PENNSYLVANIA PUBLIC UTILITY COMMISSION

Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission

v.

Docket No. R-2025-3057164

PPL Electric Utilities Corporation

STATEMENT OF DIMENSION PA 1, LLC IN SUPPORT OF SETTLEMENT

This office represents Dimension PA 1, LLC (“Dimension”) in the above-referenced matter. We are submitting this Statement to confirm Dimension’s support of the non-unanimous settlement as it relates to Maximum Registered Peak Load (MRPL)--Item J in the outline.

Dimension owns numerous entities in PPL’s service territory that are customers of the utility generating power from solar photovoltaic power generation. Dimension’s SPEs own solar photovoltaic power generation projects in PPL’s service area that are eligible for net metering under 52 Pa. Code § 75.13 and have executed Interconnection Service Agreements (“ISAs”) under PPL’s Commission-approved interconnection rules.

PPL’s initial proposals would have altered the method of assigning rate classes for customer-generators. Under that initial proposal, certain projects would be reassigned to large commercial and industrial rate schedules, where exported generation is compensated at a rate that is lower than the rate that would be applicable under the previously applicable small general service rate.

These changes would have materially and adversely affected Dimension’s existing and planned projects by: (a) reducing the compensation value of exported generation; (b) increasing revenue volatility; (c) undermining the economic assumptions used in financing and contractual arrangements; and (d) applying to projects with existing ISAs without any grandfathering or transition mechanism.

Our concerns are largely addressed in the non-unanimous settlement. While PPL's proposal to reassign projects using the company's proposed Maximum Registered Peak Load would be adopted, the projects that are most advanced in construction are provided grandfathering and projects being moved to the lower large commercial rate are better compensated for the value they have in avoiding PJM-related costs. These provisions constitute a fair and non-discriminatory resolution of the MRPL issues in question and should be adopted by the Commission.

As a result of the above, Dimension expresses its strong support for the non-unanimous settlement proposal.

Respectfully submitted,

Daniel B. Markind, Esquire
