is, or will be, directly or indirectly, related to the specific recommendations or views expressed in this report.

As with all employees of Seaport Global Securities LLC, a portion of our analysts' compensation is paid from the total collection of revenues from all areas of the firm including but not limited to Investment Banking and Sales and Trading departments. In no instance are research analysts' compensation directly derived from Investment Banking revenues.

Risks & Considerations for Exelon Corporation (EXC)

It's hard to predict the outcome of EXC's future rate cases: We assume that EXC's allowed ROE/equity ratios should remain unchanged in five ff its six jurisdictions (excl. IL/ComEd) though it's hard to predict the outcome of EXC's future rate cases even in the current inflationary environment.

ComEd's ROE remains linked to the 30 yr T yield until 2023: EXC's distribution ROE in IL (for ComEd) changes daily and is based on the 30 year T yield plus 580 bps. A recently adopted energy bill should break this formulaic ROE calculation starting in 2024 which in turn should result in a sharply higher allowed ROE for ComEd though we won't know the likely ROE/EPS uplift in IL until late 2023. It's hard for us to predict how ComEd's 2020 deferred prosecution agreement in IL should impact this future rate case in the state. Through the end of 2023, ComEd's allowed ROE will be driven by the 30 year T yield thus providing some inflationary protection.

Equity needs: EXC needs $1B in equity to support its 8% rate base growth for 2022-2025. For now, we'd expect the company to be able to rely mostly on internal equity programs (like DRIP), but it's unclear to us how management plans to address its equity needs. The equity needs could change in the current inflationary environment with rising ComEd earnings being offset by higher operating/pension costs.

Risks & Considerations for Constellation Energy Corp. (CEG)

Fwd power and/or capacity prices could fall, especially in PJM: Fwd power prices in PJM have risen sharply since the last PJM capacity auction, more than offsetting the drop in capacity prices. We are concerned about the outcome of the next capacity auction in PJM, for delivery years mid-2023 through mid-2024, which is scheduled for June 8, 2022. Our updated 2023-2025 EBITDA/FCF estimates assume sharply lower capacity prices (~$50/MW-day down from ~$96/MW-day), but we could see further downside. CEG could also see sharply higher nuclear fuel costs than the ~$7/MWh we currently assume.

Forward retail margins could fall: We have limited visibility into CEG's retail margins, but they could be pressured by rising power/gas prices.

Operating risk of nuclear plants: CEG owns ~21GW of nuclear plants and a prolonged outage of any of the units could have a material impact on our EBITDA and FCF expectations. CEG's nuclear plants are aging and should require major maintenance in order to extend their operating licenses.

PM Summary

We update estimates for several companies - all Neutral rated - as we revise our models for 10K and other segment detail. We make very modest changes to our forecasts, with larger changes for EXC versus both WEC and CNP — but not enough to make us materially more positive here. In summary, we note:

- We remain Neutral-rated on Exelon Corp (EXC) - a large cap regulated utility - following 4Q2021 earnings given strong stock performance post the February spin-off of its non-regulated business (+5.9% vs XLU +3.0%) which limits further upside and multiple expansion in our view. Our estimates appear inline with consensus and EXC currently trades at a 1 turn discount to large-cap peers while our $45, 12-month price target reflects a 7% total return — roughly inline to 9% for Regulated Utilities.
- ...and reiterate a Neutral rating on Houston-based regulated utility CenterPoint Energy (CNP), as we see current valuations - at a modest premium to regulated utility peers - as capturing the company's successful turn-around efforts over the past 12-18 months, along with some credit for the forecasted best-in-class 8% EPS 2021-2024E CAGR. We acknowledge further multiple expansion could be warranted over time if CNP continues to consistently execute on its growth targets, although we believe it may take time; combined with a lack of major near-term catalysts, we still see better opportunities elsewhere in our coverage universe. Our unchanged $30 12-month price target reflects a 14% total return versus 9% for Regulated Utilities.
- ...as well as our Neutral rating on Wisconsin-based regulated utility WEC Energy (WEC), with the company set to go through a rate case year in Wisconsin which we believe presents an overhang on shares and limits potential for further rerating given WEC currently trades at a premium to the regulated utility group. We look for updates on the rate case process and our $99 12-month price target implies 14% total return.

