Building Inspection • Construction Consultation

INSPECTOR'S STATEMENT

A home inspection is intended to assist in the evaluation of the overall condition of the dwelling. The inspection is based on observation of the visible and apparent condition of the structure and its components on the date of the inspection.

The results of this home inspection are not intended to make any representation regarding the presence or absence of latent or concealed defects that are not reasonably ascertainable in a competently performed home inspection. No warranty or guaranty is expressed or implied.

If the person conducting your home inspection is not a licensed structural engineer or other professional whose license authorizes the rendering of an opinion as to the structural integrity of a building or its other component parts, you may be advised to seek a professional opinion as to any defects or concerns mentioned in the report.

This home inspection report is not to be construed as an appraisal and may not be used as such for any purpose.

The inspection was conducted according to the Standards of Practice of the American Society of Home Inspectors (ASHI).

Maintenance, repairs or replacement of building components may occur at any time during the life of the house. This is also true of the time between our inspection and the time in which you settle/close on this property. For this reason, it is very important that you check this house thoroughly just prior to settlement. You should operate all equipment and appliances and make sure that all switches, fixtures, and other parts are functioning properly. You should check the house generally to insure that it is basically in the same condition as it was when you entered into the agreement.

The report and inspection is not a compliance inspection or certification for past or present governmental codes or regulations of any kind. You should get as much information as possible from the present owner concerning the appliances, equipment, and other material in the house. If possible, you should obtain any guarantee papers, manuals, and instruction materials.

The house is equipped with two sumps. The sump pumps were functional. Both sumps are equipped with battery back up sump pumps. You should check with the present owners regarding the care and operation of these pumps.

Fiberglass insulation has been installed between the floor joists in the basement. This insulation should be covered to prevent the possibility of fibers escaping.

HEATING AND COOLING

The house is heated by two forced-air systems. Heat is generated by heat pumps and electric back-up heating units. Air conditioning is also generated by the heat pump. The air conditioning part of the heat pumps were functional at the time of the inspection. We could not test the heating part of the systems since the air conditioning systems were in use.

The wastewater from the air conditioners and the humidifier is directed into the trench between the foundation wall and the basement floor. This can cause a build up of moisture in the basement. The wastewater should be piped or pumped directly into a sump.

The heaters are approximately 7 years old. Life expectancy of a unit like this is 20 to 25 years.

Heat pump compressor/condenser units have an average life expectancy of 12 to 15 years. These units are approximately 7 years old.

You should have a service contract with a local heating and cooling contractor for the heat pumps. The systems should be checked and serviced at least once a year.

There is a filter in each system, and they must be kept clean. A dirty filter will impede airflow in the system and cut down on its efficiency. We recommend that the filters be replaced monthly.

One of the heating pumps is equipped with a humidifier. Humidifiers need to be cleaned periodically of the mineral deposits which accumulate when the water evaporates. You should follow the manufacturer's instructions to clean this humidifier.

The heat pumps are controlled by setback thermostats located in the dining room and in the master bedroom. You should check with the present owners regarding the instructions booklets for these thermostats.

ELECTRICAL

The electrical system in the house consists of an underground three-wire system with 220/110 voltage 200 amperes. The service cable appears sound. The service entrance conductors are aluminum, which is common.
