

The Tentative Order does not do enough to protect individual/family ratepayers from the financial burden that would be brought about by these proposed datacenters and the strain they would cause. Aside from the fact that the majority of residents dont even want them in the area, these Datacenters if approved should be solely responsible for covering their own energy costs at minimum, if not more so due to the negative effects they have on the surrounding community.