We update our 2022-2025 EPS estimates from $2.20/$2.31/$2.54/$2.71 to $2.19/$2.39/$2.64/$2.83 which represents a 7.9% CAGR off 2021 results compared to company guidance of 6%-8%. Our estimates are inline with consensus and reflect the 2021 10-K filing, updated O&M assumptions, revised financing assumptions, and updated rate case assumptions. We continue to forecast $250mn/$375mn/$375mn of equity issuance for 2023/2024/2025.

Valuation and key risks

Our $45, 12-month price target implies 7% total return, compared to 9% in our coverage ($44 prior). Our price target is derived from a 19x P/E multiple on 2023 EPS, a one turn premium to our baseline utility multiple of 18x. EXC currently trades at 18x 2023 P/E or a slight discount to large-cap peers at 19x but we see limited room for multiple expansion from here. Key risks include utility regulation, cost management, and financing.

What's Changing in Our Estimates?

We make very minor adjustments to our estimates following 4Q2021 results, with our 2022E-2024E EPS forecasts still reflecting an ~8% CAGR from 2021A utility/parent EPS of $1.27. We update our model to account for 1) the January 2022 completion of the Arkansas/Oklahoma gas utility sale and use of proceeds (combination of debt re-payment and for utility investments), 2) updates to reflect the winter storm Uri related regulatory decisions, including at MN (5-year recovery) and TX (securitization authorized), and 3) updated rate increase and O&M expense expectations. Our estimates imply CNP utilities largely earning its authorized ROEs in 2022 and 2023, and some under-earning in 2024.

Valuations and Risks

Our 12-month price target of $30 remains unchanged. We continue to utilize a SOTP approach combining the utility segments and the midstream. With the completed ET acquisition of Enable Midstream and CNP's sale of shares, we now see just ~$0.70 value from the midstream segment based on ET's current market equity value and CNP's remaining 50mn unit ownership stake. At the regulated segments, we maintain our P/E multiple for CNP's electric utility - CEHE - at 20x, a 2x premium to our baseline multiple of 18x.

Key downside risks include 1) customer/demand growth slows in Houston and in other CNP regulated jurisdictions, 2) increased regulated expenses - including supply/labor costs - pressure customer bills, leading to regulatory overhang, and 3) CNP's Indiana electric utility fails to secure any rate base utility-owned generation opportunities. Key upside risks include 1) CNP's regulated utilities further increase capital opportunities, leading to incremental earnings growth, and 2) CNP further simplifies its portfolio via additional and accretive gas utility divestitures.

What's changing in estimates

We update our estimates with unchanged 2022 EPS of $4.29 and 2023/2024 moving from $4.50/$4.81 to $4.51/$4.81. We made very modest changes to our estimates which represent a 5.3% EPS CAGR from 2021-2024 and remain inline with consensus. Updates include 4Q2021 results, updated O&M expense expectations and financing expectations. We assume earned ROEs near authorized levels at WEPCo, WPS and WG in our forecast period.

Valuation and key risks

Our unchanged $99, 12-month price target implies 14% total return, compared to 9% in our coverage. Our price target is based off a 22x P/E multiple on 2023 EPS (unchanged) compared to our utility baseline multiple of 18x. WEC currently trades at 20x 2023 P/E compared to large-cap peers trading at 18x. Key risks include utility regulation and rate cases, power/gas demand in Wisconsin, rate base growth, renewable development, and the gas main replacement program in Northern Illinois.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our coverage universe) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region's Investment Review Committee manages Regional Conviction lists, which represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction lists do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) have been suspended pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does

General disclosures

This research is for our clients only. Other than disclosures relating to Goldman Sachs, this research is based on current public information that we consider reliable, but we do not represent it is accurate or complete, and it should not be relied on as such. The information, opinions, estimates and forecasts contained herein are as of the date hereof and are subject to change without prior notification. We seek to update our research as appropriate, but various regulations may prevent us from doing so. Other than certain industry reports published on a periodic basis, the large majority of reports are published at irregular intervals as appropriate in the analyst's judgment.

