Rail: Commuters locked out

The door leading from the station down to the train platform was locked, too, commuters said.

"People were saying, 'We're not going to get down on East Petersburg,' said Dan Roche, an Amtrak spokesman, as he headed to his job at General Electric in Wayne.

Someone commuters aren't sure who was found a way to dash across the train tracks and get up on the platform. That person then ran up the flight of stairs to see if the door could be unlocked from the platform side, said Cavia Katz, a Manheim Township resident headed to her job in Philadelphia. But it was padlocked with a metal bar. There was a brief discussion of finding a screwdriver to loosen the bar, Katz said. The person who began pushing against the door and the metal bar, others helped. They put enough pressure on it — it wasn't heavy sure on it — it wasn't heavy off," she said. Everybody started pouring down to the platform.

People were hopping mad, Katz said. "This is a major corridor. You have a ton of people going to work," she said. "There are attorneys heading to court. This train goes to New York make sure they were going to get their train," he said. Kohl heard an Amtrak worker had called in sick, and that is why the station was not properly opened.

Amtrak's official position is that the lockout was because of a "scheduling error."

Spokesman Donnell Hunter said he could not confirm if someone had called in sick because she did not have "level of detail."

"It caused a small delay in opening the station," she said. The good news is that they were able to get the station open and get passengers on their trains on time.

It's not the first time commuters arrived to find early morning problems, they said. Roche said commuters also were briefly locked out of the station several years ago they would only consider new revenue generated by a stronger economy.

The GOP lawmakers joined with 60 House Democrats in the letter, which also called on the supercommittee to keep the door open for solutions called Medicare, Social Security and Medicaid, among others. In addition, the letter said the special committee should aim for $4 trillion in 10-year savings, a mandated minimum target of $1.2 trillion.

At a news conference and in separate interviews Wednesday, Republican participants shied away from discussing an unusual proposal: Even so, the letter's bipartisan coalition with the political advisers in Washington has buffeted the supercommittee, which has made little evident headway just three weeks from the deadline for completing its work.

"To succeed, all options for mandatory and discretionary spending and revenues must be on the table," the letter said. "In addition, we know from other bipartisan frameworks that a target of some $4 trillion in deficit reduction is necessary to stabilize our debt as a share of the economy and assure America's fiscal well-being."

prepared to support you in this effort," the letter states.

The list of signers includes many moderates from both parties. But it also includes conservatives such as presidential candidate Ron Paul, R-Texas, No. 2 House Democratic leader Sheny Hoyer of Maryland and liberals such as Rep. Emanuel Cleaver, D-Mo., Black Caucus. It was organized by Reps. Heath Shuler, D-N.C., and Mike Simpson, R-Idaho.

"We all know you can't get to that kind of number by just looking at one side of the equation or the other," Simpson said of a significant debt-cutting deal.

"I'll give up my election, I'll give up my seat" in exchange for an agreement that helps the country's fiscal future,

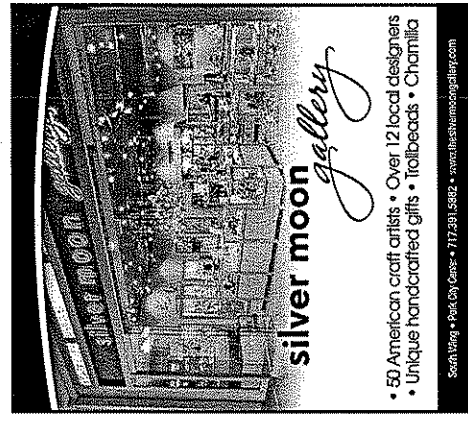

public except to take things

Shuler said.

In an interview, conservative Rep. Cynthia Lammis, also signed the pledge by anti-tax activist Grover Norquist while she did so when she was first elected in 2008, but did not sign it last year.

"Grover Norquist is not in my district," she said. "I represent the state of Wyoming and its people."

Norquist did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Transmission Line Construction

PPL Electric Utilities Corporation (PPL Electric) plans to improve reliability and meet increasing demand for electricity in Lancaster County by increasing the operating voltage of two existing power lines. One of these lines, about 520 feet long, is located north of Delo Road near its intersection with Manheim Pike. The other line, about 120 feet long, is located south of Plaza Boulevard near the Park City Center. This project will be in East Hempfield and Manheim townships, Lancaster County.

All work associated with this project will be performed either on property owned in fee by PPL Electric or within existing PPL Electric right of way. No additional right of way is required. Of the two separate power lines involved with this project only one requires physical work to be performed to convert it from 69 KV to 138 KV. About 520 feet of existing transmission line will be modified to meet current 138 KV standards so that the operating voltage can be increased from 69 KV to 138 KV.

If you would like more information on this project, please contact John M. Lewinski at 717-569-2533.

