

Dear Ms. Morris,
I am addressing this also to Ms. Chiavetta at the PUC.

This is concerning docket # C-2023-30418800

I will address the issues as they present themselves.

Yes we did contact the company in 2020. At that time we did not seek to get power.

In 2023 the company designer talk to my husband on the phone and told the cost would be 30,000 to 40,000 dollars plus or minus 30% to 60%. Penelec leaves that bit out, as you can see that estimate on cost is difficult to budget.

In Disanto v Dauphin as to that regard all the cases cited in the letter that was sent to you none of them have any pertinence to our case. They all involve companies are involved in rate disputes etc... That is not what this case is about. I looked up each one and could not find any relevance.

Perhaps not being legally schooled I missed the point.

We were told we personally had to get an ROW. The most logical place was from our neighbour since he has the closest power line to us. (Our other options are much further away) He said NO. I don't know what we were supposed to do after that.

Yes it is true that our area is heavily wooded but most of that is on our property. As you can see from the pictures I've attach there are not so many trees. The first pictures are up Fuller road and you can see even in the full bloom of August that there are not that many trees. As you look around the corner you see just weeds. The trees don't start until our property.

At no time did anyone from Penelec personally come down to take a look at our property or the neighbouring ones.
As far as we could tell they sat in there office and made a judgement from there.

Penelec also contacted us after they found out that we had lodge a formal complaint and tried to brow beat my husband (who is a disabled veteran) into have us get the ROW after he told them our neighbour had said no. They offered to come down and help but does that come off the 4000 dollars they would charge us upfront before they even come down to look at the property or is out of the goodness of their heart?

I and my husband really do think they, out of common curtesy, should come down in person, deal with the easements that are already in place on the road and give us a realistic assessment.

Penelac also told us that they could use the municipal ROW if they needed to but hey didn't have to. That was from my husbands conversation with Noah from Penelec. He was also told him during this conversation that they were not required to give us power, that was our problem.

Thank you
Angela Stephens