Goldman Sachs conducts a global full-service, integrated investment banking, investment management, and brokerage business. We have investment banking and other business relationships with a substantial percentage of the companies covered by our Global Investment Research Division. Goldman Sachs & Co. LLC, the United States broker dealer, is a member of SIPC (https://www.sipc.org).

Our salespeople, traders, and other professionals may provide oral or written market commentary or trading strategies to our clients and principal trading desks that reflect opinions that are contrary to the opinions expressed in this research. Our asset management area, principal trading desks and investing businesses may make investment decisions that are inconsistent with the recommendations or views expressed in this research.

The analysts named in this report may have from time to time discussed with our clients, including Goldman Sachs salespersons and traders, or may discuss in this report, trading strategies that reference catalysts or events that may have a near-term impact on the market price of the equity securities discussed in this report, which impact may be directionally counter to the analyst's published price target expectations for such stocks. Any such trading strategies are distinct from and do not affect the analyst's fundamental equity rating for such stocks, which rating reflects a stock's return potential relative to its coverage universe as described herein.

We and our affiliates, officers, directors, and employees, excluding equity and credit analysts, will from time to time have long or short positions in, act as principal in, and buy or sell, the securities or derivatives, if any, referred to in this research.

The views attributed to third party presenters at Goldman Sachs arranged conferences, including individuals from other parts of Goldman Sachs, do not necessarily reflect those of Global Investment Research and are not an official view of Goldman Sachs.

Any third party referenced herein, including any salespeople, traders and other professionals or members of their household, may have positions in the products mentioned that are inconsistent with the views expressed by analysts named in this report.

This research is not an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy any security in any jurisdiction where such an offer or solicitation would be illegal. It does not constitute a personal recommendation or take into account the particular investment objectives, financial situations, or needs of individual clients. Clients should consider whether any advice or recommendation in this research is suitable for their particular circumstances and, if appropriate, seek professional advice, including tax advice. The price and value of investments referred to in this research and the income from them may fluctuate. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, future returns are not guaranteed, and a loss of original capital may occur. Fluctuations in exchange rates could have adverse effects on the value or price of, or income derived from, certain investments.

Certain transactions, including those involving futures, options, and other derivatives, give rise to substantial risk and are not suitable for all investors. Investors should review current options and futures disclosure documents which are available from Goldman Sachs sales representatives or at https://www.theocc.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp and https://www.fiadocumentation.org/fia/regulatory-disclosures_1/fia-uniform-futures-and-options-on-futures-risk-disclosures-booklet-pdf-version-2018. Exelon Corporation

Upgrade to Buy Based on Valuation

Summary

We are upgrading Exelon to Buy from Neutral based on valuation. Trading at a 4.5% P/E discount, Exelon represents an attractive investment opportunity in our view, with our forecast of well above-average EPS growth of 7.3%. The company's balance sheet is in line with peers including our projected 2024 FFO/Debt ratio of 13.6%. Exelon has a light regulatory calendar this year with a major general rate case filing expected next year for its Commonwealth Edison (CWE) subsidiary. Our estimates include a sub-9% return on equity assumption for CWE in the upcoming rate filing. We are raising our PT to $46 (from $43) to account for current market multiples.