On October 7, 2011, PPL Electric filed a "Letter of Notification" with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PUC), which must approve the project before work can begin. A copy of this "Letter of Notification" is available for public inspection on weekdays during business hours at the following locations:

East Hempfield Township Municipal Building 1700 Wistany Road Landisville, PA 17538	Manheim Township Municipal Building 1840 Municipal Drive Lancaster, PA 17601

Russia to oppose new sanctions on Iran

World powers looking to punish oil giant after U.N. report says Iran developing nukes

BY BRIAN MURPHY
Associated Press

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — With Iran angry defiant about a U.N. report accusing it of developing nuclear weapons, Western powers and allies faced complicated questions Wednesday on how to counter tight international oil giant without shaking the fragile world economy.

The path toward possible new sanctions also quickly that brought Iran to the brink of mastering the process for atomic weapons, according to a U.N. watchdog agency report released Tuesday.

Iran claims its nuclear program is only for energy and research.

In a speech broadcast live on TV Wednesday, President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad said that Iran won't retreat "one iota" from its nuclear ambitions.

About the same time in Paris, French Foreign Minister Alain Juppe said the world cannot accept a nuclear economy "reversing."

Oil prices jumped 25 percent to March, when a rebellion in Libya cut off that country's 1.5 million barrels of daily oil exports. Iran produces about 3.6 million barrels per day.

Iran also has booming commercial ties with Iraq and would likely oppose any tougher sanctions.

Italian, Greek leaders still hanging around

ROME — With markets tumbling around the globe, Italy's president promised emphatically Wednesday that Silvio Berlusconi will step down soon as premier and lavished honors on a leading economist, who instantly became Berlusconi's presumed successor.

Across the Ionian Sea, the debt crisis in Greece deepened with the breakdown of talks aimed at creating a power-sharing government to prevent the country from slipping into bankruptcy. The collapse came just minutes after the prime minister delivered a farewell speech.

Investors fear Italy might follow Portugal and Greece into begging for a bailout from its partners in the euro. But Italy's $2.6 trillion debt is far too great for Europe to cover.

In 1938, Kate Smith first sang Irving Berlin's "God Bless America" on her CBS radio program.

In 1954, the U.S. Marine Corps Memorial, depicting the raising of the American flag on Iwo Jima in 1945, was dedicated by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in Arlington, Va.

In 1969, the children's educational program "Sesame Street" made its debut on National Educational Television (later PBS).

In 1975, the ore-hauling ship SS Edmund Fitzgerald and its crew of 29 mysteriously sank during a storm in Lake Superior with the loss of all on board.

Ten years ago President George W. Bush, in an address to the U.N. General Assembly, warned that all nations were possible targets of terrorism, and he urged them to join with the United States in a campaign to prevent more attacks.

One year ago President Barack Obama cut short his visit to his boyhood home in Indonesia because of an ash cloud from Mount Merapi, and flew to South Korea for an economic summit. ## Earthquake hits Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — An earthquake struck eastern Turkey on Wednesday night, killing at least three people and leaving dozens injured in the rubble of toppled buildings, which had killed 600 people.

About two-dozen buildings collapsed in the provincial capital of Van following a 5.7-magnitude quake, though most of them were empty or had been declared unfit because they were weakened by the earlier quake.

In a grim replay of scenes from last month's quake at the same region, men in blankets sought to assist Turkey in the aid effort.

Russian spacecraft in jeopardy

MOSCOW (AP) — A Russian space probe became stuck in orbit Wednesday because of equipment failure, raising fears it could come crashing down and spill tons of highly toxic fuel on Earth unless engineers can steer it back to its flight path.

The spacecraft was headed for one of Mars' two moons when it developed technical problems.

U.S. space and Defense Department officials are tracking it. Officials at NASA in Washington figure it will be at least a week, maybe more, before the errant space probe falls back to Earth, if it does.

The Russians are trying to get it back on course.

Experts at the U.S. space agency and other space debris experts believe the fuel will probably explode harmlessly in Earth's upper atmosphere.

The Switch is On to Natural Gas

Reason #5: It Saves You Money

People who switch to Natural Gas save up to $1000 a year on their home heating costs!

Switching to Natural Gas is one of the best things you can do for your home and your wallet.

- Natural Gas heating is more efficient.
- Natural Gas heats and cooks faster.
- Natural Gas is better for the environment.

Go to www.UGI.com/switch or call 800-276-2722 to see how much you can save.

Transmission Line Construction

PPL Electric Utilities Corporation (PPL Electric) plans to improve reliability and meet increasing demand for electricity in Lancaster County by increasing the operating voltage of two existing power lines. One of these lines, about 520 feet long, is located north of Deep Road near its intersection with Mainline Pike. The other line, about 120 feet long, is located south of Plaza Boulevard near the Park City Center. This project will be in East Hempfield and Mainline townships, Lancaster County.

All work associated with this project will be performed either on property owned in fee by PPL Electric or within existing PPL Electric right of way. No additional right of way is required. Of the two separate power lines involved with this project only one requires physical work to be performed to convert it from 69 kV to 138 kV. About 520 feet of existing transmission line will be modified to meet current 138 kV standards so that the operating voltage can be increased from 69 kV to 138 kV.

If you would like more information on this project, please contact John M. Leviski at 717-560-2323.

On October 7, 2011, PPL Electric filed a "Notice of Modification" with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PUC) which must allow the project before work can begin. A copy of this "Notice of Modification" is available for public inspection on weekdays during business hours at the following locations:
