

Stay Connected with the Lifeline Program

What is the Lifeline Program?

The Lifeline Program is a federal government benefit that provides eligible households with a monthly discount on their phone or internet bill. The benefit can be used for standalone voice (telephone), Broadband Internet Access Service (or BIAS, usually called internet service), or qualifying bundled telephone/internet service product from a landline or wireless provider. This helps consumers communicate so they have the opportunities and security that telephone and internet service can provide, including being able to connect to jobs, family, health care, schools, and 911 emergency services. The Lifeline provider must be an Eligible Telecommunications Carrier (ETC) to participate.

What Are the Benefits Under the Lifeline Program?

The Lifeline Program provides a $5.25 per household, per month discount on your landline or wireless voice service or a $9.25 per household, per month discount on your qualifying wireless or landline internet service. The discount appears in the form of a reduction to the bill you pay your service provider.

How Do I Qualify?

Note: Survivors of domestic violence or sexual abuse may be eligible for up to six months of “emergency” Lifeline benefit. This benefit is a monthly credit of $9.25 toward either their voice or broadband service. To qualify, survivors must provide documentation that they have been a victim of domestic or sexual violence and certify that their household income is at or below 200% of federal poverty guidelines. After the 6-month emergency benefit, for continued support, survivors will be required to re-qualify for the program based on the standard Lifeline qualifications, and the program support will revert to the standard $5.25 per month for qualifying voice or $9.25 per month for qualifying broadband service.