Key Points

- We are updating our EPS estimates to reflect 2021 actual results. Our 2024 estimate remains mostly unchanged.
- We have not included any benefits in our forecast at CWE for incentives or energy efficiency, which was included in legislation adopted last year in Illinois.
- Planned tightening by the Federal Reserve later this year should support improved CWE earnings under its formula rate plan. The company's authorized return is tied to the 30-year Treasury rate.
- Exelon's FFO/Debt outlook has improved, with a significant reduction in unfunded pension liability. We estimate a $1.0 billion reduction in unfunded pension to $1.9 billion.
- While the current yield of 3.0% is in line with peers, projected dividend growth of 7% in our forecast model compares favorably to other utilities.

Estimate Changes

We are updating our forecast following the release of 2021 results.

Exhibit 1: EPS Estimate Changes

Consolidated	2022E	2023E	2024E
Current	$2.28	$2.42	$2.57
Prior	$2.30	$2.40	$2.58
Difference	($0.02)	$0.02	($0.01)

Source: Company reports, MSUSA estimates

Exelon 2021 operating EPS was $2.08.

We are decreasing our 2022 EPS estimate by $0.02 to $2.28. Our estimate change relates primarily to our rate assumptions in Illinois.

We are increasing our 2023 EPS estimate by $0.02 to $2.43. Our estimate change reflects stronger assumed results at PECO and PEPCo Holdings, partly offset by weaker results at Commonwealth Edison.

We are decreasing our 2024 EPS estimate by $0.01 to $2.57 due to fine tuning.

Mizuho estimates compound annual growth in EPS off of a 2021 base of 7.3%, above the mid-point of the company's 6%-8% EPS growth target. Our forecast assumes a return on equity below 9% in Illinois for 2024 following its general rate case filing later this year or early next year.

Exelon is targeting a 60% payout ratio and expects to grow its dividend 6%-8% off of a base of $1.35 in 2022, in line with its target level of EPS growth. Our forecast assumes 7% annual growth in the dividend.

Our forecast assumes FFO/Debt between 13%-14% which is above the company's downgrade threshold of 12%. Our calculations assume unfunded pension liability of $1.9 billion. Our forecast is consistent with management's comments during its recent analyst day that it anticipates FFO/Debt to be well above the 12% downgrade threshold established by both rating agencies.

Our estimates do not include possible improvement in authorized returns for Commonwealth Edison beginning in 2024 when the ICC is expected to establish new cost of capital metrics. We would anticipate return on equity to be the same or better than ROE under the current formula rate plan. We also do not include the possible benefit of incentive returns.

Regulation

Exelon's capex plan provides for $29 billion of investment over the four-year period 2022-25. Management indicated that they expect to keep the level of rate increases at or below the level of inflation (estimated at the January investor meeting to be in the range of 2.0%-2.5%). We would expect 2022 to be a quiet year for regulatory filings by Exelon subsidiaries. Commonwealth Edison (CWE) rates for 2022-23 will continue to be established under its formula rate plan which expires at the end of 2023.

Late in 2022 or early 2023 we would expect CWE to file a four-year rate plan based on projected rate base with the Illinois Commerce Commission. Forecast rate base would include a utility's integrated grid investment plan as well as a four-year capital investment plan that also requires approval by ICC. CWE also has an option to file a one-year rate plan as an alternative.

The four-year plan will provide for amortization of unprotected ADIT through 2027 and provide for incentive compensation based on the achievement of agreed-on operational metrics. New rates under a multi-year plan can include a two-step phase-in of rates, with the first step increase reflecting at least 50% of the total and the second step (must be effective within 12 months of the first step) reflecting the remaining amount. The amount of the second step increase would be deferred as a regulatory asset earning a weighted average cost of capital return.

The legislation provides for incentives/penalties of between 20 basis points (BP) and 60 BP based on achieving/missing pre-defined targets for up to eight separate performance metrics. The ICC will hold an annual proceeding to determine the amount of award/penalty including testimony from an outside consultant. In addition, the legislation provides for incentive awards/penalties of up to 200 BP adjustment to ROE for earnings on energy efficiency investments. The maximum penalty applies where the company achieves less than 75% of targeted consumption reduction targets. The maximum award applies if the company achieves more than 135% of targeted consumption goals.

