

Dear Rosemary & Lauren

After reading your letter, I must say it greatly saddens me. I promise you won't need a lawyer to interpret my letter. Please don't dismiss my request Carte Blanche.

Everyone is created as an unique individual with different needs & wants. Let me use a few analogies to drive my point home. 99.9% of people love to eat peanuts & peanut butter, but a very small percentage have an acute reaction to this product. Are peanuts safe? Of course they are. Studies prove that they are perfectly safe, but tell that to the poor unique individual that just had a horrible reaction to the "safe" peanut. I'm not disputing the fact that you have done countless studies that show your product is safe, but we are all different & things affect everyone in a unique way. I can't eat Ice Cream without having a detrimental reaction. You can probably eat ice cream & enjoy it never giving it a 2nd thought. It's not the product but the person. We are all unique! The bottom line is I get to choose whether I want to eat ice cream & pay the price. I get to choose whether I eat peanuts & get an all expence paid trip to the E.R. With your product I don't get that choice. The symptoms are as real to folks with this type of sensitivity as the above two references I have given you.

Your letter stated that it's the law & you must issue smart meters. Rules are Guidelines. If you go into labor & you're a hour away from the Hospital, you are going to break the speed limit. If you get pulled over for speeding, giving the circumstances, your most likely going to get a highspeed

Escort to the Hosp. Its a unique situation & law or now law this is a unique situation & it requires a not so mainstream response.

I do not dispute the fact your smart meter has been tested & been shown to be safe for 99.9% of the general population, but the EMF emitted by this meter adversely effect me, Just like Peanuts & Ice Cream, which are also safe.

I can't explain why this happens to me and not everyone else. I wish I could. I implore you to consider how it effects me, not what your studies show.

I'm a real live person with real live issues. I know how this effects my body. Please don't hand down an edict that will condemn me to a home life of headaches & insomnia along with some level of confusion.

I'm not petitioning the court to have these devices removed from everywhere, Just one house. I would never ask the FDA to make peanuts illegal because how it adversely affect me nor would I ask you to make smart meters illegal because of how it adversely affect me.

I just want the courtesy of getting a choice. A choice that will help me, a unique person live a better quality life free of symptoms that quite simply could be totally avoided! Thank You!

The uniquely Individual
