Karen and I no longer cohabit. Our relationship has become dysfunctional and we lead separate lives with no common interest. She possibly has a boyfriend and could be living in a campground somewhere off the grid as far as I care to know. I can confirm in August she was in San Antonio Texas with her sister, her sister's husband and nieces. She was traveling and staying in Pittsburgh off from work helping her sisters care for their 80 plus year old parents. Her sister lives in Cherryville Pennsylvania and she might be there when not in Pittsburgh. I have no idea, nor do I desire to have any further interaction with Karen. I am done trying or expecting her to sign anything. I am solely left to deal with the household responsibilities on my own and my position has not changed. She stops occasionally to get her mail, but we have no interactions. I could contact her at work, but she probably will not accept my calls. I have excluded myself from her employer's property and I refuse to cause any nuisance when she is at work.