PECO recently was awarded a $132 million electric rate increase in Pennsylvania in November 2021. PECO and the PHI subsidiaries typically file rate cases every 2-3 years.

Valuation

Base Case

Using a sum of the parts analysis on 2024 results we derive a price target of $46.00 per share. Based on the March 10, 2022 closing price of $43.60, this represents price appreciation potential of 5.5% and total return potential of 8.6% including a current yield of 3.1%. Our price target is derived as follows:

We value the regulated electric distribution and transmission 2024 earnings of $2.40 using a P/E multiple of 19.4 times, a 10% premium to our electric group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $47.00.

We value the regulated gas distribution 2024 earnings of $0.48 using a P/E multiple of 18.9 times, a 10% premium to our gas group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $9.00.

Adjusting for unallocated debt, net of a 28% tax shield, reduces the price by $10.00.

Company Models

In the pages that follow, we highlight our detailed consolidated financial model, including both historical and projections for income statement, cash flow and balance sheet for Exelon Corporation from 2019 to 2024. To derive the consolidated results, we modeled full financials for each operating subsidiary. Clients who would like the full models may obtain them through their MSUSA representative or by direct request to the authors.

Price Target Calculation and Key Risks

Price Target Calculations: Our $46 price target is derived as follows:

We value the regulated electric distribution and transmission 2024 earnings of $2.40 using a P/E multiple of 19.4 times, a 10% premium to our electric group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $47.00.

We value the regulated gas distribution 2024 earnings of $0.48 using a P/E multiple of 18.9 times, a 10% premium to our gas group average multiple, resulting in a price target of $9.00.

Adjusting for unallocated debt, net of a 28% tax shield, reduces the price by $10.00.

Consistent with our methodology our price targets are dynamic changing with the group average P/E multiples and EV/EBITDA multiples recalculated on a daily basis.

Key Risks: 1) Equity overhang; 2) Not getting federal nuclear subsidies. Weak commodity outlook, general economic conditions, changes in state and/or Federal regulation, weather, ongoing business operational risk, broader macroeconomic conditions, and interest rate movements are among the key risks to our rating and expected stock performance.

Business Strategy and Outlook 09 Mar 2022

After spinning off its merchant generation and retail energy segment, Constellation Energy, through a distribution to Exelon shareholders, the new Exelon is now a pure-play electric and gas transmission and distribution utility.

Exelon's regulated utilities support our outlook for 7% earnings growth through 2026, the midpoint of the company's 6%-8% earnings growth guidance. We estimate the company will spend $36 billion of capital investment through 2026. This investment plan supports our earnings forecast and dividend growth in line with earnings growth.

We view the separation positively for shareholders. We previously valued Exelon at a discount to its fully regulated peers in large part because of its generation and retail operations. A stand-alone regulated utility strengthens Exelon's narrow moat and lowers the company's cost of capital.

Exelon operates a diverse set of regulated utilities, including five utilities in the Northeast and the largest investor-owned utility in Illinois. Regulatory relationships have at times been strained across its Northeast utilities, resulting in low allowed returns. Alternative recovery mechanisms help reduce regulatory lag and risk across the regions for Exelon's growth capital.

Relationships at the company's most important subsidiary, ComEd, will likely remain strained given allegations of inappropriate lobbying practices tied to the passage of previous utility legislation. Exelon subsequently entered into a deferred prosecution agreement with federal prosecutors.

Recent Illinois legislation will bring significant changes to the state's regulatory framework. Current performance base-rate making, which ties allowed returns to the average 30-year Treasury rate, have produced some of the lowest returns among U.S. utilities. After 2023, Illinois utilities may opt in for a four-year rate plan beginning in 2024 or default to traditional ratemaking. Under the multiyear plan, ComEd would be allowed to "true-up" earned returns to allowed returns and continue usage-decoupled rates.

