Munro v. PECO
Docket No. C-2010-2214718

Judge Eranda Vero:

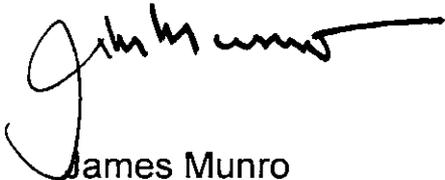

Since the initial hearing held on April 21, 2011, I have not received any information or report on the above case from you or Peco.

I now have a hearing notice for October 3, but there was no agenda on the subject matter of the hearing.

I do not know how to prepare for the October 3 hearing. Given the short amount of time from now until October 3, and the absence of any information about the hearing, I do not believe I can prepare for the hearing, and therefore I am request an extension.

Please advise.

Thank you.

The public has a right to know what is going on in the government and to have access to the information that is held by the government. This is a fundamental principle of a democratic society. The government has a duty to provide this information to the public in a timely and accessible manner. This is the purpose of the Freedom of Information Act. The government should not withhold information from the public unless there is a compelling reason to do so. The government should be open and transparent in its operations. This is the only way to ensure that the government is accountable to the people. The government should provide the public with the information that they need to make informed decisions about the government's actions. This is the only way to ensure that the government is serving the interests of the people. The government should be open and transparent in its operations.
