To the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission,

I am a resident of the Rivers Bend development in Upper Providence Township, Montgomery County, and would like to provide comments regarding the Cromby Generating Station's inclusion in the PATER Study.

Our neighborhood sits directly across the Schuylkill River from the former generating station, and many of us can see the property from our backyards. Although Cromby is located in East Pikeland Township, Chester County, our neighborhood is among those closest to the site. My concern is that residents across the river could be overlooked simply because we live in a different township and county.

As these sites are being evaluated, I hope the study considers more than just the existing electrical infrastructure and redevelopment potential. The proximity to established residential neighborhoods and the Schuylkill River should also be important factors.

I'm particularly concerned about potential noise pollution, water usage and quality, and the environmental impacts of redeveloping a former industrial site.

There have also been additional data center proposals in the surrounding area, including Limerick and the former Pennhurst property. While these are separate projects, I hope the study considers the broader impact that multiple large developments could have on regional water resources and electrical infrastructure.

I understand that this study does not represent a specific development proposal or approval. I just hope these concerns are considered now, while sites are still being evaluated for potential redevelopment.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide feedback.