Morningstar Analysis

Utilities Could Start to Feel Pressure From Inflation, Higher Energy Prices 09 Mar 2022

We are reaffirming our fair value estimates and moat ratings for the U.S. utilities we cover ahead of the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumer Price Index report March 10. We consider inflation to be the largest threat to utilities' long-term returns and ability to pay robust, growing dividends.

Utilities trade at a median 8% premium to our fair value estimates, which assume 2.3% long-term inflation. With utilities' market valuation multiples well above 20-year highs, we think the market is ignoring the potential for cuts in earnings growth and valuations by midyear if inflation remains above 3%.

Utilities are up 9% during the last two weeks, but we think that rally will be short-lived. The Morningstar US Utilities Index has underperformed the S&P 500 by 18 percentage points on average over two-year periods following months when the CPI rose more than 3% year over year. Core CPI was up 5.5% in December and 6.0% in January, the largest 12-month change since mid-1982, based on BLS data. A recent polling of economists estimate inflation near 8% for March, according to The Wall Street Journal.

Inflation hurts utilities' earnings and returns on capital because utilities generally have fixed revenue, high capital and labor costs, and large energy pass-through costs that raise customer bills without raising earnings. We estimate utilities' operating and core capital costs were more than 70% of net revenue on average in 2020. Rising costs make it critical that utilities receive timely rate adjustments, a particularly tough task when energy costs also are rising.

Low inflation and interest rates have helped most utilities increase earnings with only moderate customer bill impacts. Electric and gas utility bills have fallen from 2.2% of total household spending in 2008 to 1.6% in 2021. This is primarily due to mostly flat operating costs and lower interest costs offsetting a near doubling of capital investment during the last decade.

For a more detailed analysis of how inflation affects utilities, see our latest report, "Inflation Unraveling U.S. Utilities' Safety Net."

Fair Value & Profit Drivers 09 Mar 2022

Our fair value estimate is $39.

We expect 7% average earnings growth through 2026, the midpoint of management's 6% to 8% earnings guidance. We forecast $36 billion of capital expenditures through 2026 at the company's regulated operations, supporting rate-base growth slightly above our earnings growth outlook. We assume consistent regulatory treatment across Exelon's service territories.

In our discounted cash flow valuation, we use a 5.9% cost of capital based on a 7.5% cost of equity. This is lower than the 9% rate of return we expect investors will demand for a diversified equity portfolio, reflecting Exelon's lower sensitivity to the economic cycle and lower degree of operating leverage.

Scenario Analysis

Our uncertainty rating for Exelon is low. The company's regulated rate structure and transparent growth outlook reduce the difference between our bull- and bear scenarios.

In our bull-case scenario, we assume rate-case outcomes are 25% higher and operating expenses are 2% lower than in our base-case scenario. This results in a $5 per-share increase to our base-case fair value estimate. In our bear-case scenario, a similar decline in rate-case outcomes and increase in operating expense results in a $5 fair value estimate decrease.

If operating expenses increase by 100 basis points, our fair value estimate would drop by $2 per share, all else equal.

Economic Moat

Considering Exelon's full suite of regulated businesses, we think the firm has a narrow economic moat.

Service territory monopolies and efficient scale advantages are the primary sources of an economic moat for regulated utilities such as Exelon. State and federal regulators typically grant regulated utilities exclusive rights to charge customers rates that allow the utilities to earn a fair return on and return of the capital they invest to build, operate, and maintain their distribution networks. In exchange for regulated utilities' service territory monopolies, state and federal regulators set returns at levels that aim to minimize customer costs while offering fair returns for capital providers.

This implicit contract between regulators and capital providers should, on balance, allow regulated utilities to outearn their costs of capital, though observable returns might vary in the short run based on demand trends, investment cycles, operating costs, and access to financing. Intuitively, utilities should have an economic moat based on efficient scale, but in some cases regulation offsets this advantage, preventing excess returns on capital. The risk of adverse regulatory decisions precludes regulated utilities from earning wide economic moat ratings. However, the threat of material value destruction is low, and normalized returns exceed the costs of capital in most cases, leaving us comfortable assigning narrow moat ratings to many regulated utilities.

Moat Trend

We assign Exelon a stable moat trend rating. The regulatory environments in Illinois, Pennsylvania, and Maryland have stabilized, allowing the company's distribution utilities fair returns. Nearly all of Exelon's rate-base growth will have rate trackers or formula rates, minimizing regulatory lag. Exelon faces the biggest challenge boosting regulated earned returns.

Exelon's stable business model and difficult-to-replicate asset base support our view that the firm's narrow moat is stable. We don't anticipate a change in the regulatory compact between utilities and ratepayers that ensures capital providers earn a fair return on their investments. As with all regulated utilities, we think revenue caps preclude Exelon from establishing a wide economic moat.

Regulated utilities' moat trends consider changes in the regulatory environment, near-term investment requirements and growth opportunities, energy demand trends, and management's strategic direction. In assessing the changing regulatory environment, we consider the level of automatic rate mechanisms, allowed returns on equity versus interest rates, fuel cost recovery mechanisms, and the history of regulatory relations.

Using these factors, we assess whether fundamental changes will give a utility a better opportunity to earn or overearn its cost of capital in the near term, or whether fundamental changes will make it more difficult for a utility to earn its cost of capital. The regulatory framework that caps revenue and returns prevents the firm from attaining a wide moat, as with all regulated utilities that we cover.

Bulls Say/Bears Say

Bulls Say

- Exelon's divestiture of its merchant generation eliminates its earnings sensitivity to cyclical commodity prices that have dragged down returns recently.
- Exelon has good regulated growth investment opportunities that should support earnings and dividend growth.
- Nearly all of the company's growth capital is recovered through constructive regulatory mechanisms that reduce regulatory lag.

Bears Say

- Exelon's large investment plan increases regulatory risk.
- Some of the company's regulated utilities operate in the Northeast, where regulators have a history of being less constructive relative to other jurisdictions.
- A federal lobbying scandal hurt Exelon's reputation with policymakers in Illinois, which could cause adverse outcomes in future rate proceedings.

Financial Strength

With over 4.0 times interest coverage, Exelon's financial health is sound for a regulated utility, particularly given its stable, low-risk business model. With our forecast for $36 billion of capital spending planned through 2026, Exelon will be a frequent debt issuer. The company has manageable long-term debt maturities and we anticipate it will be able to refinance its debt as it comes due, maintaining its current debt/capital ratio. We expect the company to issue $1.0 billion in equity to fund its capital investment plan, in line with management's expectations.We expect total debt/EBITDA to remain in the 4.5-5.0 times range. Exelon will target a 60% dividend payout ratio. We expect dividend growth in line with our 7% annual earnings per-share growth forecast through 2026.

Risk & Uncertainty

Exelon's ability to earn regulatory approval for rate increases depends on maintaining constructive relations with regulators. If regulatory relations sour, regulators could cut the utility's allowed return, resulting in earnings and cash flow pressure.

Illinois and Maryland are two historically tough regulatory environments, and punitive rate decisions could have a material impact on earnings and growth. However, Exelon has done a solid job developing good regulatory relationships in the Northeast. New legislation in Illinois also helps mitigate some of Exelon's regulatory risk. We expect Exelon will be able to earn returns near its average allowed regulatory returns at its regulated utilities.

Exelon faces environmental, social, and governance risk, particularly with regard to corporate governance and business ethics. In 2020, Exelon reached a deferred prosecution agreement at its ComEd subsidiary helping to resolve a Justice Department investigation of its lobbying practices. ComEd admitted that it arranged jobs, vendor
